

MISS HAZEL WHITE AND AITHOL BRAGG MARRIED AT HER FATHER'S ORDER

CHARLES WHITE, ACTING ON HIS OWN THEORIES, SUCCESSFUL IN CLEARING UP DISAPPEARANCE MYSTERY.

WITNESS TO CEREMONY

Threats to Bragg Sufficient to Disclose Daughter's Hiding Place and Two Are Married Late Yesterday at Father's Instigation.

Hazel White is now the wife of Aithol Bragg, the young Englishman, at whose suggestion she left her home and friends here to go to Chicago. Her marriage to the man who joined after disappearing from the Y. W. C. A. in Chicago two weeks ago, was consummated just before six o'clock last evening in the office of a justice in the presence of her father, Charles White of this city, who went to Chicago Friday to find his missing daughter and to compel Bragg to marry her, if they were not already wed.

It was only after an all day search, first for Bragg, then with Bragg for the young girl, thence to the license clerk for the marriage permit, and then to the justice of the peace, that Mr. White succeeded in straightening out a matter which has kept the police department of Chicago and newspapers all over the country on the qui vive for several days.

Father at Ceremony.

The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Aaron C. Strayer, in his office opposite the Chicago city hall, yesterday afternoon shortly before six o'clock. Mr. White was present when the marriage license was issued to Bragg by Marriage License Clerk Louis Lenoir, and it was at his instigation that the two were immediately married. He was a witness to the ceremony and secured a written statement from the acting justice as proof of their marriage.

Mr. White on arriving in Chicago yesterday morning, proceeded directly to the forwarding address, 447 East Fifty-sixth street, which had been given by Miss White to the Y. W. C. A. authorities. Here he found a family with whom Aithol Bragg had been staying, but it was learned that he had left there about a week previous, to what address it was not known.

Information was received, however, that Bragg was employed as a floor-walker in the lace department of Marshall Field's State street store, and Mr. White proceeded at once to the store, confident that Bragg was acquainted with the whereabouts of his daughter.

Bragg is confronted. At Marshall Field's he failed to find Bragg in the lace department at first, but on inquiry the man was found, the latter evidently having seen Mr. White coming and would avoid a meeting.

When confronted by the girl's father, Bragg turned ghostly white, but at the demand to take Mr. White to his daughter, became stubborn. Threats of arrest and state's prison sentence waiting him on various counts for which Mr. White claimed to Bragg he had complete proof, brought the latter to time, and he secured a leave of absence from duty, agreeing to conduct the father to his daughter.

Escape Attempted. Bragg seemed very nervous and Mr. White believed that he contemplated escape, for he offered to go and let the girl, relieving her father of the trouble of the journey to the place where she was staying. Mr. White refused any such terms, however, and reiterated his threats.

Upon arriving at the house where Miss White had been staying with Bragg, the latter offered again to go inside alone, but Mr. White held firm to his determination not to allow his companion from his sight.

Case is Stated. In the presence of his daughter and the man who was her evident choice for a husband, Mr. White stated the case in very plain terms. Bragg, he said, could be sent to state's prison on charges which he could prove, and he feared that his daughter might be implicated. He demanded their marriage certificate, but this they were unable to produce.

The only alternative possible, the couple were told by Mr. White, was an immediate marriage, to which both agreed, and they immediately hurried down town to the license office and from thence to the justice who performed the ceremony.

Father Denies Aid.

Following the ceremony Mr. White made it plain to his daughter that under the present circumstances there would be no aid of any kind forthcoming from him. He believed that he had done his part in clearing up the entire affair and the responsibility from now on rested with her.

Mr. White returned home last evening, arriving here at 9:15. His theories regarding the entire affair were substantiated in every instance and his search yesterday was productive of clearing up the whole mystery.

Did Not See Taylor.

Robert J. Taylor, the student at the Kansas state college of agriculture, who had started the investigation and who has been most active in the search, was in Rockford yesterday, and Mr. White failed to see him.

It is believed that he was sent away on a wild goose chase by a rumor telegram which he received purporting to be from a Rockford party who could furnish light on the affair. Taylor was in Jamesville for a short time last evening, and phoned to Mrs. White that his efforts in Rockford had been failures.

It is believed that Bragg had possession of the $65 and paid the marriage costs from the check, which Taylor had sent to Miss White while she was at the W. C. T. U. building and which she did not receive immediately. Had her father been acquainted with these facts, the marriage to Bragg might have been postponed for a time at least, until the $65 had been paid.

WILL OPEN LONDON OPERA HOUSE MONDAY

Oscar Hammerstein's New Structure One of the Finest and Best Equipped Theaters in the World.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

London, Nov. 11.—Monday night, next, with the opening of his new London Opera House, the irrepressible Oscar Hammerstein will bring upon his career as a manager of grand opera in the British metropolis. Whatever the artistic or financial success of the undertaking may be, it is certain that Mr. Hammerstein has given to London one of the finest and best equipped theaters in the world. Designed and completed in twelve months, the magnificent structure in Kingsway is a model opera house in every respect, and it is thoroughness and attention to every requirement which success, the New Yorker is going to be eminently successful.

The opera house will accommodate 2,500 persons. It contains forty three boxes, including a handsome suite for the use of the king. The stage measures ninety feet by sixty feet, and is specially constructed with a view to magnificent and spectacular effects. As in the Paris houses, there are saloons, lounges, and foyers for every part of the house. The entrance hall is of unusual size, and surrounded by a peristyle of Corinthian columns, the special feature of the frontage being height. Statues illustrative of music and art stand up on the corners, and each end of the building is crowned with large groups of classical statuary.

COUNCIL UPHOLDS DIPPING IN LAKE

In Spite of Warning of President Van Hise—Jamesville Boy a Candidate for Head of Council.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 11.—Despite President Van Hise's counsel that ducking of freshmen in the lake is a criminal offense punishable by the courts, the student conference of the University of Wisconsin last night voted to permit corporal punishment of this kind. It will not be administered, however, before three upper classmen have passed upon the guilt of the accused in violating the University traditions.

The motion degenerated into a bitter wrangle between the fraternity and barbarian factions. Walter C. Schlock, Milwaukee, was elected to the student court by the influence of the anti-fraternity men, after A. Pickering of Superior had vainly pleaded the decision of William H. Spoon of Jamesville, member of the law fraternity.

First Land Show in Canada.

Calgary, Alta., Nov. 11.—Canada's first land show opens in this city tonight, to continue through the coming week. The show takes place in the auditorium where attractive exhibits from many sections of the Canadian West have been installed. In addition to the displays illustrating farm lands and products there are many valuable exhibits of city property, together with plans and models of houses, designs for landscape gardening and numerous other exhibits of interest to the home builder. A large attendance of visitors from out of town is expected during the week.

Victor Immanuel 42 Years Old.

Rome, Nov. 11.—King Victor Immanuel was forty-two years old today and popular enthusiasm over the war caused the anniversary to be marked by national rejoicing upon an unusually extensive scale. The national colors and pictures of the military family were displayed everywhere. Military reviews were held and dinners were given by the municipalities and villages for the poor. During the day all of the foreign diplomats resident in Rome called at the Quirinal and presented messages of greeting in behalf of the sovereigns and nations they represent.

Canadian Club Banquet.

New York, Nov. 11.—The Canadian Club of New York is to hold its first annual banquet at the Hotel Astor next Monday night and as it will be the first dinner of this representative Canadian organization since the defeat of reciprocity, much interest is being shown as to the prospective attendance of the distinguished Canadians and Americans who will address the club. The new exhibit at the Ottawa will be represented by the Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce. Other Canadian speakers will be Hon. C. P. Brudenell of Montreal, the Right Rev. Frederick Courtney, former bishop of Nova Scotia; Judge D. B. McTavish of Ottawa, and C. R. McCullough, honorary president of the Association of Canadian Clubs.

GIRL FIGHTING TO SAVE FATHER FROM DEATH ON GALLOWS

Pays Cost of Defending Her Father Against Murder Charge With Her Own Earnings as Teacher.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 11.—Not for many years has a murder trial caused so great a sensation and attracted such general interest in this section of the state as the trial to begin here in the Wayne county circuit court next Monday, of John W. Poole, a prosperous Benton county farmer who is charged with having murdered Joseph Kemper, one of his German farmhands, in December 1909. It is not morbid curiosity alone or a desire to have an opportunity to listen to the revolting details of a brutal crime that cause this general interest. The feature which more than any other appeals to the heart and sympathy of the people is the brave fight which Grace Poole, the daughter of the accused man is making to save her father from the gallows.

Grace Poole alone of all the members of the Poole family, faithfully stands by her father and, out of her meagre earnings as teacher in the Wheatfield public school, defrays the cost of defending her father in the coming trial. Poole's wife and his other daughter have turned against him and have absolutely refused to contribute to the fund for Poole's defense. His son, Emory Poole, who has been the prime accused of his father, and has lost literally all stone turned, to find evidence against the old man, continues to maintain his attitude of extreme hostility and has openly declared that he would not rest until his father is hanged.

John W. Poole was one of the most substantial men in Benton county. He owned several prosperous farms, but, owing to some financial trouble a few years ago, he transferred the title of the property to his wife, Joseph Kemper, with whose murder he is charged, worked for Poole during the summer and fall of 1909. He was last seen alive on December 10 or 12, 1909, and since then every trace of him was lost. It was supposed that he had left the farm to find work in the lumber camps of Michigan.

Nobody suspected that Kemper had been murdered until Poole's son, Emory, informed the authorities of his belief that his father had killed Kemper and buried his body somewhere on the farm. The elder Poole was arrested on March 18, 1911, and charged with the murder of Kemper, but was discharged on the same day, because there was absolutely no evidence against him at that time beyond the accusation of Emory Poole.

Young Poole, apparently convinced that his suspicions were well founded and determined to find the necessary proofs for the guilt of his father, continued the search for Kemper's body, exploring every part of the grounds with that object in view. His perseverance was apparently rewarded, in the middle of a big corn field, about half a mile from the Poole homestead, Young Poole found the decomposed remains of a human body, mingled with the remains of a horse's carcass. He notified the authorities and, although the remains of the human body were far beyond identification, insisted upon his charge that the body was that of Joseph Kemper, whom he accused his father of having murdered.

John W. Poole was again arrested and brought to Fowler, Ind., where he was arraigned before Justice L. B. Stephenson, on May 3, last. At this trial the charge was preferred by Emory Poole, who submitted practically all the evidence. Poole pleaded not guilty and was held to the grand jury under bail on a charge of murder. In due course of time he was indicted and his trial was set for next Monday.

Although Poole continued to maintain his innocence of having committed intentional murder, he is said to have confessed that he accidentally shot and killed Kemper and then buried his body for fear of the consequences of his deed. Poole, it is said, claims that while he climbed over the fence of his orchard to hunt rabbits, his shotgun was accidentally discharged and the full load struck Kemper in the head at close range, killing him instantly.

Emory Poole has been engaged to defend his father and it is believed that he will make a plea of insanity in his effort. After a year or so Poole was tried for having tried to shoot a man named Quigley. The jury decided in favor of Quigley. The jury decided that Poole was insane and he was sent to an asylum in Indianapolis, where he remained several years.

Grace Poole, the prisoner's younger daughter, came near losing her position as school teacher in the Wheatfield public school where she has been doing good work for several years. Many of the parents objected to her because her father had been accused of murder, but the brave girl called a meeting of the parents and won their sympathy and support when she explained to them that it would be impossible for her to help her father should she be deprived of her position.

Santa Barbara, Cal., Man in Hands of Police After Confession of Burying Child Alive.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Santa Barbara, Cal., Nov. 11.—After describing how he buried a new born baby alive, John Reck, an Italian, today was held for trial. His wife is also accused. He agreed he "put away" the baby so they could send ten dollars to the old folks in Italy. Reck said he put the infant up in a hole which he had dug in the ground and then filled it with earth.

Don McCullough Centenary.

Murfreesboro, Tenn., Nov. 11.—One hundred years ago today saw the birth in this county of the redoubtable Don McCullough, whose exploits as an Indian fighter and soldier of fortune rivaled the stirring deeds of Davy Crockett and other famous Western pioneers. McCullough family under three names. In his youth he followed the Stars and Stripes into battle against the Indians. Later, at the battle of San Jacinto, he fought side by side with Sam Houston for the "Lone Star" flag of the Texas Republic. At the outbreak of the civil war he joined the Confederates. He was commissioned brigadier-general and was killed while fighting under the Stars and Bars at the battle of Pea Ridge.

STATE HIGHWAY AID HAS GOOD RESULTS SAYS A. R. HIRST

State Highway Engineer Here Yesterday—Stimulation to Road Building—Inspects Rock County Roads.

That the new state aid for highways is accomplishing all and more than was hoped for by its framers in stimulating the building of good roads in Wisconsin, was the opinion expressed by State Highway Engineer A. R. Hirst to a Gazette representative last evening. Engineer Hirst in company with S. R. Jones of Clinton, County Commissioner, is making an inspection of Rock county roads. Yesterday they drove over highways in the towns of Clinton, Hollet, and Turtle, and today they will inspect roads in Rock, Jamesville and Harmony townships, weather permitting.

The revival, or more correctly, the beginning in general, of good road building in Wisconsin dates from the enactment of the county aid law, signed Mr. Hirst. "There has been detached pieces of good work done in the state previous to that time, but nothing of a comprehensive or systematic nature. Under the county aid system excellent work has been done, and the addition of state aid has proved a powerful stimulus. The method of taxation and distribution

TRIED TO TAKE LIFE OF HER FOUR YEAR OLD LITTLE GIRL

Mrs. Herman Henke Accused of Terrible Crime by Her Husband—Her Sanity Will Be Examined.

First with a butcher knife, and then with carbolic acid, Mrs. Herman Henke is charged by her husband with attempting, this morning, to take the life of her four-year-old daughter. The timely presence of the child's father prevented her from accomplishing her purpose. Mr. Henke and three other children were the only witnesses of the alleged murderous attempt which is thought to be the result of an unbalanced mind.

Mrs. Henke was taken into custody late this morning and will be kept in the county jail until next morning in order that an examination into her condition may be made. She broke out weeping when the officer came to get her and said she did not try to kill her little girl but intended to take her own life.

A letter to a sister living in Edgerton was found in her possession. This was opened and read in the hope that it might throw some light on the situation. She writes her sister that she intended to kill herself and that she was going to meet her in heaven. She asked that the children be cared for.

The alleged murderous attempt of Mrs. Henke on her child is the eff-

Horrible Massacre.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Shanghai, Nov. 11.—News reached here today that the horrible massacre of innocent Chinese families and republicans by the Manchian troops continues today. The imperial soldiers, not satisfied with their awful crimes of yesterday are pursuing the fleeing populace and chopping them to pieces whenever found.

EUROPEANS LEAVING NANKOW has been so designed as to encourage road building; those towns and those counties which do not object to share in the bounty are taxed, but do not get any benefit, and it is to their advantage to ask for all the bounty they can get. Sauk county profited over a hundred per cent on state aid this year. Three counties, this year, made made application for greater amounts than they paid in, and were given a slight fraction over thirty-seven per cent of the amount they asked for.

Next year Dane county will rank second in the amount of money asked for road construction, the sum being $200,000. Milwaukee county comes first $200,000. During the last four years Rock county has spent approximately $125,000 on its roads.

Ninety-nine of the state aid roads to be built during the year will be nine feet in width according to Engineer Hirst. It has been found that a greater width is quite unnecessary for country roads and the extra expense is not justified. After two years of use a thirty-foot road will have the same ruts in the center as a nine foot road put down at the same time and the grass and weeds will be found to have usurped a good portion of the sides. Sauk county, which started out to build fourteen and twelve-foot roads, has for the last two years, been building them only nine feet wide.

Highway construction in Rock county, as stated by Commissioner Jones, has struggled under a handicap for the most of the season. During the summer the weather was too dry and hot and this fall heavy rains have held up the work; consequently it is all behind.

COLD WAVE IS SAID TO BE ON ITS WAY

Rain Turning to Snow is the Weather Prediction for Tonight and Sunday.

According to the weather man there is a cold wave coming. Rain, turning to snow tonight, with snow flurries Sunday. Severe cold wave tonight with high northwest winds. That is the way the weather man has it doped out. At two o'clock this afternoon the big thermometer outside the Gazette office registered seventy-four degrees and a few minutes when the severe rain storm struck the city, it dropped ten degrees.

In Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Nov. 11.—With the mercury up to seventy-two degrees and the humidity ninety at noon today, Milwaukee sweltered, with the weather bureau officials predicting the cold wave yet of the year before midnight.

Coming East.

Denver, Nov. 11.—The cold wave is moving eastward and struck Denver today. In ten minutes the mercury dropped from fifty to twenty, and slowly went to ten below.

Goes to Rome to Receive the Red Hat. Boston, Mass., Nov. 11.—A great crowd of representative Catholics of New England assembled at the Custom house today to bid adieu to Archbishop O'Connell, who was among the passengers sailing for Europe on the Canopic. The Archbishop is going to Rome to attend the annual consistory the latter part of this month, at which he and a number of eminent churchmen will be made Cardinals. Soon after his return to Boston in December the ceremony of conferring the Cardinal's beretta will take place in this city.

Roads Covered.

Every road leading from the wrecked and half buried city is today covered with dead and dying men, women and children.

Fifty Thousand.

It is estimated that not less than 50,000 met death in the hideous massacre inflicted by the imperial troops when they descended on the town to wreak vengeance on the noncombatant population.

Prepare Retaliation.

The empire was shocked by the action of the troops and the rebel leaders are preparing dire retaliation as soon as they can equip their troops. It will be no surprise here if a savage battle took place between the imperial and rebels within 24 hours near Nanking.

Aids Cause.

News of the massacre has given great impetus to the republican cause, thousands of Chinese, who have hitherto either been loyal to the throne or disinterested in reform now pledging their money and their lives to the rebels.

At Chang Chow.

Rebels are expected to occupy Chang Chow within ten days. The populace is fleeing. There is continued fighting at Pu Chow. It was reported today that the Manchians were surrendering.

May Be President.

Peking, China, Nov. 11.—Yuan Shi Kai is said to be considering today acceptance of the revolutionary offer of the presidency of the united states of China. Yuan is understood to be convinced that the monarchs must fall and persists in his refusal of the same.

Americans Safe.

Washington, Nov. 11.—That the four of a massacre of foreigners in China were justified was indicated today in a dispatch from rear admiral Murdock, commanding the American fleet stating that the Manchians attempted to fire the foreign settlement at Pu Chow. Practically all Americans who were at Nanking are safe having fled before the great massacres occurred. He has sent the gunboat El Cano up the river to Hankow.

NEW SONG RINGING THROUGH WISCONSIN

What appears to be the best song yet written by Harry Von Tilzer, author of "All Alone," "They Always Pick On Me" and "Knock Wood," is a little song just come to town called "All Aboard for Blanket Day." It has a delightfully odd swing. Here is a portion of the chorus clipped from a sheet of the music just received:

In New York they are singing the song in the theatres, in the parlors, and even in the schools. The orchestra appear to play nothing else and dancing academies are using it as a waltz. The few copies that reached town last week disappeared as if by magic and the Janesville girls will certainly have a time with this new one this winter.

HALL &amp; HUEBEL

GARDEN ON VALUABLE LAND

Small Patch in Heart of City of London is One of Capital's Curiosities.

There are many curious things about the bank of England, but among them how many know that it possesses a respectable garden? It is to be found just inside the Throateless street entrance, on the left-hand side.

This old-fashioned garden has a fountain in the center, gravelled paths and a couple of trees, the whole forming a quadrangle with the bank building running all round.

Its history is a curious one. In reality this garden is the churchyard of the vanished Church of St. Christopher-le-Stock, which used to stand where the Museum House now is.

One reason why the church was pulled down was because its tower completely overlooked the bank, and it was feared that it would be a danger to the "Old Lady" if the church was occupied by rioters.

As the bank occupies the site of the entire parish of St. Christopher-le-Stock, it is said that any freeman of the city can claim admission to the old garden. But, as a matter of fact, any one who cares to see it may do so during business hours, and it is well worth a visit, if only for the fact that it is the most valuable garden in the world.

PIONEER RESIDENT DIED LAST EVENING

Mrs. Charles Doubleday Gathered by Grim Reaper Less Than Week After Death of Brother.

Mrs. Charles Doubleday, one of the few remaining pioneer residents of Janesville, passed on of their rapidly thinning ranks at midnight last night, less than one week after the death of her brother, who died last Sunday.

Mrs. Doubleday had been in very poor health for a long time, but had been confined to her bed only five days previous to her demise. Pneumonia with other complications was the cause of her death.

Miss Elizabeth Plowright, the maiden name of the deceased, was born in Lincolnshire, England, August 12, 1837. She was married there to Charles Doubleday, May 19, 1858, and on June 10, of the same year, emigrated with her husband to this country.

They came directly to Janesville and have made their home in Rock county ever since, with the exception of six years spent in Colman, South Dakota.

Surviving the deceased are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. E. F. Spear of Colman, S. D.; a son, Charles Doubleday of Bradford; and seven grandchildren. Two sisters, Mary and Sarah, died in England, and a daughter, Mrs. M. J. Bennett, of Heydon, Ia., died nineteen years ago.

Funeral services for Mrs. Doubleday will be held at the home, 258 South Franklin street, Monday afternoon, at one o'clock. The Rev. T. D. Williams, pastor of the Methodist church, will officiate. The remains will be buried in the Emerald Grove cemetery.

WILLIAM GRAY DIED LATE THIS MORNING

Passes Away at Home South of Janesville After an Illness Extending Over Eight Months.

William Henry Gray, father of George V. Gray of this city, died at ten o'clock this morning at his home two miles south of Janesville, after an illness extending over the last eight months.

Mr. Gray was born in White Haven, Pennsylvania, March 8, 1840. He came to Janesville when twelve years old and was married January 6, 1870 to Martha L. Himm, who with his son, George, survive him.

Funeral services for the deceased will be held Tuesday afternoon; prayers being said at the house at 1:30 o'clock and at the chapel in Oak Hill cemetery at 2:30. The Rev. Bouton will be the officiating clergyman.

William Welch.

Last services for William Welch were conducted at nine o'clock this morning at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church. Friends and kin of the deceased were present in large numbers and showed their regard by numerous and beautiful floral emblems. The pall bearers were James Deo, John Casey, John McCue, John Connors and James Dempsey. Burial of the remains was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Charles Noel.

The remains of Charles Noel were sent to Menominee this morning over the North-Western railway. The remains were accompanied by his wife and child and several employees of the sugar factory. Interment will be made at Menominee.

MRS. JULIA MYERS IS EIGHTY-SEVEN

Celebrated Her Birthday Anniversary With a Dinner Party Last Night At Her Home on East Street.

Mrs. Julia Myers, one of Janesville's oldest and most respected citizens, celebrated her eighty-seventh birthday anniversary last evening with a formal dinner party at her residence on East street.

After the dinner, Mrs. Myers, who is not entirely recovered from an accident she suffered two years ago, in a general health and thoroughly enjoyed her celebration party, which was arranged for her by her daughter, Miss Katherine Myers. Those present were Mrs. Abigail Doty; Mrs. Julia Stoddard; Dr. and Mrs. Fred Sutherland; Mrs. Laura Myers; Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Myers and Miss Katherine Myers.

Mrs. Myers was the recipient of a handsome wheeled chair of the latest pattern from her daughter, Miss Myers, and her son, P. L. Myers. The dinner was a most elaborate one. Both the house and the dining room were specially decorated for the occasion.

ENTER COMPLAINTS BUT REFUSE TO BEAR WITNESS

Three Men Arrested Last Night on Charge of Begging but Accuse Do Not Appear in Court.

Three men, giving the names of Jack Dorsey, Frank Smith and Otto Leutz were arrested last evening on complaints made to the police but this morning when their accusers were called upon to testify they refused with the excuse that since the identification was made in the dark they might possibly be mistaken. The men were kept at the police station all morning and will probably be dismissed some time today.

Passed Away This Morning at Seven at a Sanitarium at Ottawa, Illinois.

Word was received this morning of the death of Howard D. Hoover of this city at a sanitarium at Ottawa, Illinois, where he has been for weeks past. While it was known he was not as well for the past few days his illness was not thought serious and the news of his death comes as a great shock to his wife and many friends in this city.

Mr. Hoover has been a resident of Janesville since 1881. He was born in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, forty-five years ago, coming to this city as a young boy. For many years he has been on the road, traveling for the firm of Miller & Conover of Chicago. Mr. Hoover, of that firm, went to Ottawa this morning upon notification of the death and will accompany the remains to this city.

Mr. Hoover was a member of Christ Episcopal church, a devout Christian and has many friends in the city who will be shocked to learn of his demise. He has been in poor health for months past and went to the sanitarium some weeks ago for special treatment. He was married eighteen years ago to Miss Isabelle Winslow of this city, who survives him. Notice of the funeral will be given later.

LINK AND PIN.

Chicago & North-Western.

Water Tank Repairs Delay: The work of repairing the water tank at the station this morning was the cause of much delay in the movement of trains as the engines that needed water were forced to go to South Janesville.

Draw Bars Pull Out: Two large freight trains which came into Janesville this morning had the misfortune to pull a drawbar from one of the many cars that composed the tonnage and were considerably delayed. One of the trains which came by way of Afton pulled the drawbar out of the second car from the engine while making the grade near the Milwaukee roundhouse, and as a result traffic was blocked over that line for a little time. The damaged cars were put on a siding and the trains moved forward as soon as possible. Freight traffic is heavy and the loads that are being hauled sometimes prove too much for some of the "links" which give out when taxed too heavily.

Christian Science Church.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, holds services in Phoenix Block, West Milwaukee street, Sunday morning, 10:30 and Wednesday evening at 7:45. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday morning will be "Mortals and Immortals." Sunday school meets at 12 o'clock. Reading room open daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 2 to 4 p. m.

Shocked By Live Wire: A telephone wire on North Jackson street was loosened by the wind this morning and fell down into the street. It evidently short circuited an electric light wire for two or three persons who came into contact with it were brisely shocked. One man said to have received a burn on his face. The telephone men notified the telephone and electric companies of the disorder and as soon as he was informed of the fact.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Mrs. John Horn of 551 North Chatham street was called to Harrison this morning on account of the serious illness of her grandson, Irving.

Miss Elizabeth Walsh of Idan street will spend Sunday in Chicago.

Bradley Conrad, Louis Hunge, and Homer Cooper will spend Sunday in academy at Beaver Dam.

ADHERED TO HER BARGAIN

Bride Had Own Opinion of Marriage as Business Transaction, but Parson Got His Fee.

The Rev. L. B. Bates, long associated with the East Boston Bethel, tells in his "Wonder Book" of an amusing marriage ceremony performed by his father. This is his account of it:

About nine o'clock one night the old parsonage on Cape Cod was approached by a man and a woman in a "one horse shay." Hearing the wheels, Father Bates went to the door, to see coming up the walk a buxom lass of two hundred pounds or so, followed by a very little man.

With a giggle she announced, "We've come to be married, parson, haven't we, Bill?" An energetic nudger succeeded in eliciting the desired affirmation from "Bill."

The parson exclaimed the license, and proceeded to business.

"Please join your right hands," he said. "Dearly beloved, you are gathered here for the purpose of holy matrimony. Do you—?" but he was here interrupted by the bride:

"Say, parson, before you go any further would you mind taking your pay in dried apples?"

Being assured that dried apples were current coin with parsons, she allowed him to proceed:

"Madam, do you—?" but again he was interrupted.

"Say, parson, the apples are not ripe yet, but you shall have them without fail."

He assured her that her honesty was appreciated, and proceeded with the ceremony without further interruption.

Two months later a bushel of the best dried apples was hauled by the bride herself to the parsonage door.

"I don't know as he was worth it," she said, with a twinkle in her eye; "but a bargain is a bargain for all that!"—Youth's Companion.

SUFFERED FOR YEARS OWE HEALTH TO PE-RU-NA.

Many a matron has longed for the days of her comely appearance by taking Peruna. To be beautiful, the body must be kept clean internally as well as externally. Peruna produces clean mucous membranes, the basis of facial symmetry, and a clear, healthy complexion.

MISS NETTIE E. BOGARDUS

Internal Catarrh.

Mrs. George C. Worstell, 11 River Road, Clarkburg, W. Va., writes: "I can truly say I have been much benefited by the use of Peruna. I feel better than I have for two years. It is the best medicine that I know for internal catarrh. When I began taking Peruna I could see that before I had finished taking the first bottle it was doing me good."

Sick Headache.

Miss Nettie E. Bogardus, R. F. D. 21, Westfield, N. Y., writes: "I have been a great sufferer from sick headaches, but am now entirely free from that trouble. I have not felt so well in ten years as I do now."

"I would recommend Peruna and Mammals to all sufferers."

Gained Appetite and Strength.

Miss Julia Butler, Appleton, Wis., writes: "My sister advised me to try Peruna. I took your treatment and my appetite returned speedily. I gained strength and flesh and am in perfect health."

Mrs. O. D. Robinson, 39 St. Felix Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I have taken Peruna and it did me more good than all my two years' treatment by special physicians. I can really say that I feel like another person. No more swollen feet and limbs. No more bloating of the abdomen. No more shortness of breath. No more stiff and sore joints. You have no idea what your treatment has done for me. It certainly has prolonged my life and made a new woman of me."

Circuit Court Adjourned: Judge Graham has returned to his home in Jefferson, leaving two dance cases against the C. M. and St. P. railway to be decided the week of November 25. The juries for these cases have been impaneled and the work will be disposed of as quickly as possible that week.

Comedy of Corn.

"Yes."

"Well, he gets wild whenever the Maitland girl, she's his fiancée, eats corn off the cob. She found out how he felt about it, and the other evening at dinner at the club she tried to eat the corn from the cob. Briggs noticed this and smiled approvingly, but just then her knife slipped, the cob popped nimbly into Briggs' shirt-bosom, the plate skidded, the gravy bowl went over and all the cut off kernels showered themselves dangerously near the gorgeous corsage of that very stout Mrs. Singleton Mink."

"And what did Briggs do?"

"Say, Briggs was game. He called the waiter, handed him the cob, and said, 'Francis, this corn popped from the plate just now. I didn't order popcorn. Bring the other sort, Francis, and make it cobless, please.'"

Curious Annamese Customs.

Mrs. Gabrielle M. Vassal, the wife of a French doctor, who was attached to the Pasteur Institute of the Nhatrang, a little village on the coast of Annam, relates some of her experiences. When she and her husband arrived at Nhatrang they were received by the native servants, who saluted and squatted on the floor for a long period, this being their method of greeting Europeans. Servants had the curious habit of washing all dishes under the table; never on its top. Men and women dressed alike, wearing trousers and tunics, and women on the way to market with their baskets always walked in single file.

Obligation of Love.

Love is a debt, an obligation that never can be fully met, and so must rest upon us always. We cannot avoid obligation at will, cannot refuse payment and hold ourselves free. Aid and kindness, sympathy and love, we owe on every hand, to our brother man everywhere, while life lasts.—J. R. Miller.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAYED IN JEFFERSON TODAY

Hardest Game of Season Played This Afternoon—Team Has Made Good Showing This Year.

Janeville high school plays Jefferson this afternoon what was thought would be the hardest game of the season. Last week Jefferson held Fort Atkinson to a small score in a game for the championship of the state. From the reports which come from there Jefferson has a very strong team and if the local boys are able to hold them or to score on them it will be a very creditable record.

Out of five games played the local eleven has won three and has a total of 92 points against the twenty points of their opponents for the season. The team has been practicing hard this week and is in very good condition for today's game. Coach McMurray was optimistic about the result and planned on having the boys from Janeville win.

SETH T. FARNSWORTH
SOLVES HIGH COST OF LIVING
Mr. Seth T. Farnsworth Who Proposes a Plan Which Will Bring The Year's Cost to $40.20

No one vital question is before 100,000,000 people in the United States than the high cost of living. When Congress convenes in December this topic will be one of the chief issues.

Senator Clapp the militant insurgent of Minnesota, as chairman of the Senate Committee of Interstate Commerce, has undertaken the task of finding a satisfactory answer to the question. He has not as yet announced his plan, but it is possible that the commission will be asked for to fix the price of butter and eggs and mutton each morning.

Mr. Seth T. Farnsworth has advanced a plan which through co-operation would theoretically bring the average cost of necessities for sustaining life to $40.26 a year.

This sounds impossible and yet were it possible in a utopia to carry out his theories, the scheme would be practical. Mr. Farnsworth has been active in this movement for many years and has made a life study of the subject. He is recognized authority on this work. During the recent campaign in behalf of the consumer inaugurated by Mayor Shook of Indianapolis, Mr. Farnsworth was called into consultation and there presented some original and novel ideas.

In the first place he would establish a farmer's clearing house to work in the interests of the farmers in identifying the same relation that the clearing house does to the bank. Mr. Farnsworth would receive a fixed, fair staple all the year price of $1.00 per bushel for wheat, fifty cents per bushel for corn and so on through the list of farmer's products.

This central clearing house for the farmers would be in co-operation with the clearing house for the consumer. The plan would not eliminate the middleman in any case but would through systematic co-operation yield the middleman a fair profit.

For example, the corn purchased at a definite price of fifty cents per bushel will be turned over to the Co-Operative Canning Company, cannot at cost plus a small margin transferred to the grocery store and delivered by the groceryman on a definite route, the same as Uncle Sam's postmen now handle mail at the rate of one-fourth of a cent per pound and reach the consumer at the remarkably low price of three cents per can instead of fifteen cents. The middleman would be working under a guarantee of not less than $1,200 per year and would be as sure of his money as the postman is now. The same process would hold throughout the entire system and no one would suffer real loss.

There would of course be no unusual riches gathered by the middleman and there would be no immense 40 or 50 per cent selling expense attached to the various different stages between the farm and the consumer. It is certainly sure that could the farmer, the middleman, and the consumer be brought into one harmonious co-operative scheme, reasonable profit could be made by each and every one and the cost to the individual would be reduced 50, 60 and 80 per cent.

Mr. Farnsworth has estimated the yearly expense as follows:

Food, 1,400 pounds at 15c.....	$21.00
4 suits of clothes at $3.50.....	14.00
4 hats at 50c.....	2.00
4 pairs of shoes at $1.00.....	4.00
4 suits of underwear at 70c.....	2.80

12 pairs of socks at 8c.....	.96
18 collars at 8c.....	1.44
18 cuffs at 8c.....	1.44
18 handkerchiefs at 8c.....	1.44
Washing a week 25c.....	13.00

A Hair's Breadth.
A "hair's breadth" is 17-10,000 of an inch. For the purpose of such fine and delicate measurement tool makers use what is called a micrometer caliper. The hair's breadth is something that has to be taken into consideration in the manufacture of a thousand and one things in the machine maker's art. Close calculation of this sort must be done on the doors of bank vaults, for example, where every part must fit to the nicest degree.—Harper's Weekly.

An Incurable.
Lieutenant Commander Symington at a luncheon once toasted a noted admiral. "He is a good man," he said; "too good a man, I sometimes think, for this rough, wicked world of ours. He is an idealist and an optimist. Indeed, he is such an incurable idealist and optimist that if you should send him on a wild goose chase he'd speak of himself forever afterward as a big game hunter."

Keep Hope Alive.
Never abandon hope. Remember that no earnest effort is ever lost. Get away from the habit of looking on the dark side. Nothing will so completely paralyze the creative power of the mind as a dark, gloomy, discouraged mental attitude. It keeps multitudes of people from obtaining the very things they most desire.

NOTED ELEVEN'S BATTLE ON 11-11-11.

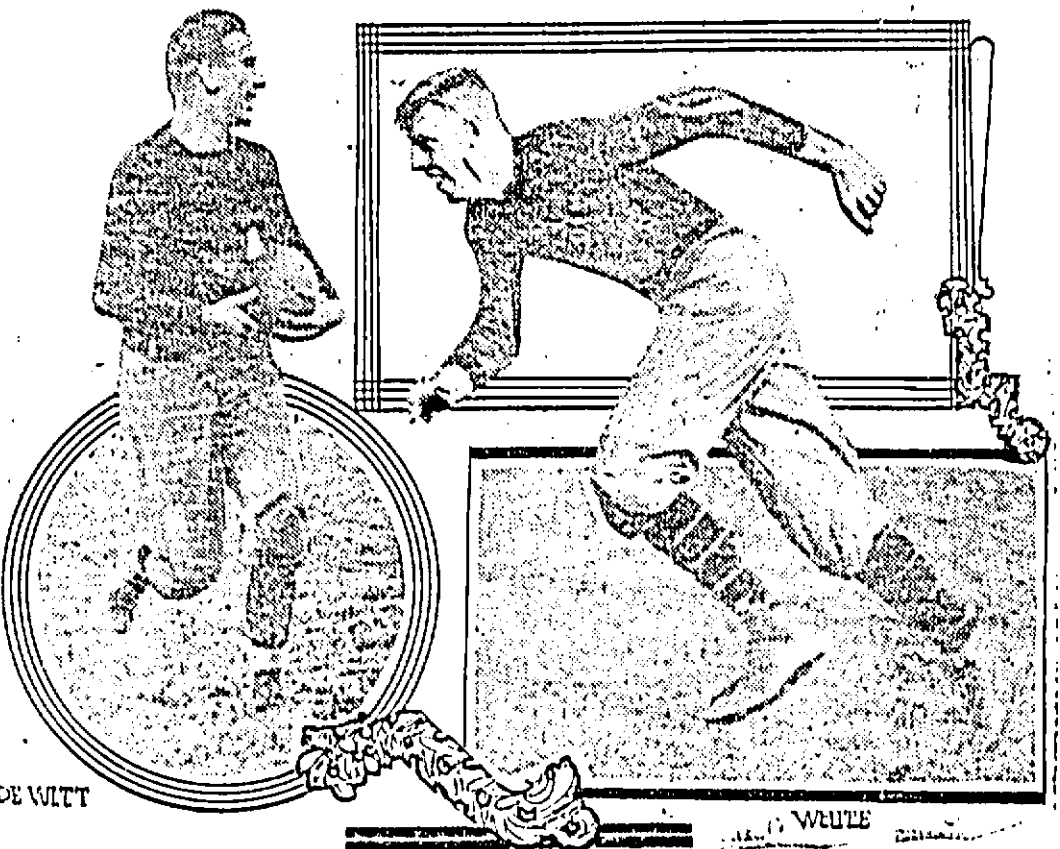

On this, the 11th day, the 11th month of the year 1911, there takes place many of the most bitterly fought contests between football eleven's of the year.

At New Haven the Sons of Eli meet Brown in a contest which will be a fight throughout.

At Ithaca Michigan meets Cornell.

At Princeton Dartmouth beats the tiger in his den. These are only a few of the games which take place east and west, but are among the most important.

Not again in a century will a football eleven play on the date written 11-11-11, and not until December 12th, 1912, will a like repetition of numerals appear when the date is written out in figures. It will then read 12-12-12.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

He wasn't very great or very clever. He wasn't very rich or very proud. But we liked him all the more, because he never drew attention to himself by being loud.

In the background he was happiest remaining.

In society he never made a stir. He wasn't very bright or entertaining. But he never interrupted those who were.

He couldn't sing or dance or tell a story.

He never was a cut-up with the boys.

He never tried to bluff his way to glory.

And he never made us weary with his noise.

—Detroit Free Press.

The author of this homely sentiment must have had in mind that simple statement of Lincoln's which helped to make his name immortal: "God must have loved the common people because he made so many of them."

The average man or woman is neither very great or very clever, and the world is made up of average people who enter the arena unnoticed and pass down the line and off the stage without attracting much attention.

The average farmer watches the sun as it breaks through the mist over the old familiar hills every morning, and calls the day's work done when it fades from sight in the golden glow which tints the tree tops in the valley sacred to boyhood associations.

The average village and hamlet and many of the inland towns acquired their growth fifty years ago, and the average inhabitant is the old-fashioned farmer whose principal diversion for half a century has been in watching the arrival of the mail train, and a daily visit to the postoffice.

Many of the boys and girls have gone out from these staid environments to help redeem a new territory and then settled down to the same quiet life of the early years.

The average business man goes on year after year, through his generation in the same old store, not expecting to amass a fortune but content to meet familiar faces, and serve the old time constituency.

The average physician grows gray in serving the community where he first hung out his shingle and in time enjoys the honored distinction of being known as the family doctor in many homes.

The average clergyman may be profound and philosophical and a loyal exponent of theology, but he is seldom known beyond his own parish or the field where his lot is cast.

The average wife and mother is a home keeper, and the narrow confines of the little realm over which she presides, satisfies her ambition, and gives to the work, however humble, an air of content and happiness.

The average American home is provided with all the comforts and many of the luxuries of life, and coming from these pleasant environments the boys and girls discover early in the race that the work of the brain is necessary to lighten the work of the hand, and so it happens that the men who work in the offices, and build our railroads, and the girls who serve in the homes, are representative of our adopted citizenship.

It is estimated that New York City has as a part of its population half a million people who have never left the island of Manhattan. They landed at Castle Garden and were swallowed up by the great city, living in crowded tenements and performing the most monotonous work; yet they are not unhappy because their condition is better than in the lands from which they came.

There is no country beneath the stars where the average conditions of life are so desirable as in this fair land which we call our home—a fact not always appreciated.

There are two or three things which contribute to these pleasant surroundings that are worth considering. The average people who enter into the warp and woof of our national fabric are contented people, and, in spite of the seeds of socialism and anarchy, that come to us from across the seas, they maintain independence of thought and action, and hold the ship of state steady in her course.

It is a mistaken notion that this nation should copy the nations of the old world in any form of government, and some of our educators are responsible for advocating this dangerous doctrine. The principle on which this nation was founded, was Liberty without license, and because this principle has been preserved the nation has prospered.

Some unreason has been manifested because socialism made some gains in the recent elections, and Congressmen longer predict that his party will cast two million votes in 1912; but there is no occasion for alarm. The American muck-raker and fanatical agitator has had his day and the country will survive as it did after the green-back and free silver epidemic.

The national election next year will settle many questions which are now more or less perplexing. Should the people be free enough to continue President Taft, in office, the nation will settle down to an era of continued prosperity. Should they be foolish enough to transfer the reins of government to the democratic party they will enjoy the benefits of four years' experience that will be like an omelet, but so fruitful of good results in the end. In either event socialism will be lost in the shuffle.

Next to the solidarity inspired by a contented and prosperous people, the nation is indebted to the limited class of men and women who rank above the average and who stand out like sentinels in the rear guard of the procession. These people are found at the head of the procession. They are past masters in the arts and sciences and they not only blaze the trail but they also build the highways across the continent, redeeming the waste places, and making it possible for the average mortal to find a home and fortune.

Thomas Edison gives to us the telephone, the dynamo and the electric light, and we appropriate the products of his brain faster than he can perfect them and then kick about the service because that is our privilege.

Enterprise and ability invests one hundred million dollars in tunneling mountains and overcoming obstacles to aid transportation from coast to coast. We absorb the benefits like a sponge and then attempt to tax them out of existence for their dare devil folly.

The schools of the land are indebted to Ella Flagg Young, principal of the Chicago Schools and president of the National Teachers' Association, for some innovation in the way of practical education which she has introduced for the benefit of the average boy and girl who graduates from the grades, and who has heretofore but little to show for the time invested.

Over in Germany a man is working on a wireless telephone. He is already able to send his voice through a stone wall and across the city and says that when his invention is perfected that a mountain will be no obstacle.

When this German is ready to do business he will find a ready market for the machine on this side. The average wife will then be able to send her husband down town without the aid of a central office and people can stay at home Sunday and listen to the sermon or sleep without embarrassment. This German is a long way above the average and everybody will wish him God speed.

There are two or three things which the average mortals curse and discuss with fearless freedom because they never talk back and meet any sort of a brain can carry on this kind of a discussion.

The weather is perhaps the most fruitful topic and if the powers in control could be influenced the variety of weather would keep the most of us guessing.

The railroads also come in for a free for all discussion and it is surprising how these corporations manage to get along in spite of the aid of an adoring board, which every community is ready to furnish.

The Standard Oil Company is perhaps the most closely hated of any of the large corporations, and it is surprising that we average people are willing to use any of the products. A man who was having his car filled at a wagon the other day was asked what was his grievance and he said the grinding monopoly ought to be compelled to run a pipe line through his back yard so that he would not be bothered with a can.

Here is a paragraph from an address delivered not long ago by Lester M. Shaw of Iowa fame. It shows up the situation from a new angle.

"If you go to a hotel at Portland, Maine, and there order a gallon of Poland Spring Water bottled as nature produces it a few miles in the country, that gallon will cost sixty cents. If you go to Deadwood, S. D., and there order four gallons of Kerosene oil a thousand miles from the wells that produce it, and five hundred miles from the refinery, the four gallons will cost sixty cents. Everybody complains of the profits made on refined petroleum and no one complains of the profits made on Poland Spring Water and no one will unless the owner of the spring endows a university."

In the good time coming we will be more charitable as a people and with our modesty will recognize the fact that the average mortal is carried by the men who go to the front and blaze the trail for the march of progress.

The subject announced by Dr. Beaton for his Sunday night sermon tomorrow, indicates that the pulpit is interested in practical themes which touch humanity in the struggle for existence. What the people want is something to help them over the rough places here.

SCRIPTURE.

DANIEL 1:8-16

But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank, therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself.

Now God had brought Daniel into favor and tender love with the prince of the eunuchs.

And the prince of the eunuchs said unto Daniel, I fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your meat and your drink: for why should he see your faces worse looking than the children which are of your sort? then shall you make me endanger my head to the king.

Then said Daniel to Melzar, whom the prince of the eunuchs had set over Daniel, Hananiah, Misanah, and Azariah.

Prove thy servants, I beseech thee, ten days; and let them give us pulse to eat, and water to drink.

Then let our countenances be looked upon before thee, and the countenance of the children that eat of the portion of the king's meat: and as thou seest, deal with thy servants.

So he consented to them in this matter, and proved them ten days.

And at the end of ten days their countenances appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than all the children which did eat of the portion of the king's meat.

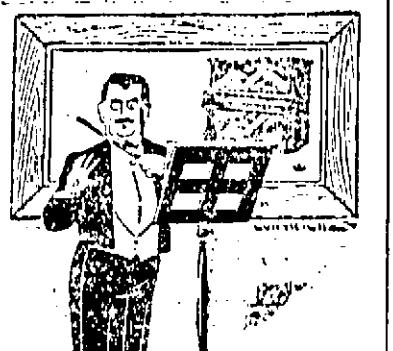

Thus Melzar took away the portion of their meat, and the wine that they should drink, and gave them pulse.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

BEGIN RIGHT.

It was Mr. Andrew Carnegie who discovered that the way to arise in the morning with soul attuned to the harmonies of the universe is to be called to breakfast by a pipe organ.

However, there are few of us who can afford to be awakened to our toilet and coffee by having a pipe organ in the house. Nor could we afford, if we had the organ, to have some one play it for us.

Mayor Seldel of Milwaukee has a more reasonable suggestion. He says: "I believe it would be a good plan if the phonograph were to take the place of the alarm clock. We could start the day in better spirit if we were awakened by some inspiring march or song. We ought to have music before breakfast."

No doubt about that.

Because your day's success or failure largely depends upon the mood with which you begin your day.

Helen Reinhard, whose "laughter cure" is the fad in Paris, says:

"You must begin each day with laughter. Begin as soon as you open your eyes in the morning. There's magic in it."

Reinhard is right. A good laugh in the morning not only massages the liver, but drives the cobwebs from the brain and lubricates the grouchy feelings.

Perhaps you cannot force yourself to the laughter cure, but you can begin your day in a cheerful mood. You can force your mood.

Do you know that there are more quarrels, more disturbances, more divorces, more bickerings and broils at the breakfast table than at both the other meals combined?

The grouchy microbe is an early worm.

Begin your day properly. Force yourself into good spirits. Cultivate pleasant speech at the breakfast table. Smile—smile and your troubles, like the Arab, will fold their tents and silently steal away.

That which is well begun is already half done.

Be kind to a danger point.

Your stomach is empty, perhaps your nerves are jangled, and in your fancy there is some fearsome thing about. How shall this be done or that? Will that happen or this? Trifles annoy you.

Nevertheless—

Face the day smilingly. Whatever looms ahead, front it good humoredly. However difficult the task, you are the more certain of its accomplishment if you go at it in a cheerful manner.

Souvenir Thieves.

Hotels of Philadelphia have been forced to post notices that souvenir hunters would be prosecuted for other petty or grand larceny according to the value of the hotel belongings they manage to carry from the dining and bedrooms. The posting of the notices comes as an aftermath of complaints of the waiters, who heretofore have been forced to pay for cutlery, dishes, napkins, etc., which were charged to them when they left the kitchen, and which were not returned.—National Herald.

Two Educations.

We all have two educations, one from others, and another, and the most valuable, which we give ourselves. It is the last which fixes our grade in society and eventually our actual conditions in this life, and the color of our fate hereafter. All the professors and teachers in the world cannot make you a wise or good man without your own co-operation; and if such you are determined to be, the want of them will not prevail.—John Randolph.

SPECIAL ARTICLES ARE WRITTEN FOR GAZETTE*HOW APPLETON SECURED COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT AND ITS RESULTS.*WILL BE INTERESTING

In View of the Fact There is Serious Talk of Starting Such a Movement Here at This Time.

In view of the fact that many business, professional and common everyday citizens of Janesville are talking of Janesville adopting the commission form of government, the following article, the first of a series, by Paul F. Hunter of Appleton, will prove most interesting reading. Appleton is under the commission form of government and these articles deal with the subject from the inception of the idea through its successful outcome. The first of the series, deals with the subject, "How Appleton Secured the Commission Government."

Appleton, a city of 18,000, known for years as an educational, musical, dairy and manufacturing center, had as good municipal government as any city in Wisconsin. There had never been any charge of graft and seldom of incompetency, but the people were not satisfied, the politicians ran the city as they do nearly everywhere else, and it was admitted the "system" was wrong.

The city was normally republican but frequently elected a democratic mayor and council on some local issues. The citizens of Appleton are noted for being conservative. They are slow to take hold of anything but once they make up their minds nothing will stop them until they accomplish their purpose.

Thus it was that Appleton realized a change was needed from the old administrative system of municipal government and was ready to listen to the possibilities offered under the commission form.

In January, 1910, John Conway, hotel owner and progressive citizen, visited several cities in Texas that were governed by commission and on his return advocated the system for Appleton. He gave interviews to the local press and discussed the matter with many citizens, but it was thought the time was not ripe to submit the matter to a vote of the people and it was dropped for the time.

That spring the debating team of Lawrence college, after a thorough investigation of the subject in Los Angeles, and other cities, supported the affirmative side of the commission government question in debates with Hamilton and Carleton colleges in Minnesota and won the unanimous decision of the judges, and that fact set Appleton to thinking. That fall the Lawrence team again won a debate on the subject with St. Olaf's college.

January 3, 1911, a few men met with Mr. Conway and it was decided to call a mass meeting to discuss the proposition of adopting the commission form of government. The mass meeting was held in the city hall on January 5, and attended by about 300 men, representing all classes. A committee of five was appointed to arrange for a campaign of education, circulation of petitions for the special election, etc., and $202 in cash was raised before adjournment towards a fund of $500 to conduct the campaign.

Under the law it was necessary to secure petitions with the signatures of 25 per cent of the votes cast mayor at the last election before a special election could be ordered. These petitions, presented to the mayor, he could wait sixty days before ordering the election, and in order to have the election held early enough, that it was carried, the candidates could be voted upon at the regular primary. It was decided to circulate the petitions at once.

It was necessary to have 605 signatures to the petitions and on Jan. 6 five petitions were placed in circulation. On Jan. 7 a committee of twenty-five citizens called at the home of the mayor and presented the petitions containing 774 signatures and requested that a special election be ordered for Feb. 7.

The mayor, who had served but nine months of a two years' term, felt that he had been elected for two years and was entitled to serve out his term, but informed the committee that he had been elected by the people and if they wished a special election, he would order it as soon as he could consult with the city attorney.

One week later the election was ordered for Feb. 7 and the committee in charge arranged for a campaign of education. The committee was supported by the press, the Wisconsin law on commission government was published, a list of books and magazines in the public library, referring to commission government, was published, and they were in great demand.

The Lawrence debating team debated the question with Appleton college, of Michigan, before the largest audience that ever attended a debate at Lawrence. The committee arranged for speakers to explain the new system. Attorney Roy P. Wilcox, of Eau Claire, who assisted in drafting the Wisconsin law, was procured for three days to explain the law and how it had benefited Eau Claire.

The opposition, the leaders of which were for the most part politicians, had few arguments to make but pleaded for delay, suggesting that as yet commission government was but an experiment, especially under the Wisconsin law, and that it would be better to wait until other cities had given it a trial. Then they argued the new system should not be adopted without the initiative, referendum and the recall.

They claimed that it would be impossible to secure men for candidates who are capable of earning the salary fixed by law, from $5,000 to $25,000 in cities of Appleton's size, that it would not eliminate politics, etc.

Everyone became interested in the campaign; nearly everyone appeared to be in favor of the change. On the Sunday preceding the election several ministers preached on the moral side of municipal government and most of them favored the commission plan.

The manufacturers argued that the city was a $15,000,000 corporation and that any other corporation with even $50,000 capital, would have for its managers men who would draw handsome salaries and devote their entire time to the business, instead of being run by a bunch of men who worked hard all day at different vocations and then met one or two nights a month to run the business of the corporation.

The night before the election the largest mass meeting ever held in Appleton was held in the armory where brief talks were made by a dozen or more men and then Mr. Wilcox spoke for over an hour and devoted another hour to answering questions.

It was generally believed that night that the proposition would carry with a big majority, and the people were greatly surprised the next morning to hear that they had a two-thirds vote in favor of the change and that the commission government had been carried by a vote of 1153 to 951, a majority of only 192.

Highway Engineer Asks Whether He Can Give Talk to Board Wednesday Evening Which is Inconvenient.

As both of these proposed hours are most inconvenient for a number of supervisors, it is thought possible that the Rock County board must forego the pleasure of hearing the instructions of the new state road law explained.

DAVID COPPERFIELD IN MOTION PICTURES

Dickens' Famous Novel To Be Shown in Motion Pictures at Majestic.

Beyond the hopes of the most optimistic are the limits to which the moving picture people have gone. People in Janesville who have read, studied and loved the works of the immortal Dickens, are going to have the chance of seeing his "David Copperfield" in motion pictures. Monday night, at the Majestic Theatre, there will be shown a three thousand foot film, copied by the famous Thanhouser company, of the story, David Copperfield.

In three different parts, the pictures with a realism that only the Thanhouser people can give, follow the story of the life of Copperfield, just as it came from the pen of Dickens. The reel opens at the time that Aunt Betsey flattens her nose on the window pane of the Copperfield home, over which the star is hovering. The early life of David, the marriage of his mother, his first job and his consequent tragedy, all are in the first reel.

The well known tragedy of the second part of the story is strikingly done. Little Emily and the tragic ending of her love affair with Steerforth stand out in a way that is a credit to the motion picture art. David, the characters dear to the lover of Dickens—all are portrayed excellently by some of the most talented of actors. Everyone knows the story. Many have wept and laughed over it. See it at the Majestic, Monday night.

MONEY IS DEPOSITED TO COVER SIDE BET FOR FIVE HUNDRED

Overland Hackers Leave Check at The Gazette Office For Race With Cuckoo Car Next Spring.

Owing to the fact the season is so far advanced, the track at the Park Association grounds in such poor shape that it would be impossible to hold a ten mile race this fall, the much talked of speed contest between the backers of the Overland and Cuckoo cars will be put over until next spring.

This morning a check for five hundred dollars was deposited with The Gazette by the backers of the Overland car to insure a race at the first available opportunity in the spring of 1912. The money is in the safe of The Gazette and awaits a similar check from the Cuckoo backers, should they decide to race.

The terms and conditions of the contest will be decided upon later, but it is probable that some persons thoroughly acquainted with the racing game, as John De Long of Chicago, will be asked to judge the contest, which will be for ten miles.

The only condition thus far imposed by the backers of the Overland is that the Cuckoo car be driven either by Herman or William Prillip. They expect to have Gleason, a well known former local auto enthusiast, at the wheel for their machine. The original race was for cars selling under a thousand dollars and this will probably also be one of the stipulations.

One of the officials of the Janesville Park Association said today that it would be impossible to hold this race this fall owing to the condition of the track and he did not think the directors would allow a race to be held there until next spring, even if the autoists agreed to race.

Herman Prillip recently stated that the backers of the Cuckoo were ready to cover the five hundred dollar side bet, winner take all, offered by the Overland enthusiasts, so that a race between the two cars seems assured early in the spring. In fact, the Cuckoo people stated they were ready to race this fall, but as the season is so far advanced it is understood they have agreed to postpone the race until next spring.

TODAY'S EVANSVILLE NEWS

MEMBERS RECEIVED BY PYTHIAN LODGE

Large Class Received Into Evansville Chapter at Last Meeting—Evansville Local News.

Evansville, Nov. 11.—The K. of P. had a large team in initiatory work at the last meeting. It was also voted to serve light refreshments at each and every meeting in the future.

The Pythian Sisters are planning to have a mask party and speak supper at the lodge rooms next Tuesday evening. Every member is urged to be present and has the privilege of bringing one friend. There will be no regular meeting of the lodge, only a very enjoyable, sociable meeting. Also a short program will be given.

Gave Dinner Party.
Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Spencer entertained at a picnic supper at their home Thursday evening. The families of George Pullen, Chas. Spencer and Martin Paulson were present. A delicious supper was served and a pleasant social evening enjoyed by all present.

Personal Mention.
Miss Josephine Moon who has been visiting Miss Cora Morgan, returned to her home in Evanston, Friday morning.

John Van Vleet is home for a few days.

H. E. Barnard and wife spent Friday in Janesville.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Clark leaves tomorrow for a few days visit in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Lem Courter and daughter spent yesterday in Janesville.

Miss Mary and Tillie Schwartz of Oregon are visiting at the home of Mrs. E. Williams.

Mrs. Jane Shorger and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hall leave today for Mt. Clemens, Mich.

H. A. Longnecker is spending a few days in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Noyes went to Brooklyn last night for a short visit.

Miss Laverne Gilles, Daisy Spencer and Miss Walseh of Madison, are spending the week in Chicago. They will be joined by Mrs. Gertrude Eager, today, who has been in Indiana for a visit with her son.

Mrs. Lucina Hallow of Brooklyn was in the city Friday afternoon.

C. J. Calkins spent yesterday in Janesville.

Miss Lewis is home from Footville for an over Sunday visit with her mother here.

D. M. Johnson left for a visit to relatives in San Francisco last night.

It. M. Richmond and O. S. Shepherd were Janesville visitors yesterday.

The subject of the sermon at the Congregational church Sunday evening will be "The Ministry of Healing."

This will be an illustrated lecture having seventy-five or more slides shown. Everyone is invited.

State Inspector of W. R. C. Here. Miss Lizzie Williams, the department inspector of the Woman's Relief Corps, will be present at the regular meeting of the T. L. Stephens W. R. C. No. 28, on Thursday evening, Nov. 16, at 7:30 sharp for the purpose of inspection. All officers and members are requested to be present promptly at 7:30. Cora E. Harris, President.

Game to Evansville.
The Evansville Y. M. C. A. team won the basketball contest from the Brooklyn Association team last night by the score of 46 to 14. The game was played in the local gymnasium before an enthusiastic audience. The Brooklyn team played a very clean contest but the superior basket shooting of the local aggregation won the game. The lineup was:

For Brooklyn: Hanson and O'Brien, forwards; Drayton, center; and Hanson and O'Brien, guards.

For Evansville: Sherry and Hobart, forwards; Antos, center; and Hines and Wilder, guards.

The Cubs and Pirates engaged in a preliminary contest which the former won by the score of 12 to 7.

Entertained at Dinner.
Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hanson entertained the E. Z. Club at a dinner party last evening. There were about fifteen members of the club present and following an elaborate three course repast, the remainder of the evening was spent in a social manner.

W. C. T. U. Notice.
Announcement has been made of a change in dates for the meeting of the local chapter of the W. C. T. U. The meeting will be held Nov. 29th instead of the 17th. A complete report on the national convention in Milwaukee will be part of the program and it is expected that the president of the county organization will be present.

Men's Meeting.
Rev. H. A. Meyers will address the Y. M. C. A. Men's meeting at the association building at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Special music will be given.

When a Man Runs.
There are men in this world who will run miles in any weather to avoid talking to a woman who knows more than they do, and knows it, and shows that she knows that she knows it.—Henry Sydney Harrison.

Natural Food of Man.
And God said, Behold, I have given you every herb yielding seed, which is upon the face of the earth, and every tree, in which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for food.—Genesis 1:29.

Power of Human Nature.
After all, whatever is an element of power, if it is properly extracted and applied, is at his command, without question, who can successfully use it. Put in trying to influence people, put human nature under what you do. Remembering what we, ourselves, like and want is to foresee fairly well what the great public will respond to. And there can be little guesswork in getting at this.

A Sign.
When a man boasts much about his high instep it is a sign that he doesn't worry much about the height of his forehead.

When a King is Ill.
And there is this curious psychological fact to be remembered: A serious illness or a death advertisement the doctor exactly as a hanging advertisement the barrister who defended the person hanged. Suppose, for example, a royal personage got something wrong with his throat, or has a pain in his inside. If a doctor effects some trumpery cure with a wet compress or a peppermint lozenge nobody takes the least notice of him. But if he operates on the throat and kills the patient, or extirpates an internal organ and keeps the whole nation palpitating for days while the patient hovers in pain and fever between life and death, his fortune is made. Every rich man who omits to call him in when the same symptoms appear in his household is held not to have done his utmost duty to the patient. The wonder is that there is a king or queen left alive in Europe.—O. B. Shaw, "The Doctor's Dilemma."

Wanted to Sell Her Leg.
Willing, who asserts, to sacrifice a finger, foot, arm or leg in an effort to relieve her poverty, a woman, whose name was not divulged, living in Govans, has written to the physicians of Franklin Square hospital with an unusual and pathetic appeal for financial assistance.

The letter conveys, any the physicians, a sad story of much suffering, as the result of poverty by a woman who was once in good circumstances, but who has recently been reduced to abject destitution. She named no specific price for her sacrifice, according to the doctors, but asked for an early reply if her offer was to be considered. The only restriction that she made was that her name be kept a secret.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

"Old Heads" the Best.
Some of the world's greatest statesmen have proven that it takes the experience and hand of old age to run the machinery of nations. Gladstone was four times prime minister of Great Britain. Long after his fiftieth birthday he extended the island empire until the sun never sets on its dominions. He was guiding the ship of state when he was four score and it was after that age he attempted the greatest task of his life, that of granting home rule to Ireland.

Cling to Inherited Tongue.
After years of effort to spread the English language, the home tongue of the full-blooded Hawaiian is his aboriginal jargon. Exclusive of the half-whites in these islands there is but one family that talks the English language in its home. All the rest are as true to their inherited tongue as they are to their racial hue.

Teach Obedience.
Let children understand that disobedience is sure to be followed by punishment. A child seldom disobeys Nature more than once in touching a hot lamp-glass. It will soon learn to obey you as well. Never allow it to ask why. You know; that is enough.

A Large Attendance.
"What is the cause of all this crowd?" It looks as if a convention of some kind was being held here. "There is. This is the first annual meeting of statesmen who have been whitewashed by investigating committees."

Let children understand that disobedience is sure to be followed by punishment.

Let children understand that disobedience is sure to be followed by punishment.

Let children understand that disobedience is sure to be followed by punishment.

Announcement!

A. G. Devine, Chiropractor, respectfully announces to the people of Evansville and vicinity that she has opened adjusting parlors in the rooms recently vacated by Atty. Fred L. Janes, over Ballard's Jewelry store.

You are cordially invited to come and investigate Chiropractic methods.

Chiropractic is comparatively new, so is Wireless Telegraphy, the Telephone, the Automobile, and the time is not far distant when every town will have its Chiropractor as well as its Medical Doctor.

If you are sick and have tried everything else, try spinal adjustments and get well.

If you are well, come and investigate Chiropractic. You will find it interesting and you will be surprised to find it such a simple effective and common sense method of relieving disease. Everybody welcome.

HOURS: 9 to 11 A. M.; 7 to 8 P. M., daily except Sunday and Monday. 2 to 5 P. M. Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

View of Rock County Training School

In the Jefferson school building this summer the Rock County Teachers' Training School was started and is now in its first regular session. Since the opening of the institution the membership has greatly increased and it is becoming very popular in the county. This is a new idea in the county and is taking hold faster than was even thought possible at first. The picture is a view taken in the shows the students in their places for the opening exercises. The school is located in the Jefferson school, on the third floor, and the equipment is very well chosen and installed. All the studies taught in the schools are studied over and the methods of teaching them are studied.

Little Bed-Time Tales By EDITH HAVENS

Ruth's Birthday

TOMORROW is your birthday, Ruth. Would you like to invite some of your little friends to tea?" said Mrs. Canton.

"Her birthday?" Ruth had forgotten all about it.

"Oh, yes," she said, clapping her hands. "What fun it will be, and then she danced all about the room in her joy."

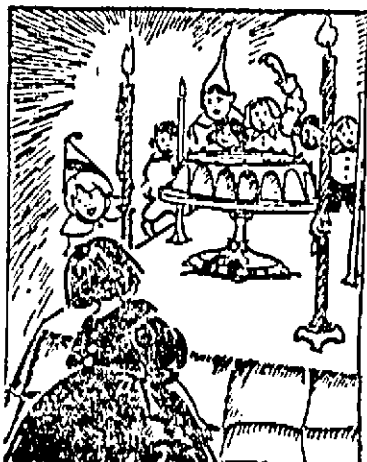

Coax as she would, Ruth couldn't get her mother to tell her just what the party would be like, and she was a very excited little girl when she went to bed that night.

That afternoon unknown to Ruth, Mrs. Canton had sent out twelve tiny letters to twelve of Ruth's playmates, and they had all been asked to be present at a birthday party at Ruth's house on the following afternoon.

The next day was a beautiful day and Ruth could hardly wait for the afternoon to come.

Her mother would not let her look into the front parlor, and Ruth, almost too happy to speak, wondered and wondered what was going on beyond that closed door.

At two o'clock the little guests began the children began to play games—all kinds of fine games. There was pin the tail on the donkey, which was great fun; "on the green carpet," clap in and clap out, and a lot of others. For over an hour they played, and then Mrs. Canton announced that the children would all go into the parlor.

During the good time Ruth had almost forgotten the parlor, and how she shouted with joy with all the children as the great folding doors were opened.

What do you think?

The parlor had been decorated most beautifully with all kinds of flowers, while in the center of the room there stood the most wonderful white table of good things you ever saw. There was ice cream in pretty shaped molds, candy, nuts, sandwiches and fruits, while in the center of it all lay a wonderful birthday cake ablaze with candles. There were ten little lights, one for each year of Ruth's life.

What a feast it was!

"I never was so happy in all my life," whispered Ruth to her mother as she was tucked in bed that night.

And then Ruth went to sleep and dreamed it all over again.

WHAT PUZZLED THE NEWSBOY

He Didn't Understand Primary Cause of Trouble, but Motorman Could Have Told Him.

It was a very busy hour on Forty-second street, and the traffic "cops" were having their hands extremely full, relates the New York Sun. Just as things were starting along, after a complicated blockade, a little newsboy dropped a quarter, and darted out into the street after it, under the nose of a motorman who had just started his car.

The indignant motorman threw on the brakes with a jerk. As the car came to a sudden stop an automobile directly behind it turned sharply to one side to avoid a collision. It skidded, the hood coming under the startled noses of a pair of dray horses. One of the front tires blew up with a loud report.

This was too much for the horses, and they jumped forward together. In another minute the heavily loaded dray was careening down the sidewalk, the people scattering in terror. A lump post was knocked over, and the dray, thrown violently in the other direction, upset, flinging a couple of heavy boxes through a brilliantly lighted display window.

The broken electric lights flared for a minute, then the flimsy trimmings of the window caught fire, and in a few minutes the clanging of the fire department was added to the uproar, and the crowd extended for a full block in either direction.

When the fire was out, and the wreckage was being cleared away, the newsboy, with his quarter safe in his pocket, turned away and started down the street, murmuring to himself: "Gee, I wonder what began all dat fuss!"

Sample of Animal Instinct.

"When I was a barefoot lad," said Mr. Dustin Stux, "I had to spend a good deal of time minding the stock on father's farm. I'll never forget the day when father told me to take a rope and hold a couple of bull calves."

"What did they do?"

"They scratched my hands with the rope and turned around and stepped on me."

"Unruly disposition?"

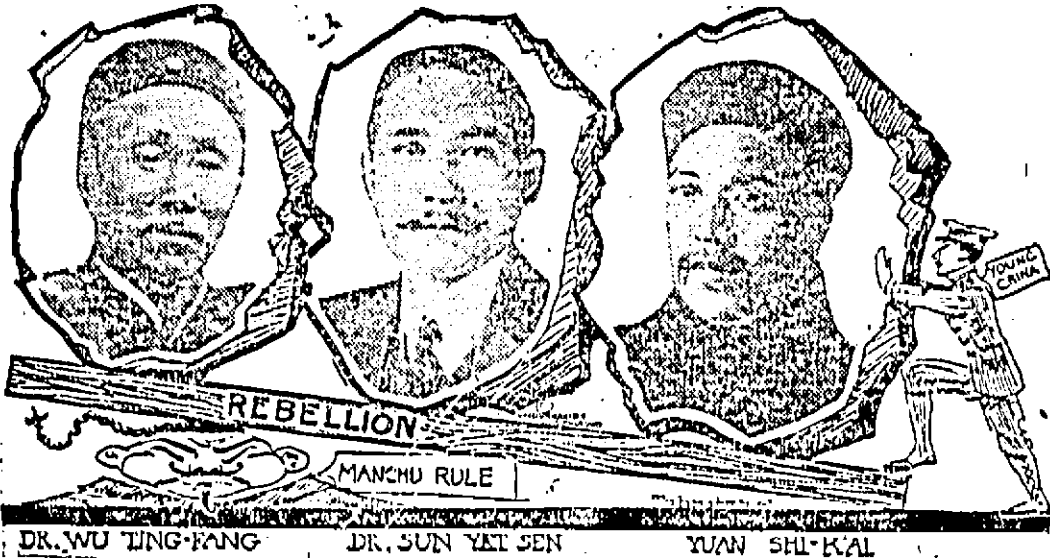

"No. Wonderful instinct. They recognized me at a glance as a small stockholder."—Washington Star.

WEIGHT OF THEIR INFLUENCE CRUSHES MANCHUS.

By throwing their weight on the side of the revolution, Wu Ting-fang, former Chinese minister of Washington and Yuan Shih-kai have accomplished more for the Republican form of government and the entire elimination of the Manchus in China than any single move since the revolution was started.

Dr. Sun Yat-sen will undoubtedly be proclaimed the new President of a new China with Yuan Shih-kai as premier and Wu Ting-fang as Secretary of State. Through this move Wu Ting-fang will have the opportunity to have some weight of Americanizing his native land and it means that in the future both government and public life will be patterned after the great American model.

END OF AN OLD SUPERSTITION

Height of Present New York Buildings Discourages Youngsters There to Seek Fortune.

Said a New York octogenarian: "The height of buildings in New York has dealt a death blow to an old superstition that animated many a country youth who came here to make his fortune 80 years ago. Heaven knows how they came by the belief, but most of those upstate boys came to the city thinking that if they could toss a coin over a house they took a fancy to at the first try, the house would be theirs some day."

"It was one of my surreal convictions, and I put it to a test immediately after paying for my first meal in New York. The only money I had left was an old-fashioned three-cent piece. With that in my hand I walked around looking for a desirable piece of property. Pretty soon a corner lot on which stood a two-story-and-a-half brick house took my eye."

"I had practiced coin throwing in the country, so I let my three-cent piece go for all it was worth over the front of the house and ran around in the back to see where it landed. It went clean over, I know then that that house and lot would be mine in due time, and sure enough they were. People don't woo fortune by flipping coins these days. The fellow whose success depends upon tossing a three-cent piece over the Singer building would be in a pretty bad fix."

NEW SLEEPING QUARTERS FOR NURSES AT MERCY HOSPITAL.

At the southeast corner of MoreyThe upper and lower floors are not hospital a new building has been re-partitioned off but each consists of a cently completed which furnishes a room in which any number of sleeping quarters for the entire forebode may be placed. The use of this of nurses. It is a two-story building, building for sleeping purposes is here having the upper half of the walls official in several ways in that it fur each floor open with heavy canvas which an opportunity for the nurses curtains which may be closed when to enjoy outdoor sleeping and also the weather is exceedingly stormy, leaves more room in the hospital.

Changes in the Palisades. The Palisades on the Hudson are slowly changing. To the traveler of a hundred years ago they were a sheer cliff of clean rock rising in a perpendicular line from the water's edge nearly a thousand feet. Now they are buttressed at the foot by immense deposits of broken rock which fronts have peeled from the cliff. Gradually this buttress is growing higher. The upward growth of this supporting pile is due to the trees—overgrown of various kinds—which have grown seemingly right out of the rocks.

Joke on Composer.

Signor Leoncavallo once had a rather amusing experience. Being in a strange town where "Pagliacci" was being given, he attended the performance to see how it was rendered, and falling into conversation with his neighbor, proceeded, by way of a joke, to criticize the work unmercifully. Next morning he found in the local newspaper a long article reproducing at this statements and headed, "Leoncavallo's opinion of 'Pagliacci'."

If Your Light Costs Too Much it is Because You Don't Use "Mazda Tungsten Lamps"

They cut a five-dollar lighting bill down to two dollars, because they use only two-fifths as much current as the ordinary incandescent lamp. Then they give the nicest light you ever saw for working, matching colors, reading, any purpose.

These are the Tungsten lamps that are used in factories because they are strong and will stand hard usage. Take home enough to try try them out; give them a thorough test; then you'll never use any other lamp in your home, office or factory.

Mortgaging Your Vitality.

Wisdom at high pressure today. Many of us live beyond our means financially, and quite a number of us who are prudent in money matters are quite reckless in the spending of our physical capital. We mortgage our vitality heavily, and sooner or later we will have to pay; though in this matter, we need not as there were no reckoning. We mortgage our vitality by overwork. Tasks press; and every day, we overtax our strength. At first, we do not feel any serious results; and if we do, we think that some time in the future, we will take a rest and pull up. But the first thing we know the future brings us an exhausted treasury of vitality. We have no funds left. We cannot meet the demand of the day's work puts upon us.

We mortgage our vitality with the worry habit. Insidiously, worry saps our strength. Before we realize the damage that is being done, we are nervous, exhausted, down with nervous prostration.

Hurry is another tax upon vitality. There is a difference between being expeditious and hurrying. Expedition knows what to do, has a plan and system, and gets work out of the way quickly and easily. Hurry works under a pressure and strain that eats up nerve force as a fire eats through a flimsy, ramshackle building.

There are many bad habits that are a mortgage on vitality. Every one knows them, and yet he recklessly puts this large mortgage upon his health, blindly trusting, that he will never have to pay. But he does have to pay. He pays in heart disease, and stomach trouble, and a score of other distressing ills that bring him to the prime of life a physical wreck instead of a picture of vigor and health.

Thus, many of us who would never think of incurring financial debt, run ourselves heavily into physical debt. Yet the one is just as imprudent as the other. And one is quite as much our own doing as the other. If we overwork constantly, hurry, worry, do those things which use up more vitality than we make, there is going to be some day, a big deficit. And we will have to face, just as we must face the results of living beyond our financial means. And if we find that we are doing this, surely, it is the part of wisdom to call a halt and get upon a sound physical basis of living. Life when rightly lived is so joyous a thing, it is a pity to become bankrupt before our span is half over.

Barbara Boyd.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

IN ALL that concerns eating and drinking, company, climate and ways of life, community of taste is to be sought for. It would be trying, for instance, to keep head and hand with an early riser or a voracious glutton. In matters of art and intellect, I believe it is of no consequence.

"For there are differences which no habit nor affection can reconcile, and the Bohemian must not intermarry with the Puritan," Stevenson.

"I think we are well suited to each other because we are such exact opposites."

So I heard a woman say of herself and her fiancé. In answer to my query as to how they were opposites, she further explained that he was light haired and she dark, that he liked to read and she didn't, that she was fond of society and he was reserved and quiet, that he liked cold weather, and she warm, and several other similar differences that I cannot recall.

As to the effect of the contrast between light and dark hair on their matrimonial happiness it would be difficult to predict, but as to the effect of the other differences cited, I should think the most simple-minded could be an accurate prophet.

"That is, unless he were blinded by that most foolish and misunderstood of catchwords—"the attraction of opposites."

I think that the notion that the more two people differ from each other, the more natural it is that they should love each other and be happy together, because of the attraction of opposites, is a popular fallacy that does actual harm.

Again, and again I have heard people refer to differences in taste and attitude as likely to promote a happy match—"It's the attraction of opposites you know."

If there is anything at all in the "attraction of opposites" it is, of course, in the attraction between opposites in temperament.

It may be that the phlegmatic and highstrung, the even tempered and the impatient, the lover of action and the conservative objection-raiser, the reserved and the chattering, get along well together, although it has always seemed to me that people of similar temperaments are quite as likely to understand and hear with each other.

But that contrary of tastes should ever be regarded as a desirable condition in the Silesian-ship of marriage, would be unbelievable if it were not so.

Similar tastes make similar interests.

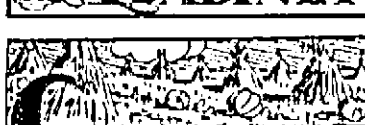

And every interest which married folk share is one or more between them, one more bond to counteract the repelling power of selfishness and individual interests and the natural tendency of souls towards isolation.

Of course, you may point me out two people with widely diverging tastes who can show you a blind man who is a leader in his community. And you will not think that he attained that position because of his blindness, will you? You will know that what he has done was in spite of his handicap and not because of it.

I firmly believe that any two people of widely diverging tastes and interests are undertaking a mighty perilous voyage when they embark on the seas of matrimony together.

And I wish that this foolish catchword, "the attraction of opposites" could somehow be stricken from the language for I believe that a misinterpretation of it has caused more young folks to be mistaken in regard to their fitness for each other than we would like to reckon.

CHANGE is the sauce that sharpens appetite.

We may live without love,
What is passion but plating?
But where is the man
That can live without dining?

SEASONABLE DISHES.

Here is a dish that will serve well at either the breakfast, supper or luncheon table:

Egg Relish.—Try out two slices of fat salt pork cut into cubes. In a brown a cupful of bread cut in cubes; add an equal amount of cold dried potato, and when brown add two eggs slightly beaten. Heat slowly, stirring constantly until the egg is cooked. Season with salt and pepper and garnish with parsley.

Cream of Carrot Soup.—Wash, scrape and cut in slices a pint of carrots. Boil these in boiling salted water until soft enough to rub through a sieve. In a saucepan put two tablespoonfuls of butter, and when boiling hot add two tablespoonfuls of flour. Add a pint of milk and the carrot pulp with enough hot water to make a quart. Save the liquor in which the carrots were cooked for the water. Into a tureen put a tablespoonful of chopped parsley and a yolk of an egg. Turn in the hot soup, stirring carefully, and serve at once.

Potato Cake.—Cream a cup of butter, add two cups of sugar and a cup of mashed potato, half a cup of milk, one cup of chopped rutabaga, one cup of chopped walnuts, two tablespoonfuls of baking powder, and cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg to taste. Add four well-beaten eggs and flour to make a rather stiff mixture. The thinner the mixture, however, the finer will be the texture of the cake if it has been well beaten.

Cocoanut Soup.—Grate the meat of one fresh coconut or the dry may be used if the sugar is soaked out of it in milk. Cook a tablespoonful of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour and a teaspoonful of curry powder. Add a quart of milk and water, a pint of each, and the coconut. Simmer a few minutes, add salt, pepper and a cup of cooked peas.

SOME PROTEID MENUS.

The Proteid meal is best eaten at noon, the carbohydrate in the evening as long advised in these hints and recently in a work on diet by Sir L. Brunt. If no breakfast is eaten, dinner may be eaten at 10 or 11 if convenient and supper at 5 o'clock. Good menus for proteid meals are:

- No. 1.—Beans, whole wheat bread, peanuts, uncooked, or walnuts.
- No. 2.—Cornbread, baked potato, rice.
- No. 3.—Cornbread, beans, rice.
- No. 4.—Toast, poached eggs, rice.
- No. 5.—Toast, macaroni and cheese.
- No. 6.—Fresh fish, graham bread, cheese.
- No. 7.—Baked beans, graham bread, macaroni or cottage cheese.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

PLENTY OF DEER BUT NO TOBACCO.

By A. W. MACY.

Beer and tobacco are supposed by some people to be about the same footing, but a certain company in London 200 years ago did not seem to think so. It was the business of this company to look after the welfare of the emigrants who had gone out from the mother country to seek homes in the New World. In 1620 it sent over the good ship Talbot, loaded with provisions, clothing, etc., to the Massachusetts bay colony by the same ship the company sent a long list of instructions regarding their conduct, telling them what they should and should not do. One of the things they were forbidden to do was to cultivate and use tobacco, "unless it be some small quantity for mere necessity, and for pleasure for the preservation of their health, and that the same be taken privately by ancient men and none other."

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Genuine Slow Caked Thanksgiving Pumpkin Pies, With Corner Slices.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

The squash pie, like the sweet potato pie, is in a class by itself and should never be set forth, as it often is, as a substitute for a pumpkin pie in whose praise the poet Whitaker said: "None sweeter or better 'er smoked from an oven or crested a platter." The poet knew pumpkin pies as they were baked in olden times in large, thin or shallow earthen dishes, was often square or oblong with a chance to eat one or two slices between the much prized corner slices.

The true pumpkin pie must have a crinkly satin-like skin over the top and it is always baked open faced. In these modern days it is sometimes served with beaten cream piped over it as a garnish but fills are not becoming or necessary to the well made pumpkin pie. However, a cube of rich cheese is a fine pumping note to the savory slice of pumpkin pie. Our ancestors who habitually ate this combination did not know anything of the theory of food values but unconsciously, or by instinct, took a well balanced ration in the pumpkin pie and cheese eaten either as a part of a regular meal or as a bathing.

The square pies are gone with the cooks who could make a fine pie from the common field pumpkin and who had the sense to select a good specimen and skill to cook it to a rich dryness. The enormous pumpkin exhibited at agricultural fairs is now used solely for cattle feeding but the little round sugar variety that resembles a sugar orange is of finer texture. A fine pumpkin cooked and stirred easily for use but the sugar pumpkin can be steamed and made ready in a short time. It is true that the pie will not have exactly the flavor and color of the old sort, and they were brought about largely by the prolonged cooking and the molasses used for sweetening, but it is more to the modern taste.

To prepare the pumpkin, slice, remove seeds, stringy portion and rinse, then cut in inch lengths. Steam or cook in as little water as possible without scorching the pumpkin in the fat. Use an asbestos mat as a precaution against burning. Sift through a wire strainer or use a fine vegetable ricer.

Economical cooks sometimes used to dust corn meal over a greased plate, then fill it and when the pie was baked the meal formed a very thin crust. It was only poor folks who resorted to this sort of crust. The accepted rule now, as one has heard years ago, is to use a thin layer of any good paste shortened with butter, hard or cream, cut in inch beyond the edge of the tin and then turn under and pinch into scallops.

Pumpkin pie should be baked in a moderate oven with good heat on the under side to prevent soaking the under crust. The gas oven gives a good, well baked under crust like that ensured by the steady heat of the old brick oven. The ordinary wood or coal stove is not so sure.

You cannot make a pumpkin pie exactly by rule of thumb because moisture in the stiff pumpkin varies, no matter how carefully it is cooked. It is, however, safe to use one egg, or a rounding tablespoon of cracker crumbs that if eggs are scarce, to each pie. Do not use too many eggs or the pie becomes a sort of custard. Beat the egg until it froths and is well broken up but not light as for cake. For a very plain pie use one cup of prepared pumpkin, two cups of hot milk, three tablespoonfuls of molasses, a pinch of salt, a rounding tablespoon of sugar, one even teaspoon of ginger and one egg.

A good rule for general use calls for one and one-half cups of sugar, one egg, one even teaspoon of cinnamon and one-half even teaspoon each of salt and ginger.

For two large pies use three cups of prepared pumpkin, five cups of hot milk, two even teaspoons of ginger, a pinch of salt and of cinnamon, one cup of sugar, one even tablespoon of butter melted in the milk and two eggs.

A richer filling is made as follows: Four cups of prepared pumpkin, four beaten eggs, one tablespoon of molasses, one and three-quarters cups of sugar, four tablespoonfuls of melted butter, five cups of hot milk and a salt spoon of each of cinnamon, mace and ginger.

The Deepest Hole.

The deepest hole in the world up to date is the boring begun ten years ago at Czuchow, Silesia, with the object of attaining a depth of 2,550 metres, and which has now reached a depth of 2,240 metres (7,347 feet). The hole is 41 centimetres (17 inches) in diameter at the top and diminishes progressively to nine centimetres.

QUAINT GOWN AND BONNET.

A pretty maid of sweet sixteen, whom I aided with her mother trying on wraps in the makes department in one of our great stores showed admirable taste in her attire upon the part of the person who had designed and executed her costume.

She wore a gown so quaintly simple that it seemed eloquent of girlhood and innocence and a bonnet which matched it not only in color but in spirit. The dress was of soft gray crepe made with a high waist, and a small skirt. Bands of narrow knife pleating outlined with narrower puffings of the crepe finished skirt and sleeves and appeared at belt and about the neck the ends crossing above the waist line in front to form a little vest effect.

Effect of cream net lace extended from the belt at the back to fasten on the bust with a buckle wreath of tiny pink ribbons in a field effect while a yolk of cream net with high boned collar finished the neck. The bonnet was of gray velvet made like a little hood with upturned points at the sides, rimmed in silver tulle and braided edged with Adolphe Chiffonelle fur and faced or lined with rose colored satin. This costume was one which the home dressmaker and milliner could very easily duplicate in its entirety. As a setting of the fresh young face and thick blonde braids of its wearer it was as delightful as one could possibly imagine.

DAINTY WAIST IN DARNED NET.

This should be a season of joyous activity upon the part of those women who love to endeavor for as many of the temptations which the shops are offering owe their charm in a large measure to decorative stitchery.

The pretty young girl who sat next to me at the matinee yesterday had either picked up a rare treasure or found some French importers or brought a thing of beauty with her own fair fingers, in the waist of cream net which she wore with her suit of black velvet.

certized or linen floss. It was made in the panel style with points over the shoulders and it was this panel front and back and the borders of the sleeves which had received the embellishment of embroidery.

An odd and attractive feature was the pointed effect accomplished by continuing the panel about four inches below the waist line. The simulated yoke of net ended in a high boned collar free from any hint of adornment.

For wear with this filmy garment of fairy like lace work my neighbor in a girlish to dull gray broadwaists with a pattern in silver enamel with a buckle of gold bronze cord embroidered links.

STILL TIME TO HAVE ARTICLE IN CONTEST

How Do You Make Your Preparations For the Winter Months? Is Interesting Topic?

While this is not the Indian summer period still it is not as cold as it will be later. Farmers are still putting away their winter vegetables and housewives hurrying to finish their preparations for the winter months.

The present contest, which the Feature Editor of the Gazette has arranged for closes on the 15th, which is next Wednesday. There is plenty of time now for the contestants to send in their articles so that it may be written with the other entries.

Contests are open on one side of the paper only. Limit your article to five hundred words and address to the Feature Editor, Janesville Gazette, in the hands of the Feature Editor by Wednesday next and try for one of the following prizes:

- First Prize—Set of Dishes.
- Second Prize—Half Dozen Silver Teaspoons.
- Third Prize—Dance Courtesy Cook Book.
- Fourth Prize—Family Scales.
- Fifth Prize—Vacuum Bottle.

Good Work of Wireless.

Throughout the world there is a shipwreck about every sixteen hours, and the general adoption of the wireless system of communication promises to cut this rate down very materially. It is estimated that the system has already been the means of saving marine property valued at $12,000,000, and of saving nearly six thousand lives.—Philadelphia Record.

A MAIL CARRIER'S LOAD

Seems heavier when he has a weak back and kidney trouble. Fred Duerksen, Mail Carrier at Atchison, Kansas, says: "I have been bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and had a severe pain across my back. Whenever I carried a heavy load of mail, my kidney trouble increased. Some time ago, I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills and since taking them I have gotten entirely rid of all my kidney trouble and am as sound now as ever." Foley's Kidney Pills are tonic in action, and quick in results. Try them. Badger Drug Co.

AX-GRINDING

A Science With Some Dealers—Done at the Expense of the Public.

"There is nothing 'just as good' as Newbro's Herpicide. Some dealers will even go so far as to tell you they have something better.

"That dealer has an axe to grind. You can't stop his grinding, but you can prevent him grinding at your expense.

There is one sure, swift way to do it.

Go where you can get what you ask for.

You won't be obliged to this very often, as fortunately the majority of druggists are honest and conscientious.

Newbro's Herpicide has been so long and favorably known as the original dandruff germ destroyer that no one should be deceived.

When you need a hair remedy, you don't want one which merely promises to kill the dandruff germ and prevent the hair from falling.

You want one that will do it.

Herpicide does it.

The hair becomes soft and lustrous. There is life, snap and beauty where formerly the hair was dead, dull and brittle.

Newbro's Herpicide is sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

Applications of this wonderful prophylactic may be obtained at the best barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

Send two cents in postage or silver to The Herpicide Co., Dept. H, Detroit, Mich., for a nice sample of Herpicide and a booklet telling all about the hair.

Thought for Today

By MRS. ROBERT M. LAFOLLETTE.

THE WRITTEN PLAY.

In Europe plays are always published, and share and share with the novel the interest of the reading public. There is a tendency in literature, as in all things, to take the short cut, and the drama has greater advantage in direct appeal, swift movement, and power to hold the attention next to experience itself. Pharo, Shaw, and others in England are familiar to us; Moliere and the French masters of the day are on the book shelves and tables of those who keep in touch with the world's literature; while Ibsen and Hauptmann are read in America as in Germany; while Ibsen and Hauptmann are translated, and seem to belong to us. It is through their plays that we are able to keep in touch with the advanced European thought.

All this interest should create a greater drama here at home. Some of our dramatists like Josephine Preston Peabody and Percy Mackaye have achieved literary and dramatic success that gives the hope of larger national development. Every encouragement should be given the growing taste for dramatic reading. The drama language of America is doing a great work in having plays and giving its approval to those worthy of it.

Publishers in this country have regarded plays as a bad financial investment, and it has been practically impossible to get plays to read even though their stage production attracted wide attention. Those who saw them and wished to study them had no chance and people removed from the centers were deprived of the pleasure of knowing them. When dramatists are convinced there is a demand they will meet it, and the publisher knowing his work will be subjected to a more careful study and criticism than is possible in watching it performed, will be inspired with higher ideals and deeper purpose.

The Philosopher of Folly.

"The reason undertakers grow rich," says the Philosopher of Folly, "is that their patrons never live to stand them off."

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Saturday, November 11, 1871.—The election returns of Milwaukee show a falling off, in both city and county, of 729 democratic votes as compared with the previous state election two years ago.

The first snow storm of the season occurred at La Crosse on the 9th inst. An inch or so fell, which quickly disappeared.

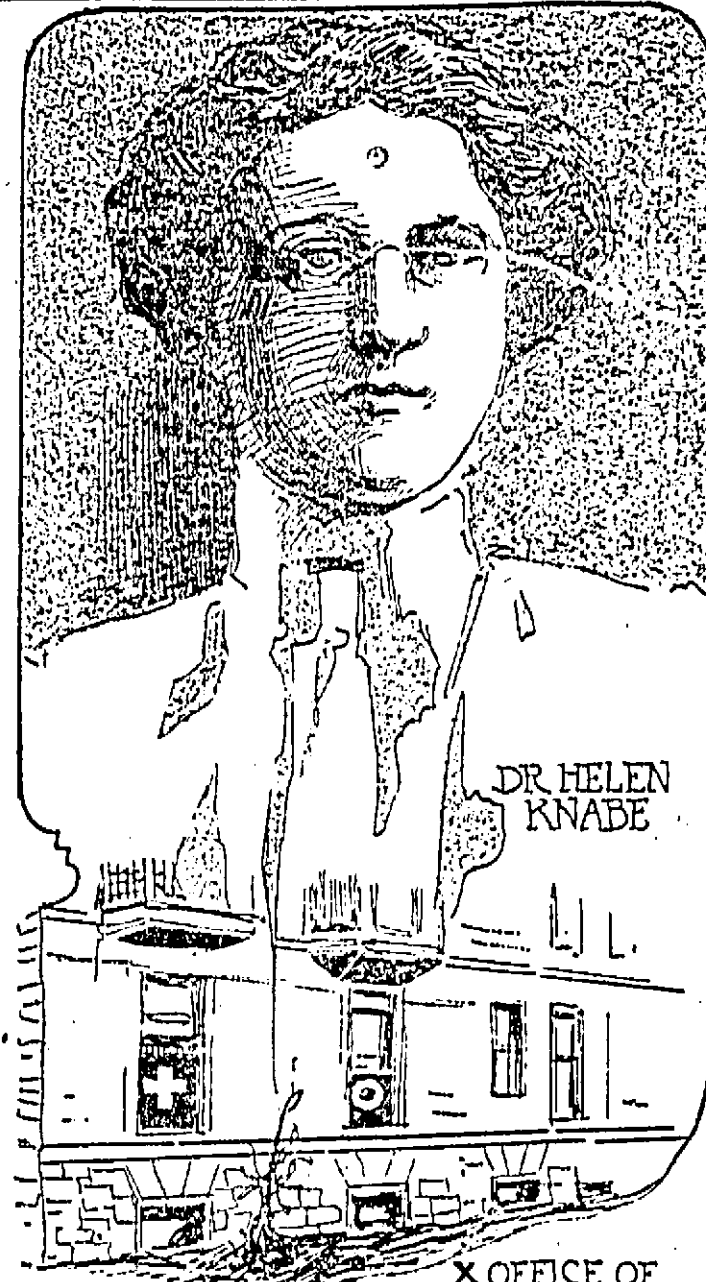

A barn belonging to William Canary, near the depot, was burned last night between ten and eleven o'clock. It is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. His loss is about two hundred dollars. His insurance expired yesterday noon, so that the loss falls upon the owner of the property. The Washington steamer reached the scene and took action from a distance and was thus able to protect the surrounding buildings. The value of a distant thus proven, would it not be well for the city to construct a few reservoirs for the use of the fire department in case of fire. Horses to draw the engines are also needed in order to make them effective. The Water Witch steamer was unable to reach the fire last night because men enough could not be brought together to draw the machine.

Last evening, just after dark, a narrow band of luminous vapor was noticed stretching across the sky from the eastern to the western horizon and about ten degrees south of the zenith. This was visible about half an hour, and shortly after its disappearance a brilliant Aurora lighted up the northern sky, continuing for several hours. The night was clear and still, and the phenomenon exhibited itself to a great advantage.

Standing pools were covered with a thin coating of ice this morning.

Three men drew the plunger steamer from the harbor house to the east side engine house last night.

VICAR HAPPY THOUGH BLIND.

Rev. Groville Colin Pope, the Blind Vicar of Cornworthy, London, Eng.—The appointment of the Rev. Groville Colin Pope, the blind vicar of St. Mark's, Dorchester, as Vicar of Cornworthy, Devon, is an interesting recognition of triumph over difficulties. Although he lost his sight at the age of 12 he took his B.

A. and M. A. degrees at Oxford, studied at a theological college for the bishop's examinations and has since done good work in three parishes. The picture was taken at Mr. Pope's home and shows him enjoying a game of chess. He claims that he has learned how to be happy though blind.

Must Have Been Work of Art.

Critically the friend of the artist regarded the weird conglomeration of color which stood on the easel before him. He stepped back, bent forward, looked at it sideways, and twisted his head in all directions.

"What do you think of it?" questioned the aspiring R. A.

"Good! Very good!" his friend answered. "It's a perfect portrait; only—ah—I should be inclined to criticize one little detail. The original is scarcely so red in the face as you have painted him."

The artist gasped. "What on earth are you talking about?" he asked.

"Your picture! It's your uncle, or cousin!"

"My uncle?" cried the amazed wielder of the brush. "That—that my uncle? Why, it's the sunset. Don't you see the title, 'Sunset and Evening Star?'"—Answers.

Men Favored to Teach Girls.

Arguments as to whether men or women should be employed to educate girls are being heard a great deal nowadays. Many women think men teachers exert a greater influence on girls and make them do more studying. Others contend women teachers have a more refining influence. "I am tired," said one man, "of the constant demand for women as governesses for girls. I am convinced governesses have a narrowing influence on girls, whereas well-trained men have a broadening mental influence. It is true the majority of studies may be taught more effectively by men and that their minds are more logical. It is true women may have greater tact, more sympathy than men, but in the training of children the man's mind, being broader, has a more lasting influence."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE RIGHT KIDNEY MEDICINE

J. E. Parker, 2021 No. 10th St., Ft. Smith, Ark., says that he had taken many kinds of kidney medicine, but did not get better until he took Foley's Kidney Pills. No matter how long you have had kidney trouble, nor at what stage of the disease your case may be, you will find quick and permanent benefit by the use of Foley's Kidney Pills. They also regulate the action of the urinary organs. Start taking them now. Badger Drug Co.

Don't.

Don't permit the wild demonstrations of temper, the screaming and kicking which one sometimes—in fact, too often—witnesses in the little one. They demoralize both parent and child. They need never be if the very first demonstration is controlled and checked. Mothers and fathers, don't forget that in nine cases out of ten, if you have a spoiled, disagreeable child to deal with it is your fault. Begin as soon as the babies are born to train them in the right way, and they will grow up happy, healthy and wise.—Exchange.

He Met the New "Feller."

"What did you do on your way to school this morning, Harold?" asked Harold's mamma.

"Nothing much. I met the new fellow that's moved in next door to us."

"But the teacher has just written me a note informing me that you were a half-hour late for school."

"That ain't nothing. You'd better see the new kid next door. He never got to school at all."

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional treatment. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; thus cases of deafness are really cases of a running catarrh of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

MISS MINERVA and WILLIAM GREEN HILL

By FRANCES BOYD CALHOUN

"On my what?" she asked, looking at him severely over her paper. "I mean if you're not," he hastily explained. "Don't you think blue patches is the most natural looking?" "What are you driving at, William?" she asked; but without waiting for his answer she went on with her reading. The child was silent for a long time, his little mind busy, then he began: "Aunt Minerva—" a second, then dropped her eyes to the paper where an interesting article on Foreign Missions held her attention. "Aunt Minerva, I married—Aunt Minerva, I married my skin to-day."

"Let me see the place," she said, absently, her eyes glued to a paragraph describing a cannibal feast. "It's a—"

Another long silence ensued. Bill resolved to settle the matter. "Aunt Minerva, I want to say my prayers and go to bed."

She laid her paper down and he dropped to his knees by her side. He usually sprawled all over her lap during his lengthy devotions, but tonight he clasped his little hands and reared back like a rabbit on its haunches.

After he had rapidly repeated the Lord's Prayer, which he had recently learned, and had invoked blessings on all his new friends and never-to-be-forgotten old ones, he concluded with:

"An' O Lord, you done kop me fom meddlin' with Aunt Minerva's nose any mo', an' you done kop me fom gittin' any mo' Easter eggs, an' playin' any mo' injun, an' you done kop me fom lettin' Mr. Alkerson done come agin, an' now, O Lord, please don't let me worry the very 'stintest outer Aunt Minerva any mo' 'n you can help, like she said I done this mornin', an' please, if it will be done, don't let me hear the next new breeches what she'll gimme like I done ruin these here what I got on."

CHAPTER XVII.

A Green-Eyed Billy. "Have some candy?" said Miss Cecilia, offering a big box of bonbons to Billy, who was visiting her.

"Where'd you get 'em?" he asked, as he helped himself generously. "Maurice sent them to me this mornin'."

Billy put all his candy back into the box. "I don't believe I want none of your candy," he said, scowling darkly. "I reckon you like him better 'n me any-how, don't you?"

"I love you dearly," she replied. The child stood in front of her and looked her squarely in the eye. His little form was drawn to its full, proud would recognize it anywhere."

"Is he ever kiss you yet?" asked the child.

"I heard that you and Jimmy whipped Ed Brown because he imitated your own particular whistle. Did you?"

"How many times is he kiss you?" asked Billy.

The young girl put her arm around him and tried to nuzzle his little body against her own.

"I'm too big, anyway, for your real sweetheart," she said. "Why, by the time you are large enough to marry I should be an old maid. You must have Frances or Lina for your sweetheart."

"An' let you have Maurice?" he sneered.

She stepped to lay her flushed cheek against his own.

"Honey," she softly said, "Maurice and I are going to be married soon; I love him very much and I want you to love him too."

He pushed her roughly from him. "An' you jus' 'celved me all the time," he cried, "an' me a-lovin' you better'n anybody I ever see since I's born? An' you a Sunday-school teacher? I ain't never a-goin' to trust nobody no mo'. Good-by, Miss Cecilia."

She caught his hand and held it fast. "I want you and Jimmy to be my little pages at the wedding, and wear dear little white satin suits all trimmed with gold braid!"

He was enthusiastic and aroused his interest. "And Lina and Frances can be little flower-girls and we'll have such a beautiful wedding."

"Jimmy an' Lina an' Frances can be all the pages an' flower-girls an' brides an' grooms they wants to, but you can't rope me in," he scornfully replied. "I's done with you an' I ain't never goin' to have me no' sweet heart long 'n I live."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Closer Than a Brother.

It was a bad, rainy day. Jimmy and Billy were playing in Sarah Jane's cabin, she, however, being in happy ignorance of the fact. Her large slippers, worn to the prechening the night before, were hanging on the back of a chair.

"Ain't I glad I don't have to wear no corset when I puts on long pants?" remarked Billy, pointing to the article. "Ain't that a big one? It's twice 'n big 'n Aunt Minerva's."

"My mamma wears a big corset, too," said Jimmy; "I like fat women 'nother slight better 'n lean ones. Miss Minerva's 'bout the skinniest woman they is; when I get married I'm going to pick me out the fattest wife I can find, so when you get in her lap at night for her to rock you to sleep you'll have a soft place to put your head, while she snuggles to you."

"The major—he's mo' plump enough for two," said Billy, taking down the slippers and trying to look them around him.

"It sho' is big," he said; "I believe it's big 'nough to go 'round both of us."

"Let's see if 't ain't," was the other boy's ready suggestion. He stood behind Billy and they put the slippers around both little bodies, then to come."

"Don't nobody pay no 'tention to Jimmy," he replied contemptuously; "he ain't nothin' but a baby, an' though other mens can come if you wants 'em to; but, said Billy, with a lover's unerring intuition, "I ain't a-goin' to stand for that long-legged, sore-top Maurice Richmond a-trottin' his great big carlines down here ev'ry minute, I wish Aunt Minerva'd let me put on long pants tomorrow so's we could get married."

"He ought sight of a new ring sparkling on his finger."

"Who give you that ring?" he asked sharply.

"A little bird brought it to me," she said, trying to speak gayly and blushing again.

"A big red-headed peckerwood," said Billy savagely.

"Maurice loves you, too"—she hoped to conciliate him; "he says you are the brightest kid in town."

"Kiss me," she said, and he kissed her on the cheek. "Kiss me," she said, and he kissed her on the cheek. "Kiss me," she said, and he kissed her on the cheek.

"She hid her embarrassment in a laugh. "Don't be foolish, Billy," she replied. "I'll bet he's kissed you more'n fifty hundred times."

"There's Jimmy whistling for you," said Miss Cecilia. "How do you two boys make that peculiar whistle? I while, with much squeezing and giggling, Billy looked them safely up the front. The boys got in front of Sarah Jane's one looking-glass and danced about laughing with glee.

"We're like the twines what was growed together like mamma and me 'bout," declared the younger child.

Presently they began to feel uncomfortable, especially Jimmy, whose fat, round little middle was tightly compressed.

"Here, unhook this thing, Billy, and let's take her off," he said. "I'm 'bout to pop open."

"All right," agreed his companion. He tugged and pulled, but could get only the top and bottom hooks unclasped; the middle ones refused to budge.

"I can't get these here hooks to come loose," Billy said.

Jimmy put his short, fat arms around him and tried his hand, but with no better success. The slippers were such a snug fit that the hooks seemed glued.

"We sho' is in a fix," said Billy gloomily; "look like God all time lettin' us get in trouble."

"You think of more fool stunts to do, William Hill, than any boy they is," cried the other; "you all time want to get us hooked up in Sarah Jane's corset and you all time can't get nobody loose. What you want to get us hooked up in this thing for?"

"You done it y'self," defended the boy in front with rising passion. "Squeeze in, Jimmy; we jus' bound to get outter this 'fore somebody finds it out."

He backed the other child close to the wall and pressed so hard against him that Jimmy screamed aloud and began to pound him on the head with his chubby fists.

Billy would not submit tamely to any such treatment. He reached his hand behind him and gave the smaller boy's cheek a merciless pinch. The fight was on. The two little boys, leaped up tightly as they were in a stout pair of slippers, pinched and scratched, and kicked and jerked.

Suddenly Billy, leaning heavily against Jimmy, threw him flat on his back and fell on top of him.

Bonnie Dick, sitting on the floor, had up to this time watched the proceedings with an interested eye; now, thinking murder was being committed, he opened his big, red mouth and emitted a howl that could be heard half a mile. It immediately brought his mother to the open door. When she saw the children squirming on the floor in her only corset, her indignation knew no bounds.

Railroad Man Writes Remarkable Letter

In 1903 and 1904, I was a terrible sufferer for about five months with kidney and bladder trouble. I could not sleep nights. One doctor said I was going into consumption and gave me up to die. The two other doctors just received no help from either of them and am sure I would have been in my grave had I not seen your advertisement in the "Marquette Daily Eagle Star." After taking several bottles of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root I was entirely cured.

In the last two years I have been a railroad fireman and have passed two examinations for my kidneys successfully so that I know that my kidneys are in excellent condition now as a result of your great preparation.

Yours very truly,
GEORGE KENNEL,
1095 15th Ave. So., Minneapolis, Minn.

Personally appeared before me this 25th of September, 1909, George Kenkel, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

ALWAYS DEMAND FOR TEETH

One of Pawnbrokers' Best Lines, and Incidentally a Doon to the Poor of Big City.

A ghastly little heap of false teeth, both upper and lower sets, lay in a corner of the pawnbroker's window, amongst second-hand shoes, rusty flat-irons, old clocks and so on.

"Any sale for second-hand false teeth?" the pawnbroker cried. "Why, bo, there ain't a more saleable commodity going. I'll advance money on a good upper set of false teeth as quick as on a gold watch."

Just then an old woman in a dirty black shawl entered.

"Let me look at the false teeth in the window—an upper set," she said.

The pawnbroker, with a wink at the reporter, brought out three double handfuls of teeth. These the poor old woman placed, one set after another, in her winking mouth. The sixth set she pronounced a good fit. Paying for it with dimes and nickels out of a worn purse, she departed contentedly, the teeth wrapped in a piece of newspaper.

"Oh, I tell ye," said the pawnbroker jubilantly, "there's nothin' like second-hand teeth. I only gave 30 cents on that set, and I got one and a quarter for it. Not bad profits, hey?"

HAD A NAUTICAL CHRISTENING

Sea Captain Knew Only One Form of Ceremony and Did His Duty as He Saw It.

Some years ago a slow sailing vessel, when some 600 miles out from Liverpool, picked up a lusty youngster of five years lashed to a mast.

The captain took a great liking to him, called him his son and decided that the little chap must be christened—one of the few things which he knew must be attended to in the case of children.

Of course there was no chaplain aboard, so the captain himself undertook the ceremony. He gathered the men about him, and with a mixed knowledge of his duties he glared about him and asked whether any one knew just cause why the boy should not be christened.

"If there is," he roared, "speak up like a man or forever hold your tongue."

Then he suddenly cracked a bottle of wine above the boy's head and christened him.

The ocean wall is now settled down—a steady longshoreman, but he still relates with satisfaction the story of his christening.

The Building of Life.

Life is a building. It rises slowly day by day, through the years. Every new lesson we learn lays a block on the edifice which is rising silently within us. Every experience, every touch of another life on ours, every influence that impresses us, every book we read, every conversation we have, every act of our commonest days, adds something to the inviolable building.—J. ## An Innovation in Oil Heaters

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater, with its drums enameled in turquoise, is an ornament to any room, whether in the country or city home.

No home is quite complete without a Perfection Oil Heater. It is a necessity in the fall and spring, when it is too warm to start the regular heating apparatus, and too cool to be without heat. In the midst of winter it is often convenient as an auxiliary heater, as there are always some cold corners in a house.

The enameled heater always presents a nice appearance, as the enamel will not tarnish or burn off. It is not an "enamel paint," but it is the same as the enamel of your cooking utensils.

The Perfection is the most reliable and convenient portable heating device you can find. An automatically-locking flame spreader prevents turning the wick high enough to smoke.

Christian Art of Getting Mad

By Rev. INGRAM E. HILL
Pastor of North Shore Baptist Church,
Chicago

TEXT—He ye angry and sin not.—13th. IV, 28.

It is a great thing to know how to get real angry without making a fool of one's self. Not everybody knows how to do it. It is an accomplished art, the ability to get mad like a gentleman. To know when to get angry is a criterion of character. It is an accomplishment which is not learned in the schools. It is acquired in the relentless training of practical experience.

It is not a sin to get angry. Any man with half an ounce of ginger in his system ought to get angry occasionally. Temper is the impress of God upon the soul. It is the mark of personality and intellectual stamina. The scriptures say that God is angry with the wicked every day. Jesus got angry. Can you not see him standing at the temple door? Can you not see the market scenes which were enacted there? Can you not see his flaming countenance blaze fierce and glorious? Can you not see the miraculous energy of his personality as he cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple and said unto them: 'My house shall be called a house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves.'

Christianity is something more than a religion of love. Jesus said: 'I came not to send peace, but a sword.' Passivity may be all right for weaklings, but action is the birthright of heroes. The man who tries to be sweet with everybody will find some day that he is nothing but a lemon.

It is very easy, however, to get angry foolishly. Sometimes it is proper to get angry, and sometimes it is not. It may be proper at times for a man to get angry with the janitor. It may be proper at times for a man to get angry with the umpire. It may be proper at times for a man to get angry with the family upstairs. But it is never, never proper for a man to get angry with his wife. There is many a man who will say many things to his wife that he would not think of saying to his chauffeur. Temper is good. A bad temper is what you have made of a good thing. A rifle is a good thing in good hands. But when it has become rusted and out of repair it is going to explode some day in the hands of some cheerful idiot who did not know it was loaded. If your temper gets the best of you what you need is to go off to the repair shop and be made over. These fits of temper, this sour disposition, this iceberg atmosphere, this spiteful spirit are as contrary to the Christian as light is opposed to darkness.

Tell me, what do you get mad about? That is the practical question. A man calls you a liar and you retort in similar language. But men are making God a liar every day and you do not get angry. Wherever there are wrongs to be righted, wherever there are evils to be trampled under foot, wherever there is justice to be meted out, wherever there is iniquity in high places or low, there is your opportunity to show of what stuff you are made.

Somebody trends on your corn and you get mad at him. This very night a courtly and attractive son of perdition will lure a girl in her teens to one of the wineries of this prodigal city. He will give to her a drink that will inflame every passion and drench her forth to her ruin and laugh like a devil over the havoc he has wrought. If you are going to get angry, in God's name get angry at something worth while.

We are in the midst here of a society which is fond of wine and joy rides and clandestine flirtations. A society that is rotten to the core. Glorious resorts of doubtful character haunt their disregard of high morality. Friends in human shape are committing at our very doors. There is a time to be angry. There is a time for Christian men to speak out, and that time is now. When the good people wake from their lethargy and begin to tackle something that is really worth their mettle, then shall right be triumphant and justice win the day.

The Law of Love.
The consecrated Christian brings to the lowliest duties the loftiest motives. His consecration to Christ carries with it consecration to the service of his brother men. The law of Christ is the law of love. We fulfill it in doing well our part of the world's work as well as in direct acts of sympathy and burden bearing. The holy man is the more onerous in business on account of the fullness of divine life in his heart. As Christ came into the world to do the Father's will, so he sends us into the world to do his own will, which is always the Father's will. Business becomes ministry when it is inspired by fidelity to Christ. The salvation of society, the redemption of business, the subordination of power to principle and love, can only come through the law of love, which is the law of Christ.

Heroism.
Christianity alone seeks and secures both happiness and heroism.—Rev. E. T. Root, Congregationalist, Providence.

Finishes the Job.
It is beauty that begins to please, and tenderness that completes the charm.

FACE OF MORMON APOSTLE NOW DECORATES WARSHIP "UTAH."
New York City.—That crowd cut little figure in the navy when an silver service bearing the likeness of Brigham Young was presented to the battleship Utah, despite the efforts of hundreds of persons. A mass of letters protesting against the acceptance of the silver had been received by Secretary of the Navy Meyer. When over he replied his answer was to this effect:

"The navy is not prejudiced in matters of creed. The likeness of Mr. Young will remain on the service as long as those presenting it so desire. The battleship Mississippi has on its service the likeness of Jefferson Davis. If sectional feeling is forgotten, certainly religious feeling should be ignored."

So in the presence of God guests the service bearing the face of the Mormon leader was presented to the ship while a choir from the Temple in the Salt Lake City sang. The service, which is said to cost $15,000 was bought by the school children in Utah. It is one of the most costly in the navy. Gov. Spry, Senator Smith, many other citizens of Utah and the choir boarded the warship with full naval honors. The ceremonies were opened with the singing of "America" by the Tabernacle choir. Then Gov. Spry, with a few words of praise for the Utah and its men, presented the service to the ship. Miss Hazel Tauts moved the flag that had covered the silver. After Capt. W. S. Benson had accepted the service the choir sang "I Love Utah."

G. E. LEWIS SEN. J. M. SMITH

A Word About the Efficient Motor in This $900 30-Horse Power Touring Car

Overland

THE motor of an automobile corresponds in importance to the "works" of a fine watch. A fancy watch case might make a very handsome ornament, but if it hides a cheap movement it makes a worthless time-piece.

When YOU consider a car the first thing to do is to take a good look at the engine. Look it over carefully. This will give you a better idea of the car's real value.

Any manufacturer can tell you his motor is efficient, dependable, reliable, economical—in short, give you all of the regular, pet, stock-in-trade adjectives. These words are all found in the dictionary. But beyond that you don't hear very much. Anyone can make a general statement, but when it comes to backing it up with sound facts—that's a horse of another color. The purpose of this is to tell and prove to you (with supporting facts) how good the motor in our $900 motor-car is—what it is and how it is made. And anyone who is the least bit motor-wise will recognize a really good engine.

It is utterly impossible in this space to go into this matter as thoroughly as we would like to. But these few facts tell you the whys and wherefores of a motor which we know is by far the most efficient for its size ever made. You can see by the illustration what a clean cut job it is. Its action is just as fine as its looks.

The motor in our $900 five-passenger fore-door touring car is the four cylinder four cycle type.

Cylinders have large water-jackets and are cast singly, increasing cooling efficiency with the advantage of being able to replace a single cylinder at low cost should an accident occur. These cylinders are cast from a close grained metal from our own formula. The crank shaft and connecting rods and all other forgings are of high carbon manganese steel.

All bearings, cylinders, pistons and rings are ground to accurate and tested smoothness, insuring long life, freedom from wear, and positive compression. The cylinders are offset from the crank shaft to obviate the dead center at the time of impulse. The motor is suspended on three points from the main frame, which is braced for this purpose, thus dispensing with the complication and added weight of a sub-frame. This construction is ideal, as it allows for the twisting of the car on rough roads, and eliminates the liability of a disalignment. The entire motor is constructed with a view to accessibility of all parts that might possibly require attention.

The valves are made from thirty-five per cent nickel steel heads electrically welded to carbon steel stems. All the wearing surfaces of the valves are ground to a one-thousandth part of an inch. They are of the mushroom type and interchangeable. Owing to their peculiar design and large size they enable the motor to develop at least FIFTEEN PER CENT MORE HORSEPOWER than any other motor of the same bore and stroke. The lower end of the valve stem is hardened and comes in contact with a fibre insert in the adjusting screw, which in turn fits into the square push rod. This contributes largely to the silence of the valve action, and permits adjustment for possible wear.

The cam shafts are drop forged (in our own drop-forging plant, which is the largest in the industry), oil-treated and case-hardened. They are ground and machined automatically, which means positive accuracy in the relative position of one cam to another. Owing to the large bearing areas throughout, the motor will run indefinitely without perceptible change in valve-timing, for which possibility, however, a means of adjustment is provided.

This is the only car of its class with a five-bearing crank shaft. This feature gives support on each side of each connecting rod as it delivers its power stroke, which insures the greatest possible rigidity and keeps the crank shaft in perfect line on its bearing. The crank shaft is drop forged from one piece of carbon manganese steel and rotates in five bearings of unusually liberal peripheral area, resulting in quietness and extreme long life.

The crank cases are cast in two sections, of the finest grade of aluminum alloy obtainable. Such metal is used principally for lightness, and while more expensive than other kinds, it enables us to use a webbed construction of very superior strength. The casting of these cases is done in our own foundry.

We equip this motor with a standard carburetor, chosen for its adaptability to the work required. The special advantages are those of quick vaporization and consequently easy starting; economy of fuel with the greatest percentage of power for a given amount of gasoline, and satisfactory operation at all speeds, obviating difficulties often encountered at slow motor speed. Its very accessible location, its simplicity of adjustment and the ease with which our carburetors start the motor are inherent points of superiority.

No other motor in the world is given a more severe test and thorough inspection. Just as soon as it is assembled and ready to be bolted in to the frame, it is sent down to the engine testing room for what is known as a block test. The engine is belted up for two hours, and driven by other than its own power to limber it up so that it will start easily. Then it is put onto the block and run from 8 to 16 hours under its own power. During this time two inspectors watch the engine performance constantly, testing it frequently by brakes, until, in their judgment, based on long experience, it is ready to be inspected by the foreman in charge of this department. Then the foreman goes into an examination of the engine very thoroughly. And if there is the slightest indication of anything but the smoothest sort of work—if the engine does not turn up the power that it should—it is sent back to the chief inspector of the engine assembly department.

After being thoroughly tested, the engines are sent, together with the remainder of the parts that make up the assembled chassis, down to the chassis assembly room, where they are assembled and then turned over to the road testing department.

This should give you a good idea of the thoroughness of the motor in this $900 car. And every other part of this automobile is just as good as it can be made. It is a high grade car, and a careful comparison of the entire machine will absolutely prove to your own satisfaction that no other maker can sell this car at this price without losing money.

We have published a book for those who cannot take a trip through our enormous plant. It takes you over the entire 80 acres. It shows how we make every part of every Overland car. It shows you the car from start to finish—from raw material to the complete article. It is a treatise of the industry's greatest factory. It explains our great equipment and shows how we can produce our cars to sell at prices from twenty to forty per cent lower than other cars. It is written in an interesting and readable style and is full of valuable information. What we did not have room to say here, of the motor in this $900 car, will be found complete in this book. Drop us a line today, and we will see that you get one of these books by return mail. It also shows our complete 1912 line with prices, specifications and full descriptions.

GET AN AUTOMOBILE FREE

THIRTEEN practical prizes, valued at over $2500, have been purchased by the Gazette, and will be awarded to the ladies of this vicinity, on December 23, 1911. These elegant awards are all ready for their owners and may be inspected at the stores of the Janesville merchants, of whom purchased. Each prize is of exceptional value and fully guaranteed, and each prize is practical as well as valuable. This is an exceptional opportunity for the lady who desires an automobile, a piano or any one of these handsome awards that are offered.

One Overland Automobile, 1912 Model

OVERLAND MODEL 59 T

Purchased of Sykes & Davis, Janesville

TO BE AWARDED AS CAPITAL GRAND PRIZE

MANY OVERLANDS are now in use in Rock County, and the rapid sale of this automobile is due to the exceptional value given the purchaser. The one to be awarded ladies entered in this campaign is the 1912 model 59 T. It has a reserve power and speed to meet all rational requirements. The body is big and roomy, carrying five passengers with all comfort. The Overland to be given is thoroughly equipped with gas lamps, top, wind shields, etc., and is just the automobile for any lady to own and drive.

THREE SCHILLER PIANOS

Purchased of A. V. Lyle, of Janesville

The pianos to be given are beautiful Schillers (style 35.) The case may be Sandomingo mahogany, quarter sawed oak or burl walnut, at the option of the winners. Hand-rubbed, veneered inside with birdseye maple, tuning pins nickel plated, 5-ply pin block of rock maple which insures the piano standing in tune, automatic duet music desk, exquisitely hand carved, imported German wool hammers, high grade action, imported German strings of the most expensive make, genuine ivory keys.

This Piano Would Be a Credit To Any Home

Three Scholarships From the Janesville Business College, the Quality School

One of the most practical set of awards to be made in this event is the three scholarships in the Janesville Business College. This is not only true because these prizes are business college scholarships but because they are from a school of such high standard as the Janesville Business College.

The three winners will each secure twenty-eight weeks of instruction in the course they desire.

Three Diamonds Purchased of Hall & Sayles

The three Diamond Rings to be awarded have been purchased of Hall & Sayles.

These diamonds are now on display at this Jewelry Store. Hall & Sayles guarantee these diamonds to be perfect white stones, each valued at $80 and the three winners will know that they receive full value.

Three Gold Watches Purchased of G. W. Grant & Co.

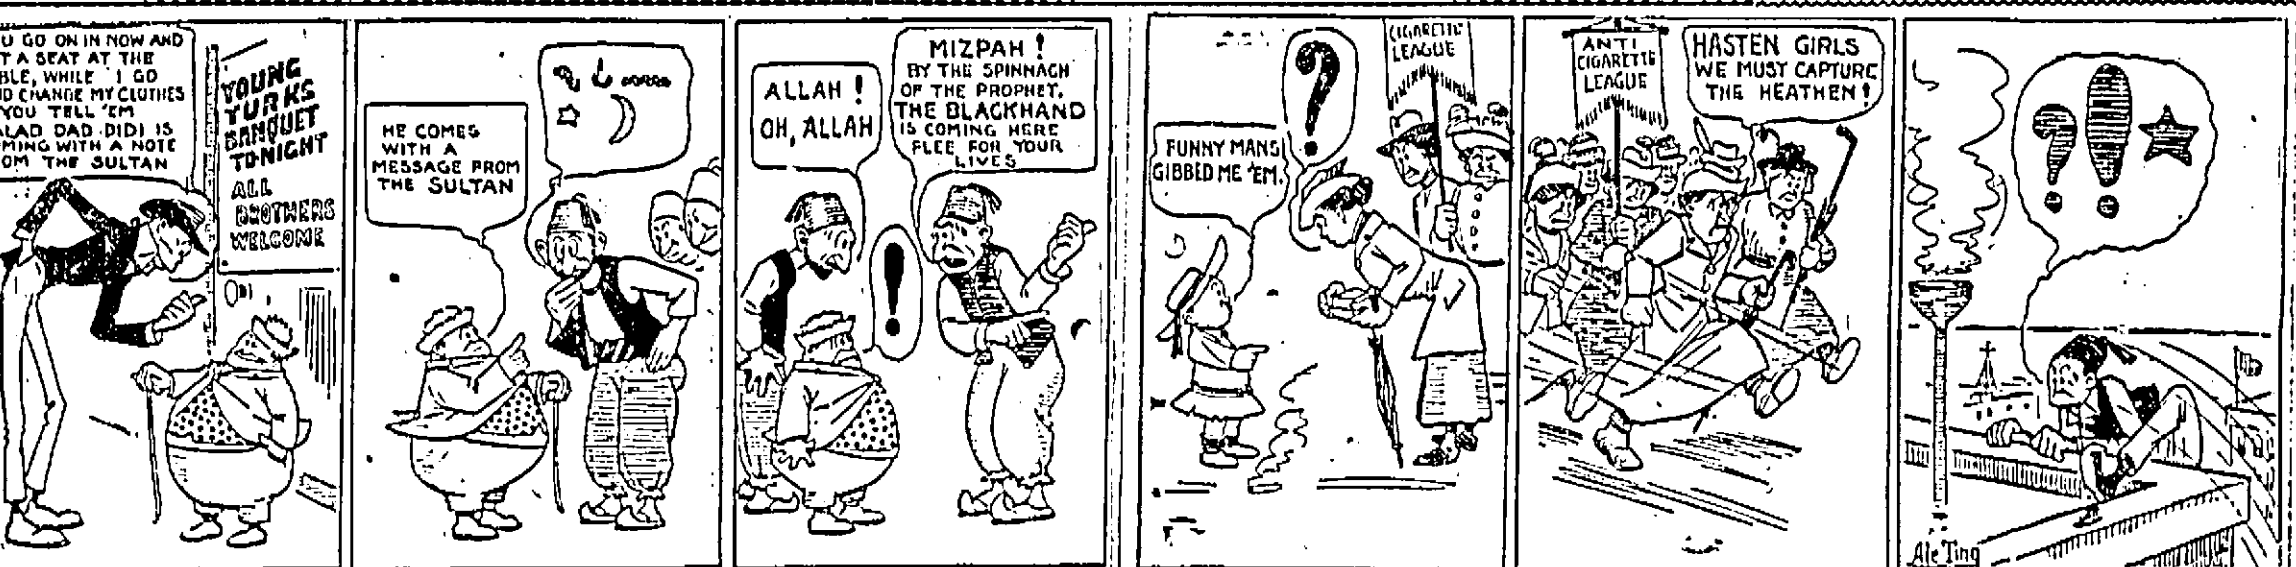

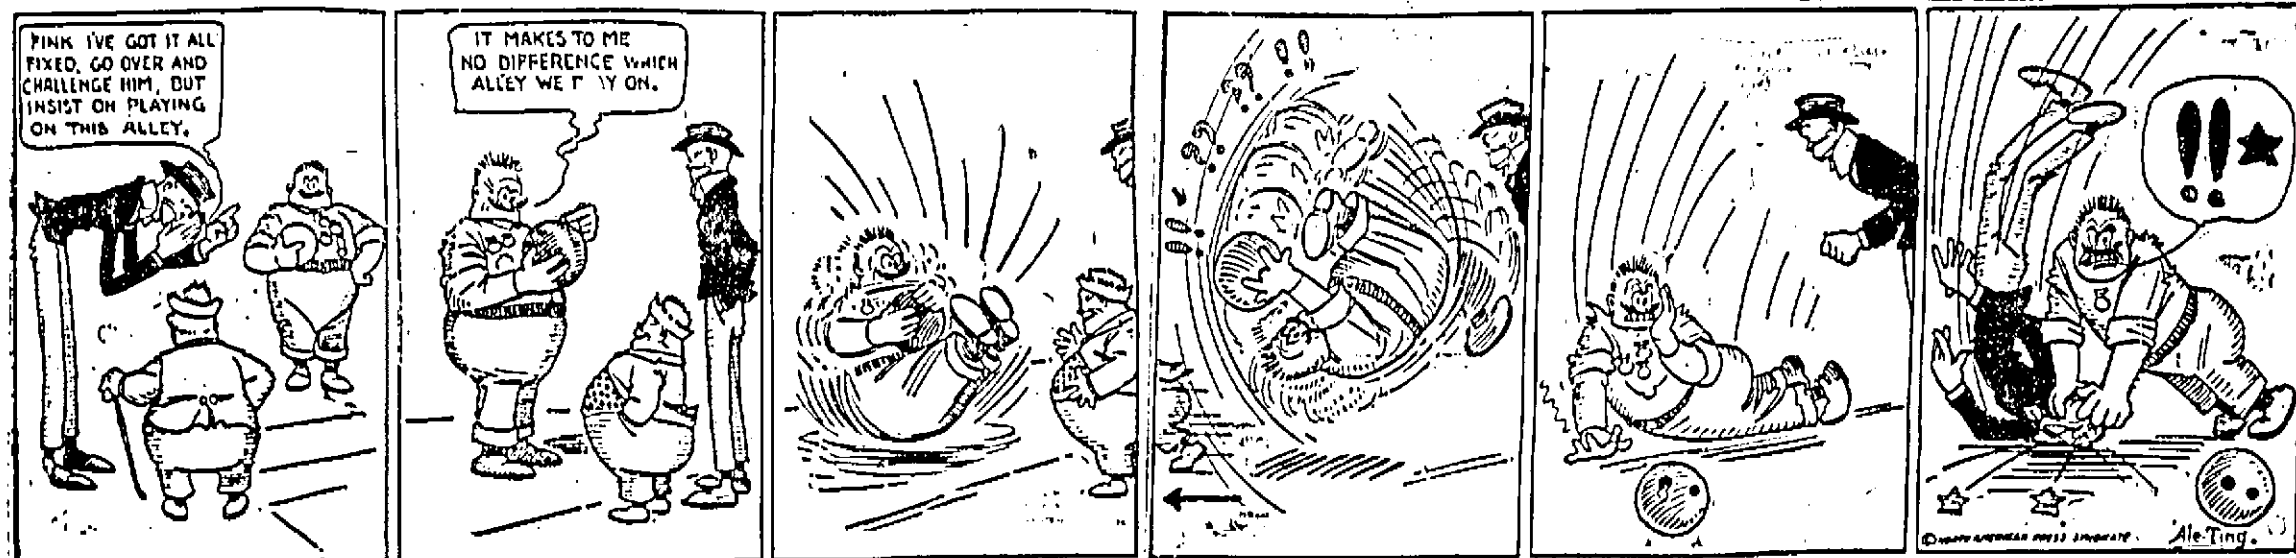

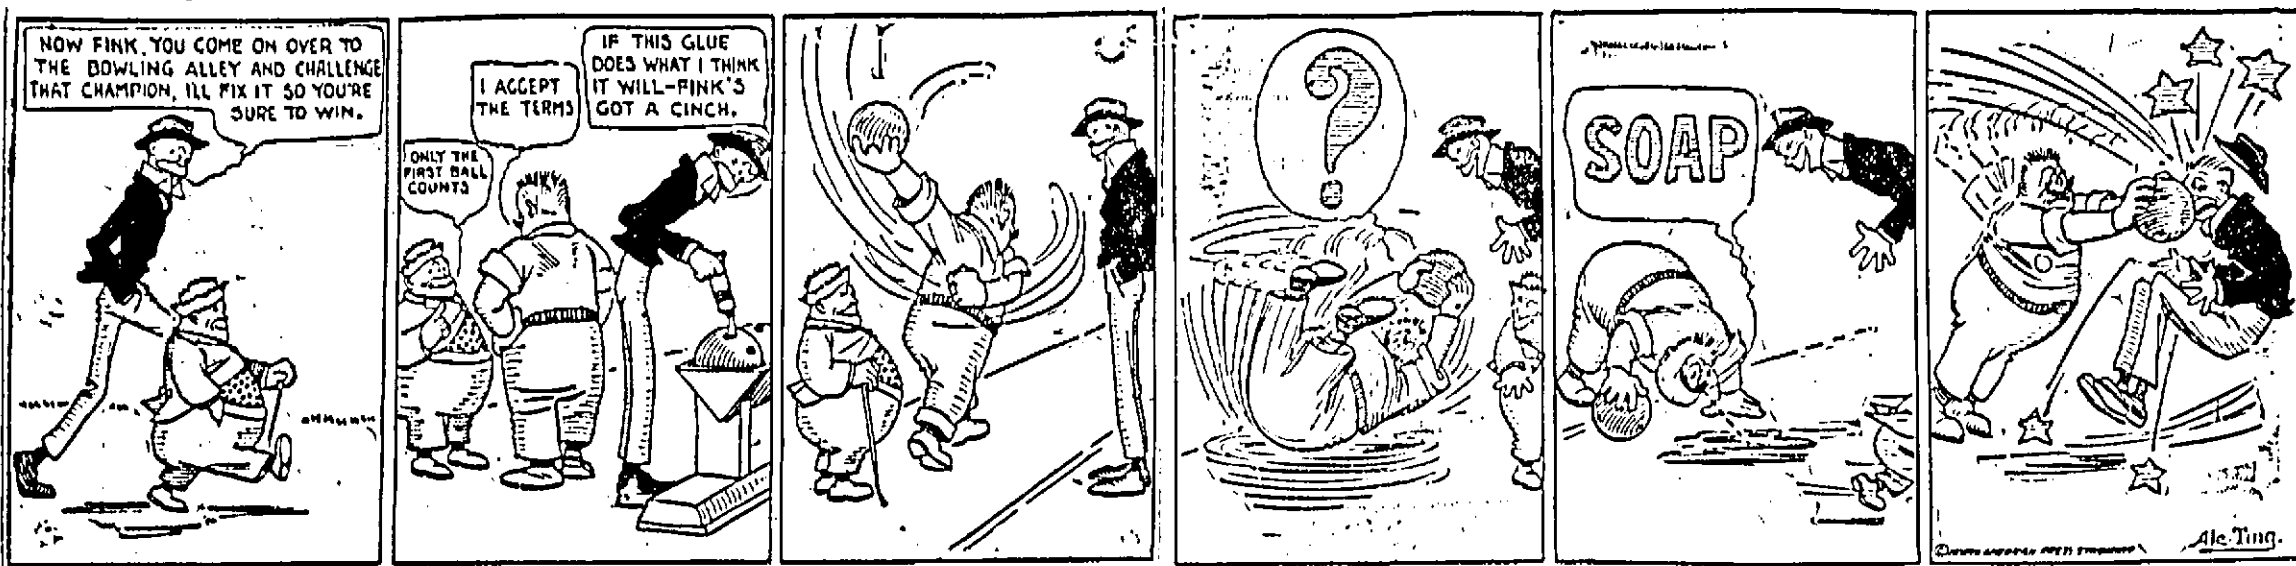

These three watches are 15-jewel movements, encased in solid gold cases. Each of the three winners is privileged to choose the style case she desires.

Geo. W. Grant & Co., will be pleased to show these watches to candidates who will call at their Jewelry Store on Milwaukee street.

ALTHOUGH the Gazette will enjoy the pleasure of presenting the above elegant awards to ladies of this vicinity, it will be a greater pleasure to know that there are to be no losers. Non-prize winning candidates are to receive, in cash, 5 per cent of the money they collect, consequently each one is to be repaid for her effort. The privilege of competing for such a generous set of awards, without any opportunity of losing, only comes once in a lifetime. Each candidate should make sure that she does her best. An elegant Automobile is surely worth while.

GETTING EVEN WITH BARNES

By ROBERT MACKAY

THE routine daily life of John Hendy, broker and bachelor, included the wearing of a spray of lilacs-of-the-valley. For twenty-odd years the little florist around the corner had left, twice daily, a boutonniere of pure little bells at the Hendy apartments. Seasons did not affect the fall, or custom wither it. In fact, Mr. Hendy was so identified with the flowers that he was jokingly known among his fellow brokers as "Old Lilly Bell." The boutonniere was the finishing touch of his immaculate person.

On this particular day, John Hendy was seated in a Sixth Avenue trolley car. It had just reached the busiest section of New York's shopping district, and the usual swarm of parcelladen, chattering women entered. John Hendy noticed in the crowd a pretty young woman tugging along a dear little of a four-year-old girl. She eluded her way along the car and stopped in front of him—stopped because the mass of passengers prevented her from going farther. She was tired, and the sigh she uttered proved it. Hendy arose and gave her his seat.

She sat very close to the next passenger to make room for the four-year-old, whose eyes were quickly arrested by the boutonniere of lilacs. Mr. Hendy, swinging as gracefully as possible from a strap, bumped against the little one, and as he leaned over to apologize, she smilingly requested him to give her a flower.

"Tut! How dare you!" said the young woman.

The child, her face crimsoning, turned and buried her head on her mother's shoulder. A few moments passed and she peeped up shyly at the lilacs. Mr. Hendy caught her eye and smiled responsively.

"Madam," said Mr. Hendy, "your little girl has been admiring my lilacs. Will you permit me to present them to her?" The upturned face and the outstretched hand of the child were the answer.

When he reached home there was mild consternation among his soft-voiced, soft-footed servants when they noted the absence of the lilacs. Something was about to happen, they surmised—directly perhaps, disastrous possibly, but extraordinary surely.

Dinner was over. The man of the lilacs sprang out over the green dinnings of the park, amid which are lights flitted and gleamed like big fireflies. From the nearby roofgarden of a big hotel came the filtered strains of a waltz. In his apartment was that velvet quiet that belongs to dwellings of high rents and thick carpets. The combination inspired him to dwell with old memories.

In business circles, Hendy had the reputation of being a bulging in personality. This kept him on the trail of Archibald Barnes for a score of years. Both men when quite young went into Wall Street, and prospered. When nearly thirty years of age Hendy was accepted by Gertrude Harrington, daughter of the cashier of a small New Jersey bank. Barnes had been in love with her also. He took the engagement coolly, and congratulated Hendy, his closest friend, in a very warm fashion.

Shortly after the engagement was announced, Hendy had wordless of persistent bad luck. His finances were so impaired that the wedding was indefinitely postponed. One day he became cognizant of a forthcoming movement in a group of certain industrialists. The program was cut and dried by a clique. Going over his resources, Hendy discovered that he was short two or three thousand dollars of the total amount needed to bring about the coup that meant fortune to him. Under a sworn promise of secrecy, he confided the situation to Barnes. Barnes at once advanced the money required and intimated that if Hendy didn't object he'd take a "fitter" himself.

"By the way," suggested Barnes, "why don't you let your future father-in-law in on this. He's old, can't work very much longer, and it would be a Christian act to allow him to get a dead sure thing."

"A capital idea, Archie." Next day the old cashier put the savings of a lifetime in the deal.

The movement contemplated was the ever-old and ever-new method of "bearing" the industrialists, buying them out at their minimum figure, permitting them to slowly regain their normal prices, inaugurating a sudden boom and, before the strength is spent, throwing the remaining securities on the market. The first part of the program worked fairly well, although there was a feeling in the air that somebody was antagonistic to the full fruition of the scheme. Then, just as the boom was inaugurated, it seemed to burst like a bubble.

"A temporary movement," said Hendy.

The shorts hammered, hammered, hammered the stocks until they "sank to the hilt." Margins and again margins and once more margins melted.

like mists of morning. At the end of three days Hendy was literally penniless. The old cashier's earnings had gone. Barnes declared he had been so hard hit that he couldn't lend his friend even a hundred dollars.

A week later, Hendy received a curt note from Gertrude's father. "I beg that you will discontinue your visits to my home," it said. Enclosed was a line from Gertrude, endorsing the sentiment. The heartbroken man sought Barnes, and Barnes unsympathetically said: "It serves you right."

A few days later the newspapers began to publish sensational headlines about a budding Napoleon of finance.

All this floated across the mirror of Mr. Hendy's memory as he sat solitary in his library. Between whiles would come the eyes of the child he had seen in the car, or the eyes of his old sweetheart, he scarcely knew which, they were so alike. But, sometimes, when the eyes seemed true and trustful, he thought of them as the eyes of the child, looking at him when he gave her the lilacs. When they seemed sad and reproachful he fancied them to be the eyes of the woman who would surely have cause for sadness within the next week or so, when his wrath should fall swiftly and surely on her husband and all that was his.

The coming bear movement was the most perfect bit of destructive financial machinery that he had designed during his whole career. Barnes had been heavily hit over N. P., as he knew. There were street rumors about certain speculations in local transportation stocks that had further depleted the Barnes exchequer.

Mr. Hendy, with a grim, satisfied chuckle, stepped out upon the balcony to finish his cigar in the quiet of the autumn night. From the street came the quick, sweet laugh of a child. The leaf of a neighboring vine, dead before its time, waved toward the listening man. It fluttered, paused, and alighted on his knee. The laughter below rippled again. Again came the vision of the child's eyes so like Gertrude's of the days that were. Again came the remorseful qualm, followed by a glow of the dull, steaming hate of Barnes.

He picked up the dead leaf and eyed it thoughtfully. Withered before its companions! But what of that. At best, those remaining had but three or four more weeks of life awaiting them. Such a little space separated him from life's inevitable winter. Such a little time would elapse before the frosty fingers would detach him from his surroundings. A spring night or might not follow, but the chill of the certain winter was already cooling much of the fire in his veins. The silence and mystery of the darkness that brooded over the park, the solemn stars, seemed to emphasize the nightness of the questions that he would be called upon, shortly, to confront, and the smallness of the things with which he had to do at the moment. He wondered what could come from revenge after all.

Once more there rose a thrill of young laughter. Hendy stood and looked down at the street.

"And but for Barnes," he said to himself, "I, too, might have had children—perhaps like the little one in the car. He robbed me of the best in life, and I'm only just finding out what I have really lost. Surely it is right that I punish him."

Moodyly combating his growing inclination to carry out his purpose, Hendy called for his hat and stroled toward his club. The faces there were so familiar. He wanted recreation, so he walked down Broadway to a roof garden. He sighed as he noticed that the entering crowds were invariably couples—man and wife, youth and maiden, even the toils who were not in best seemed to obey the universal impulse, and paired off prettily.

At the sides of the roofgarden were small, rustic, vine-clad recesses. In one of these Hendy anchored himself and communed with a waiter. Then he began to take cognizance of his surroundings. He scarcely noted that at the table nearest him the chairs were upturned, when the people for whom it had been reserved arrived and seated themselves. They were half a dozen in all, and, with a sort of dumb astonishment, Hendy saw among them Barnes, and a handsome, dignified, gray-haired woman in whom he had no difficulty in recognizing the Gertrude of his youth.

Gertrude Barnes! Her maidenly Hendy had ripened into maturity with some grace. The intense blue of her eyes remained. For that the watcher felt curiously thankful. Barnes looked worn and haggard. Hendy, familiar with the Street and its crop of physical and mental ills, had no difficulty in translating the lapses into abstraction, the forced gaiety, the nervous movements of the fingers, the sallow skin, and the shifting, irritated gaze of the man before him. Barnes was being hit, and hit heavily, so these signs said.

Hendy felt sure that the stricken man saw further ahead than his current difficulties; and, seeing, looked upon a hopeless future.

The waiter turned to the wife. A faint thrill of jealousy and disappointment ran through him as he saw the unmistakable look of affection that lit up the woman's face when she spoke to or was addressed by the man. He

There was consternation among his soft-voiced, soft-footed servants.

His name was Archibald Barnes, and it was agreed that it was mainly by his foresight and sagacity that the "bearing" had worked so well. He was brought to such an unexpected and disastrous ending. Hendy gritted his teeth in impatient fury, for he now realized that Barnes was a traitor and was responsible for the crash.

"I'll make the scoundrel sweat for this," said Hendy, "if it is the last act of my life." The sentiment was repeated with double force two months later, when the wedding of Gertrude Harrington and Archibald Barnes was announced.

Hendy rose to his feet impatiently. What sentimental humber was he indulging in? He had worked and schemed and waited for the time when he could serve out to Barnes a big dose of the bitter medicine that Barnes had compelled him to swallow. The time was now. He had caught Barnes in a trap, practically identical to that in which he had been snipped and tortured. A word over the telephone, and zip! down, down, down would tumble the holdings to the custody of which the firm of Barnes, Carlton & Co. was so tremendously committed.

He had worked the thing to perfection. The coming bear movement was the most perfect bit of destructive financial machinery that he had designed during his whole career. Barnes had been heavily hit over N. P., as he knew. ## "Paid in Full."

In recent years a few plays have made such big hits that two or three companies have been sent out in them, and in one instance four organizations were started, but the number lasted only a short time. That a wonderful illustration of its tremendous appeal that in every instance the audiences have been larger each time it has returned. Therefore its coming to this city will awaken deep interest, when at the Myers Theatre tonight C. S. Primrose pro-number of specialties are introduced in this scene. "Les" Copeland, "The Wizard of the Piano," composer of "What The Engine Done," "Next Week Some Time, But Not Now," and a number of other song hits, will render a few of his latest selections.

Sousa's Band.

Muscle lovers will welcome the announcement of the appearance here of Sousa and his band. The famous leader and his sixty musicians will give one concert at the Myers Theatre on Saturday evening, Nov. 18.

There is an infectious air of gaiety about a Sousa concert. The dash and brilliancy with which the band plays under the distinguished conductor's leadership are irresistible. Sousa has an individuality which makes the music attractive. He is always interesting to watch, because he seems to embody in his conducting all the essential qualities of the music he is directing. His rhythm, color, characteristic movements have been carefully cultivated and copied for nearly twenty years, but none of his imitators has ever succeeded in securing such precision of attack and such docility of treatment as Sousa obtains from the musicians under his baton. tion to this, Sousa arranges his programs with not little ingenuity as regards contrast and his soloists are always artists of the first rank.

The Moulin Rouge Girls.

For many years the name of Golden and Collins has been a by-word with lovers of good burlesque when members of the Monte Carlo Girls Co. Now that these two well known comedians have changed management they are determined to "make good." The management has arranged with one of the best composers in New York to write two brand new, up-to-date burlesques. Now and gorgeous costumes have been secured, and all the latest and best of the season's song hits have been placed in the show, along with a number written especially for this company. 20 of the prettiest chorus girls that could be secured are with this company; among those who will take part are Golden and Collins, May Burns, May Collins, Ray Sisters, Jack Henry, and "The Girl in the Window." They will be at the Myers Theatre Monday evening, Nov. 13.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Gerald Griffen is appearing in a new comedy act called "The Lady Killer."

William H. Crane is shortly to start his tour in the play, "The Senator at Home."

A spectacular play, entitled "Columbus," was recently produced in a Chicago theater.

Victor Morley is shortly to star under the direction of Harry Askin in "The Girl I Love."

Ray Templeton is to star under the management of the Shuberts in a play called "A Man and Three Wives."

George Fawcett may make a venture into vaudeville, as he has, according to report, a powerful tubular drama.

Nance O'Neill may appear in a highly emotional play called "The Mother," the opening performance to be in New York.

Lillian Albertson, who married and retired from the stage, is to return to it in "The Miracle," a play by Hayard Voller.

Sadie Martinot has written a musical comedy called "The King of Washington Heights," in which she will appear herself.

Francis Wilson, the comedian, has written a new play and will appear in it himself in New York. It is said, about Christmas time.

The widow of George Fox, the famous Humpty Dumpty, died recently at her home in Brooklyn. She had formerly been a well known actress.

Blanche Walsh is going into vaudeville this season with a play entitled "The Thunder God," in which she will appear as an Indian squaw.

A new musical comedy, entitled "The Girl Abroad Ship," is to be presented at the Princess Theatre, in Chicago, about the beginning of December.

Charles Frohman has obtained the American and English rights of a new comedy by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, which will be staged next February.

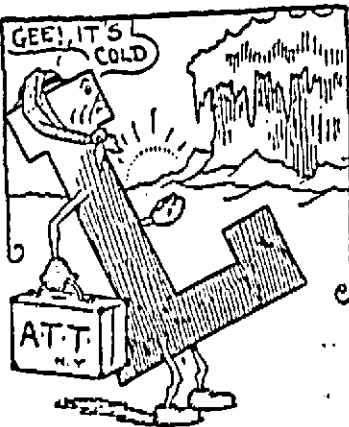

The Shuberts are soon to produce "The Wedding Trip," a musical comedy, the book by Miss De Gessane and Harry B. Smith and the music by Reginald De Koven.

When Elsie Ferguson opens her season in Rochester, N. Y., next Monday, in Charles Nirdlinger's new play, it will be called "The First Lady in the Land" instead of "Dolly Madison."

When Margaret Blighton brings out her new play "Kindling" in New York early in December, Arthur Byron Bowley will be her leading man. Frank Camp will also be a member of the cast.

Joseph Medill Patterson's "Rebellion" is not to be the playwright's sole contribution to the novelties of the season. He and Hugh Ford, the stage director for Liebler & Co., are collaborators on "No Extradition," which is a dramatization of incidents in several of the late 12. O. Henry's stories.

TRAVEL

The Gazette Travel Bureau has Been Established for the Benefit and Use of the Public.

Its purpose is to supply free information regarding travel, railroad routes, connections, etc. to furnish folders and literature regarding any route and to equip the applicant with such material as will be of assistance in planning a trip.

Printed matter from almost every railroad and transportation company in the country has been placed conveniently in a specially constructed time table cabinet and already numerous inquiries have come from those wishing the aid of this Bureau.

One lady called a day or two ago and desired to know what route she should take to Los Angeles in order to pass through Denver. The Bureau was able to supply her with the information quickly and indicated all of the various lines which were available, gave her the folders and printed matter pertaining to the entire trip and otherwise assisted her in solving a perplexing problem. She remarked on the convenience of the Bureau and predicted that it would be used liberally by those who contemplated travel.

A feature of the conduct of the Bureau will be the impartial way in which information will be given, the aim being to advise you for convenience sake.

The latest edition of the Official Railway Guide

which gives authentically the time and connections of every transportation company in the country is supplied to the Bureau and is for your use.

You can secure quick information, printed matter and detail about travel and save time and trouble; whether you are going north, south, east or west the Bureau can assist you, make free use of it.

play was not big enough or popular enough to win public support for four productions.

Dockstader's Minstrels.
Low Dockstader and his merry-making troupe, the "Paid in Full" is the greatest and era will be soon at Myers Theatre most popular play ever produced. In Wednesday, Nov. 15, Dockstader has America. All last season, beginning now specialty this season, entitled in August, 1909, and continuing until "Vold-de Yee!" and "Useless Pleasure." May, five companies appeared in "Paid in Full," which is said to be ludicrous "Paid in Full" all over the United States. He also has a new States. This same number is going to be produced in a new monologue over the country again this year. This on "The Married Man," "Father Sees a Chapter to theatrical history in a year, "Hush For the Red," never before written. It shows a white and blue. "I'm Surprised, chivalry that "Paid in Full" recaptures "That's All," and a new monologue a place in public admiration no other play has had, and it is doubtful if any other ever attains it. The broad interest possessed by "Paid in Full" is demonstrated by the fact that it scored a big hit in one part of the country as in another. They like it as well in San Francisco and in New Orleans and Minneapolis as they did in New York where it ran for two years. Never has a play been in such demand for return engagements. In this respect it has a record unequalled in theatrical history. It has been played as many as five and six times in cities innumerable, and it is with a number of local hits. Sell O'Brien presents his new farce, "Reforming the Force," which is reported to be a scream. Bob Albright is an added feature of the show this season. Albright performs the most remarkable feat of singing the sextette from "Lucia" alone. The big ensemble number, "The Dandy Chocolate Drops," introduces Happy Nantz, Marnie Roman, George Fawcett, Pete Derzel and a corps of singers and dancers. The performance concludes with a side-splitting afterpiece "Henderson Rubeck's Ruckery," which discloses a typical dance hall. A

The Boy Puzzle

Two of his indispensable powers are imagination and imitation. They awake early and stay on the job till he is dead. With him imitation is not limitation; it is life and enlargement. He is like the chameleon that takes its hues from its environment.

At the start, it is blind impulse, automatic at that, as he bobs up and down and aways around on his springs; grasps at everything in sight, from his mother to the moon; and makes a specialty of foraging for refreshments.

Soon he gets to imitating and never stops. Nature was wise in ordaining it so. That's the way he grows, for imitation is appropriation. He answers your smile with a smile, your frown with a similar frown, your love with love, your hatred with hatred. He does this at first without knowing it, then he does it purposely, and, by this time he has the habit.

It is not contented that he has only imitation. He has initiative; also. He is original. It was a boy who saw the steam lift the lid off his mother's tea kettle and got up an imitation that has lifted the life of mankind. If we could trace the history of aeronautics, we would find that some boy started the scheme by making a descent from the barn loft with his father's umbrella for a parachute, or some man has done it with the gift of imitation cultivated so carefully in boyhood. He learns to apply the most recent knowledge to the most common conditions. After giving a definition of the word "ransom," and using the case of Miss Ellen Stone, as an illustration, the teacher told the pupils to compose a sentence, having the word in it. Little Jack Walker would never have shown the "pomp" he wrote, had not his nearest neighbor told of it. And it read: "Away out west in the town of Racine a Tom Cat sat on a sewing machine. The wheels began to buzz and the cat began to walk; for it took nine stitches in the end of his tail; and the cat ran some."

There are some things a boy naturally imitates with more or less ease simply because he is a boy; then there are some things he imitates at one stage, and others at another. There may be an unspoiled, but not an unsoiled, simplicity of boyhood. The dainty little girl will keep her white dress and pink ribbons up to the standard of the angels whom she imitates; while the dirty little boy emerges from the puddle where he has had a good time with his friends, the pigs whom he imitates, when he can.

His words betray him, odd words, big words, long words, lurid words. They show their origin. The waiting boy in the reception room of a wealthy and cultured hostess made me feel that I was talking to the W. and O. himself. A newboy of Mr. John L. Sullivan's town, with only a month's experience, was heard to say to another newboy: "William Scott, if you corrugate your brow at me in that manner again, I will temporarily deposit my papers upon the sidewalk and cause the blood to coagulate under your left optic. Hear me William!"

He imitates actions as well as words; gathers the ideals as well as actions; most of all feels the spell of compelling personalities. Those two lads, sons of Jack Abernethy, United States marshal for Oklahoma, who rode horseback all the way from Oklahoma to New York to serve on the reception committee when Roosevelt was welcomed home from Africa, enjoyed that trip far more than if they had gone in a palace car, because they adored Teddy and their pa were Rough Riders. He is a hero worshiper from the beginning. It is the man he imitates. He would rather be like some fascinating man than be an angel—for a while at least. In the first stage, from one to six years, it is automatic and impulsive and what appeals to those impulses he imitates. During the next stage the impulses get differentiated. He is a natural insurgent from eight to twelve. The strain on him is terrific as his habits get formed. It must have been of the boy at this stage that Carlyle is credited with saying he ought to be brought up in a barrel and fed through the bung hole. But it was only Carlyle who said it. He never had a boy, though his father did. In this second stage he is forming habit.

Back of all this imitation is the hunger and thirst for completing himself. It shows the truth of the old saying that example is better than precept, because it contains both and makes them practical. It is better than punishment. If those in charge of him are wise they will: 1. Take advantage of his impulse to imitate and give him the play that will develop it.

2. In his next stage they will make the play more or less dramatic, always accurate; will awaken interest as well as impulse; attract, draw, rather than drive; aim to give him what is imitable in thought and words and character.

3. In the latter stage give him comradeship that will build his character. Almost every criminal could have been saved from crime by a proper appeal to his instinct of imitation. Words, actions and people must be worthy of his imitation.

A Root or a Pod? "How do you get capers? Do you dig 'em or what?" "I've heard of cutting 'em. That's all I know."

FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS

ALBERT PAYSON TERNUM

POWHATAN.

On a high platform shaded by boughs sat a grizzled Indian. On either side of him stood one of his favorite daughters. Below the platform were ranged forty guards. Beyond were a mass of savages. In front of the dais stood a thick bearded white man. This white man—fearless adventurer, amazing liar, founder of Virginia, ideal soldier of fortune—was Capt. John Smith. The grizzled chief on the platform was Wah-un-so-on-cook. He is better known to history by his official native title, "Powhatan."

Capt. Smith's Rescue.

Smith had left the struggling English colony newly established at Jamestown, and had gone into the wilderness on an exploring expedition. He had been captured by Indians, and passed on from tribe to tribe until he had been brought before Powhatan. For three days and nights there had been deliberations to determine whether Smith was the "reincarnation" of a good or an evil spirit. At last Powhatan stepped the investigation by ordering Smith put to death. At this point—according to Smith's own story, which has of late years been doubted—Powhatan's thirteen-year-old daughter, Matoonah (known to the English as "Pocahontas") leaped down from her place at her father's side, threw herself between Smith and the executioners and begged Powhatan to spare the captive. Whatever were the means she employed, it is certain the girl made some sort of plea for Smith's life and that the soldier of fortune was not only spared but sent back to his fellow-colonists laden with provisions.

Powhatan was born about 1550 and was hereditary chief of eight small Virginia tribes. But by successful warfare and diplomacy he soon found himself Sagamore, or head chief, of thirty tribes, with wide territory and about 8000 warriors. He had twenty sons and ten daughters, but Pocahontas was his favorite child. Here is Smith's description of Powhatan's appearance at the time the two first met in 1607:

"He is a tall, well proportioned man, with a sour look; his head somewhat gray; his beard so thin that it seems none at all; his age near sixty; of a very able and hardy body to endure any labor."

Powhatan did not wholly welcome the coming of the English. Sometimes he posed as Smith's dear friend; sometimes he clamored for his life. More than once he sent provisions to save the Jamestown colony from starving; again he planned that colony's massacre. Smith was the only white man who could obtain favors from the old chief. Capt. Christopher Newport, of the colony, went to Powhatan on a trading expedition to get supplies for Jamestown. Powhatan interrupted Newport's proposition by grunting angrily:

"It is not the wish of so great a chief as myself to trade like a peddler. Place on the ground all the things you have brought. I will take what I like and pay what I choose."

He took every gift Newport displayed and gave him in return only three bushels of grain. Yet soon afterward he sold Smith 300 bushels of grain for two pounds of blue beads. Capt. Newport still thought he could win Powhatan's favor. So he went to England and brought back as presents for him a pitcher and bowl, some gay clothing and a huge gilt crown. He sent word for Powhatan to come to Jamestown to receive these gifts and (by the English King's gracious order) be crowned "Emperor of the Indies." Powhatan was vastly flattered by this honor. But instead of coming to Jamestown he sent word:

"I am as much a monarch as the King of England. If he has sent me gifts, let them be brought to me. I shall not go one step to receive them."

A Ludicrous Coronation.

So Newport was forced to carry the presents and the crown to Powhatan's village on the York River. The Captain arranged a solemn coronation ceremony and bade Powhatan kneel to receive the crown. Powhatan refused. There was a hitch in the coronation until two big English soldiers seized Powhatan by the shoulders and pushed him downward into a sort of crouching or kneeling posture. Then the heavy, ill-fitting crown was jammed down over his gray head. He was hailed as Emperor of the Indies, and a royal salute was fired.

Provisions again became scarce in the Jamestown colony. Smith planned to kidnap Powhatan and hold him for a ransom of grain. Powhatan foiled the plot and sought revenge by a night attack on the colonists. But Pocahontas heard of her father's plan and sent Smith a timely warning. Powhatan then demanded that Smith be slain. But a display of firearms cowed him into momentary submission.

After Smith left Virginia Capt. Argall, a rough, semi-practical member of the colony, stole Pocahontas and held her as hostage to wring favors from her father. Powhatan grieved bitterly for the loss of his beloved daughter, but would not yield. Only when she married a colonist named Rolfe did he consent to make peace again with the English. This peace endured until Powhatan's death in April, 1618, after which new and deadlier trouble soon broke out.

MRS. LOUISE VERMILYA

INDIA BHARU

Chicago, Ill.—Charged with the murder of one man and with nine other deaths which circumstantial evidence may eventually trace to her acts, Mrs. Louise Vermilya stands today either the most malignant woman in the world or the most hideous criminal of the last century. She stoutly maintains her innocence and even though indicted greatly in excess of two crimes has been found in the liver of the late Arthur Holsaetter, there is no local proof so far on earth which will lay the act to the hands of Mrs. Vermilya. As a matter of fact it has now been established that Holsaetter was under the doctor's care and had been given "specie 606" which contains a large amount of arsenic. It is claimed, however, that this arsenic is so treated chemically before it is put into the medicine that it has no effect on the organs of a normal body. The bodies of at least two of the other men who have died mysteriously are to be examined for examination and should indicate he found it will be a strong link in the circumstantial evidence which will have to be relied upon largely to convict Mrs. Vermilya.

One of the principal witnesses in the trial will be Lydia Howard, now known to have been the fiancée of Holsaetter.

TURKISH-ITALIAN STRUGGLE SHIFTED TO U. S.

New York City.—It now looks as though Uncle Sam's State Department, under the direction of Secretary Knox is to have a considerable hand in solving the Turkish-Italian controversy over Tripoli. A formal demand for intervention has been made to the United States by Turkey through Ambassador Youssef Zia Pacha, because of the alleged butcheries by the Italian Commander-General Canova. Sufficient importance attaches to this note from Turkey to warrant the state department in telegraphing President Taft who may return at once to Washington to consider the seriousness of the appeal. Turkey's demand for intervention is based on the alleged fact that Italy is said to have broken international war rules after the capture of Tripoli.

Solve the Gift Problem For One and All

Why Not "Lump" Your Giving This Christmas?

INSTEAD of a separate short lived trifle for each member of the family, give one real, permanent gift that everyone can enjoy, individually or in common.

You can thus combine a worthy and practical acquisition to your home with an investment paying steady dividends in hours profitably and pleasantly spent.

Such a family gift you can best make by purchasing the piano without a peer --the INNER-PLAYER PIANO.

Other Christmases will come and go, but the Inner-Player will remain a testimonial to your generosity as well as a constant source of satisfaction, always—whether you are alone or surrounded by your dear ones.

Whether your wish is to be entertained or soothed—morning, afternoon or midnight, the hands of a master are instantly ready to do your bidding.

Inner-Player Piano music is even preferable to the playing of a virtuoso; while equally perfect in technique, it is equally adaptable to the moods of the performer.

Why Not Make It an Inner-Player Christmas?

For the money it costs, imagine if you can a more beautiful gift—a more enjoyable or more satisfactory gift.

You can play it yourself, because it has a device within its case that makes it unnecessary for you to touch the keys. That means that you need no study, and no practice, to play any selection you choose.

You can play any composition with an Inner-Player Piano. There is no limit to the possibilities that one of these instruments opens to you.

An Inner-Player Piano looks like any other piano, and you can play it by hand if you desire. But unless you are a very expert pianist you will prefer the easy Inner-Player way.

Do not confuse the Inner-Player Piano with ordinary player pianos. There are other instruments containing player devices, but the only ones containing the patented Inner-Player are made by the Cable Company, Chicago.

You may see them at our store only.

If you now have a piano you may exchange it as part payment. Balance can be arranged on our easy payment plan to suit your convenience. You don't have to tax your Christmas appropriation to possess one of these handsome instruments.

MISS HAZEL WHITE AND AITHOL BRAGG MARRIED AT HER FATHER'S ORDER

CHARLES WHITE, ACTING ON HIS OWN THEORIES, SUCCESSFUL IN CLEARING UP DISAPPEARANCE MYSTERY.

WITNESS TO CEREMONY

Threats to Dragg Sufficient to Disclose Daughter's Hiding Place and Two Are Married Late Yesterday at Father's Insistence.

Hazel White is now the wife of Aithol Bragg, the young Englishman, at whose suggestion she left her home and friends here to go to Chicago. Her marriage to the man who joined after disappearing from the Y. W. C. A. in Chicago two weeks ago, was consummated last before six o'clock last evening in the office of a justice in the presence of her father, Charles White of this city, who went to Chicago Friday to find his missing daughter and to compel Bragg to marry her, if they were not already wed.

It was only after an all day search, first for Bragg, then with Bragg for the young girl, then to the license clerk for the marriage permit and then to the justice of the peace, that Mr. White succeeded in straightening out a matter which has kept the police department of Chicago and newspapers all over the country on the qui vive for several days.

Father at Ceremony.
The ceremony was presided over by Justice of the Peace Aaron C. Strayer, in his office opposite the Chicago city hall, yesterday afternoon shortly before six o'clock. Mr. White was present when the marriage license was issued to Bragg by Marriage License Clerk Louis Legner, and it was at his insistence that the two were immediately married. He was a witness to the ceremony, and secured a written statement from the acting justice as proof of their marriage.

Mr. White on arriving in Chicago yesterday morning, proceeded directly to the forwarding address, 447 East Fifty-sixth street, which had been given by Miss White to the Y. W. C. A. authorities. Here he found a family with whom Aithol Bragg had been staying, but it was learned that he had left there about a week previous, to what address it was not known.

Information was received, however, that Bragg was employed as a floor-walker in the men department of Marshall Field's State street store, and Mr. White proceeded at once to the store, confident that Bragg was acquainted with the whereabouts of his daughter.

Bragg is Confronted.
At Marshall Field's he failed to find Bragg in the men department at first, but on inquiry the man was found, the latter evidently having seen Mr. White coming and would avoid a meeting.

When confronted by the girl's father, Bragg turned ghostly white, but to the demand to take Mr. White to his daughter, became stubborn. Threats of arrest and state's prison sentence waiting him on various counts for which Mr. White claimed to Bragg he had complete proof, brought the latter to time, and he secured a leave of absence from duty, agreeing to conduct the father to his daughter.

Escape Attempted?
Bragg seemed very nervous and Mr. White believed that he contemplated escape, for he offered to go and get the girl, telling her father of the trouble of the journey to the place where she was staying. Mr. White refused any such terms, however, and reiterated his threats.

Upon arriving at the house where Miss White had been staying with Bragg, the latter offered again to go inside alone, but Mr. White held him to his determination not to allow his companion from his sight.

Case is Stated:
In the presence of his daughter and the man who was her evident choice for a husband, Mr. White stated the case in very plain terms. Bragg, he said, could be sent to state's prison on charges which he could prove, and he feared that his daughter might be implicated. He demanded their marriage certificate, but this they were unable to produce.

The only alternative possible, the couple were told by Mr. White, was an immediate marriage, to which both agreed, and they immediately hurried down town to the license office and from thence to the justice who performed the ceremony.

Father Denies Aid.
Following the ceremony Mr. White made it plain to his daughter that under the present circumstances there would be no aid of any kind forthcoming from him. He bellowed that he had done his part in clearing up the entire affair and that the responsibility now rested with her.

Mr. White returned home last evening, arriving here at 9:15. His theories regarding the entire affair were substantiated in every instance and his search yesterday was productive of clearing up the whole mystery.

Did Not See Taylor.
Robert J. Taylor, the student at the Kansas state college of agriculture, who had started the investigation and who has been most active in the search, was in Rockford yesterday, and Mr. White failed to see him.

It is believed that he was sent away on a wild goose chase by a rumor which he received purporting to be from a Rockford party who could furnish light on the affair. Taylor was in Janesville for a short time last evening and phoned to Mrs. White that his efforts in Rockford had been failures.

It is believed that Bragg had possession of the $50 and paid the marriage costs from the check, which Taylor had sent to Miss White while she was at the W. C. T. U. building and which she did not receive immediately. And her father been acquainted with these facts, the marriage to Bragg might have been postponed for a time at least, until the $50 had been paid.

WILL OPEN LONDON OPERA HOUSE MONDAY

Oscar Hammerstein's New Structure One of the Finest and Best Equipped Theaters in the World.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, Nov. 11.—Monday night, next, with the opening of his new London Opera House, the irrepressible Oscar Hammerstein will enter upon his career as a manager of grand opera in the British metropolis. Whatever the artistic or financial success of the undertaking may be, it is certain that Mr. Hammerstein has given to London one of the finest and best equipped theaters in the world. Designed and completed in twelve months, the magnificent structure in Kingsway is a model opera house in every respect, and if thoroughness and attention to every requirement mean success, the New Yorker is going to be eminently successful.

The opera house will accommodate 2,500 persons. It contains forty boxes, including a handsome suite for the use of the king. The stage measures ninety feet by sixty feet, and is specially constructed with a view to magnificent and spectacular effects. As in the Paris houses, there are saloons, lounges, and foyers for every part of the house. The entrance hall is of unusual size, and surrounded by a peristyle of Corinthian columns, the special feature of the frontage being height. Statues illustrative of music and art stand up on the corners, and out of the building is crowned with large groups of classical statuary.

Among the operas selected for production the opening week are "Norma," "William Tell" and "Qua Vadis." Among the principals in the casts will be Maurice Renaud, Orville Harrold, who makes his London debut on this occasion; Alino Villardi, a favorite of the Paris Opera House Comique, and Nina Patti, who comes from the Paris Gaitey.

COUNCIL UPHOLDS DIPPING IN LAKE

In Spite of Warning of President Van Hise—Janesville Boy a Candidate for Head of Council.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Nov. 11.—Despite President Van Hise's warning that "dipping of freshmen in the lake is a criminal offense punishable by the council," the student conference of the University of Wisconsin last night voted to permit energetic punishment of this kind. It will not be admitted, however, before three upper classmen have passed upon the guilt of the accused in violating the University traditions.

The meeting degenerated into a bitter wrangle between the fraternity and heretofore factions. Walter C. Schleck, Milwaukee, was elected to the student court by the influence of the anti-fraternity men, after a plea of superior and a victory urged the election of William H. Spahn of Janesville, member of the law fraternity.

First Land Show in Canada.
Calgary, Alta., Nov. 11.—Canada's first land show opens in this city tonight, to continue through the coming week. The show takes place in the auditorium where attractive exhibits from many sections of the Canadian West have been installed. In addition to the displays illustrating farm lands and products there are many valuable exhibits of city property, together with plans and models of houses, designs for landscape gardening and numerous other exhibits of interest to the home builder. A large attendance of visitors from out of town is expected during the week.

Victor Immanuel 42 Years Old.
Rome, Nov. 11.—King Victor Immanuel was forty-two years old today and popular enthusiasm over the war caused the anniversary to be marked by national rejoicing upon an unusually extensive scale. The national colors and pictures of the royal family were displayed everywhere. Military reviews were held and diners were given by the municipalities and villages for the peace. During the day all of the foreign diplomatic residents in Rome called at the Quirinal and presented messages of greeting in behalf of the sovereigns and nations they represent.

Canadian Club Banquet.
New York, Nov. 11.—The Canadian Club of New York is to hold its first annual banquet at the Hotel Astor next Monday night and as it will be the first dinner of this representative of Canadian organizations since the defeat of reciprocity, much interest is being shown as to the prospective attendance of the distinguished Canadians and Americans who will address the club. The new cabinet of Ottawa will be represented by Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce. Other Canadian guests will be Robert A. Patterson of Erie will be Robert A. Patterson of Toronto, C. P. Brannan of Montreal, the Right Rev. Frederick Courtney, former bishop of Nova Scotia, Judge D. B. McTavish of Ottawa, and C. R. McCullough, honorary president of the Association of Canadian Clubs.

GIRL FIGHTING TO SAVE FATHER FROM DEATH ON GALLOWS

Pays Cost of Defending Her Father Against Murder Charge With Her Own Earnings as Teacher.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 11.—Not for many years has a murder trial caused so great a sensation and attracted such general interest in this section of the state as the trial to begin here in the Tippecanoe circuit court next Monday, of John W. Poole, a prosperous Benton county farmer who is charged with having murdered Joseph Kemper, one of his German farmhands, in December 1909. It is not morbid curiosity alone or a desire to have an opportunity to listen to the revolting details of a brutal crime that cause this general interest. The feature which more than any other appeals to the heart and sympathy of the people is the brave fight which Grace Poole, the daughter of the accused man is making to save her father from the gallows.

Grace Poole alone of all the members of the Poole family, faithfully stands by her father and out of her meager earnings as teacher in the Wheatfield public school, defrays the cost of defending her father in the coming trial. Poole's wife and his other daughter have turned against him and have absolutely refused to contribute to the fund for Poole's defense. His son, Emory Poole, who has been the prime accuser of his father, and has lost literally no stone unturned to find evidence against the old man, continues to maintain his attitude of extreme hostility and has openly declared that he would not rest until his father is hanged.

John W. Poole was one of the most substantial men in Benton county. He owned several prosperous farms, but, owing to some financial troubles a few years ago, he transferred the title of the property to his wife, Joseph Kemper, with whose murder he is charged, worked for Poole during the summer and fall of 1909. He was last seen alive on December 10 or 12, 1909, and since then every trace of him was lost. It was supposed that he had left the farm to find work in the lumber camps of Michigan.

Nobody suspected that Kemper had been murdered until Justice E. B. Emory, formerly a justice of the peace, learned that his father had killed Kemper and buried his body somewhere on the farm. The elder Poole was arrested on March 18, 1911, and charged with the murder of Kemper, but was discharged on the same day, because there was absolutely no evidence against him at that time beyond the accusation of Emory Poole.

Young Poole, apparently convinced that his suspicions were well founded and determined to find the necessary proofs for the guilt of his father, continued the search for Kemper's body, exploring every part of the grounds with that object in view. His perseverance was apparently rewarded, in the middle of his corn field, about half a mile from the Poole homestead, he found the decomposed remains of a human body, mingled with the remains of a hog's carcass. He notified the authorities and, although the remains of the human body were far beyond identification, insisted upon his charge that the body was that of Joseph Kemper, whom he accused his father of having murdered.

John W. Poole was again arrested and brought to Pawnee, Ind., where he was arraigned before Justice L. B. Stephenson, on May 4, last. At this trial the charge was preferred by Emory Poole, who submitted practically all the evidence. Poole pleaded not guilty and was held to the grand jury without bail on a charge of murder. In due course of time he was indicted and his trial was set for next Monday.

Although Poole continued to maintain his innocence of having committed intentional murder, he is said to have confessed that he accidentally shot and killed Kemper and then buried his body for fear of the consequences of his deed. Poole, it is said, claims that while he climbed over the fence of his orchard to hunt rabbits, his shotgun was accidentally discharged and the full load struck Kemper in the head at close range, killing him instantly.

Emory three has been engaged to defend Poole and it is believed that he will make a plea of insanity for his client. Fifteen years ago Poole was tried for having tried to shoot a man named Quilley. The jury decided, however, that Poole was insane and he was sent to an asylum in Indianapolis, where he remained several years.

Grace Poole, the prisoner's younger daughter, came near losing her position as school teacher in the Wheatfield public school where she has been doing good work for several years. Many of the parents objected to her because her father had been accused of murder, but the brave girl called a meeting of the parents and won their sympathy and support when she explained to them that it would be impossible for her to help her father should she be deprived of her position.

STATE HIGHWAY AID HAS GOOD RESULTS SAYS A. R. HIRST

State Highway Engineer Here Yesterday—Stimulation to Road Building—Inspects Rock County Roads.

That the new state aid for highways is accomplishing all and more than was hoped for by its framers in stimulating the building of good roads in Wisconsin, was the opinion expressed by State Highway Engineer A. R. Hirst to a Gazette representative last evening. Engineer Hirst, in company with S. S. Jones of Clinton, County Commissioner, is making an inspection of Rock county roads. Yesterday they drove over highways in the towns of Clinton, Beloit, and Turle, and today they will inspect roads in Rock, Janesville and Harmony townships, weather permitting.

The revival, or more correctly, the beginning in general, of good road building in Wisconsin dates from the enactment of the county aid law, stated Mr. Hirst. There has been detached pieces of good work done in the state previous to that time, but nothing of a comprehensive or systematic nature. Under the county aid system excellent work has been done, and the addition of state aid has proved a powerful stimulus. The method of taxation and distribution has been so designed as to encourage road building; those towns and those counties which do not elect to share in the bounty are taxed, but do not get any benefit, and it is to their advantage to ask for all the bounty they can get. Sauk county profited over a hundred per cent on state aid this year. Three counties, this year, made application for greater amounts than they paid in, and were given a slight fraction over thirty-seven per cent of the amount they asked for.

Next year Dane county will rank second in the amount of money asked for road construction, the sum being $80,000. Milwaukee county comes first with $200,000. During the last four years Rock county has spent approximately $125,000 on its roads.

Nine-tenths of the state aid roads to be built during the year will be in the form of "widening" roads, according to Engineer Hirst. It has been found that a greater width is quite unnecessary for county roads and the extra expense is not justified. After two years of use a thirty-foot road will have the same rate in the center as a nine foot road put down at the same time and the grass and weeds will be found to have usurped a good portion of the sides. Sauk county, which started out to build fourteen and twelve-foot roads, has for the last two years been building them only nine feet wide.

Highway construction in Rock county, as stated by Commissioner Jones has struggled under a handicap for the most of the season. During the summer the weather was too dry and hot and this fall heavy rains have held up the work; consequently it is much behind.

With 7 persons known to be dead, horses and cattle killed, barns and houses demolished, the storm which swept over Rock county this afternoon, left a trail of desolation that has not been equalled for many years.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Santa Barbara, Cal., Nov. 11.—After describing how he buried a new born baby alive, John Reck, an Italian, today was held for trial. His wife is also accused. He agreed to "put away" the baby so they could send ten dollars to the old folks in Italy. Reck said he put the infant up in a hole which he had dug in the ground and then filled it with earth.

Ben McCullough Centenary.
Marion, Tenn., Nov. 11.—One hundred years ago today saw the birth in this county of the redoubtable Ben McCullough, whose exploits as an Indian fighter and soldier of fortune revealed the stirring deeds of Davy Crockett and other famous Western pioneers. McCullough fought under three flags. In his youth he followed the Stars and Stripes into battle against the Indians. Later, at the battle of San Jacinto, he fought side by side with Sam Houston for the "Lone Star" flag of the Texas Republic. At the outbreak of the civil war he joined the Confederates. He was commissioned brigadier-general and was killed while fighting under the Stars and Bars at the battle of Pea Ridge.

Eight Dead in Cyclone that Swept Over Rock County This Afternoon Leaving Death In Its Wake.

EIGHT PERSONS KNOWN TO BE DEAD—THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF DAMAGE DONE TO PROPERTY—BARN AND HOUSES DEMOLISHED, CATTLE KILLED IN THE FIELD.

WAS WORST IN YEARS

Terrible Sweep Over Extends But Twenty Rods in Width and is Cleaned as Though Mowed Down by a Scythe—Everything is Destroyed—No Word Can Be Secured Over Telephone or Telegraph Lines.

DEAD.

THREE GIRLS, ONE BOY, AND FATHER IN SMITH FAMILY, at Orford.

MRS. JOHN CROWDER, Orford. MRS. PRODEE, Hanover.

FRED LENTZ, On Barker Farm. KERBAN CHILD, on the Dudley Farm north of city.

WENZEL KERBAN, dyeing.

With 7 persons known to be dead, horses and cattle killed, barns and houses demolished, the storm which swept over Rock county this afternoon, left a trail of desolation that has not been equalled for many years.

Coming from the southwest the storm swept over a strip of territory estimated at twenty rods in width leaving death and desolation in its wake. At Orford the storm appears to have been at its worst. Five members of the Smith family were killed, three young girls, a boy, the father and a young bride of but a few weeks, Mrs. Prodee.

Cattle were killed in barns and field and lay about the fields, their bodies mixed with the wreck of houses and barns. In some places houses were picked up and thrown across the street. Barns were moved yards. Wagons taken up into the air and cast about in dismembered sections through acres of land.

At Hanover a handsome house, standing eighty rods to the north of the tracks, was entirely demolished, all the cattle about the place stricken dead in their stalls or fields and thousands of dollars worth of damage done.

Passengers arriving in the city from Brodhead and west on the afternoon train report the scene of the wreckage on both sides of the track, where animals lie dead in the fields and one farm house torn into splinters and scattered for rods, telephone and telegraph lines driven into the ground.

North and west of Janesville the storm also left its trail. On the Frank Welch farm near the Mississippi golf links, the big tobacco shed was blown down, the handsome new sheep barn wrecked the barn destroyed and other damage done.

On the A. M. Church farm the big tobacco shed was blown completely away, the house seriously damaged. Window panes broken and the big windmill blown into bits and scattered for rods about. On the Diehl's farm the roof of the barn was completely blown away into an adjacent field and the porch from a neighboring farm house blown into a field and the house otherwise damaged.

On the Schoof place opposite Burr Springs, occupied by T. J. Reilly, the house and barn were blown into Rock River. The horses which were in the barn were saved. Mr. and Mrs. Reilly, were in Janesville and escaped destruction. Their home is wrecked.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harlow, who were up the river this afternoon, came down the river in a launch and reported the river was full of trees and wreckage from houses and barns which had blown into it.

Manager Miller of the Wisconsin Telephone company reports that all his wires to the west, north and east are down, poles reported snapped in two and wires blown into the grounds. From the Rock County Telephone company comes a similar report.

The storm evidently started with its intensity west of Brodhead and swept down along a twenty-rod path, striking north of the city and continuing on its way eastward.

HAVOC WROUGHT BY SIMILAR STORM AT EVANSVILLE.

The Western Union reports no wires to the north or west and the Postal Telegraph company has only one wire open, that to the south.

From the Baker farm, two miles and a half from the city the report comes that Fred Lentz, a carpenter, working on a barn, was blown off and killed instantly.

The Northwestern railroad reports its wires north and west of the city down and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul lines to the west and east are all grounded.

Persons who experienced the storm report that it was most intense.

W. J. Bacon of Escanaba, Michigan, W. S. Zimmerman and C. A. Zimmerman of Chicago, who started shortly after one to drive to Milton Junction, were caught in a storm east of the city and experienced a hail storm which followed the wind and rain that cut into their faces and hands and they were forced to drive into a field to a tree to take refuge.

Chas. Cleland was at his farm four miles out on the Magnolia road and reports much damage to property along that district. Part of the house on the Frank Welch farm was blown down and considerable damage to buildings on the Richards farm. He was obliged to lead his horse along the road home because of the littered condition of the thoroughfare; trees, telephone poles and fences were scattered; telephone poles broken in three places and a mile of telephone line down. Apple trees were uprooted and blown the distance of a block in some places.

A report comes in that a carpenter at work on the roof of a new barn on the Baker farm was blown off and killed.

On the Dudley farm north of the city the eight-year-old daughter of Wenzel Kerban was killed by falling timbers. The house was struck by the tornado and Mrs. Kerban and four children who were inside, were thrown with the building. The little girl being caught and instantly killed. Kerban was in the yard and was struck by flying timbers and his chest crushed. He is in a serious condition and may die.

The house and barns were totally destroyed. Mrs. Kerban escaped without injury but the other three children were badly bruised.

From Brodhead comes the word that thousands of windows were broken in Brodhead and vicinity on account of the hail.

Five houses are reported as having been destroyed at Milton Junction and at many places between here and that place report the destruction of farm residences, barns and silos.

St. Atkinson.—A heavy rain storm, accompanied by terrific wind, visited this city this afternoon, doing considerable minor damage, but no fatalities are reported thus far.

HAVOC WROUGHT BY SIMILAR STORM AT EVANSVILLE.

COLD WAVE IS SAID TO BE ON ITS WAY

Rain Turning to Snow is the Weather Prediction for Tonight and Sunday.

According to the weather man there is a cold wave coming. Rain, turning to snow tonight, with snow flurries Sunday. Severe cold wave tonight with high northwest winds. That is the way the weather man has it doped out.

At two o'clock this afternoon the big thermometer outside the Gazette office registered seventy-four degrees and a few minutes when the severe rain storm struck the city, it dropped ten degrees.

In Milwaukee, Milwaukee, Nov. 11.—With the mercury up to seventy-two degrees and the humidity fifty at noon today, Milwaukee swallowed, with the weather bureau officials predicting the coldest yet of the year before midnight.

NEW SONG RINGING THROUGH WISCONSIN

What appears to be the best song yet written by Harry Von Tilzer, author of "All Alone," "They Always Pick On Me" and "Knock Wood," is a little song just come to town called "All Aboard for Blanket Day." It has a delightfully old swing, and is a portion of the chorus clipped from a sheet of the music just received.

In New York they are singing the song in the theatres, in the parlors, and even in the schools. The orchestra appear to play nothing else and dancing academics are using it as a waltz. The few copies that reached town last week disappeared as if by magic and the Janesville girls will certainly have a time with this new one this winter.

GARDEN ON VALUABLE LAND

Small Patch in Heart of City of London Is One of Capital's Curiosities.

There are many curious things about the Bank of England, but among them how many know that it possesses a respectable garden? It is to be found just inside the Threadneedle street entrance, on the left-hand side. This old-fashioned garden has a fountain in the center, graveled paths and a couple of trees, the whole forming a quadrangle with the bank building running all round.

Its history is a curious one. In reality this garden is the churchyard of the vanished Church of St. Christopher-Rock, which used to stand where the Mansion House now is. One reason why the church was pulled down was because its tower completely overlooked the bank, and it was feared that it would be a danger to the "Old Lady" if the church was occupied by rioters. As the bank occupies the site of the entire parish of St. Christopher-Rock, it is said that any freeman of the city can claim admission to the old garden. But, as a matter of fact, any one who cares to see it may do so during business hours, and it is well worth a visit, if only for the fact that it is the most valuable garden in the world.

PIONEER RESIDENT DIED LAST EVENING

Mrs. Charles Doubleday Gathered by Grim Reaper Less Than Week After Death of Brother.

Mrs. Charles Doubleday, one of the few remaining pioneer residents of Janesville, passed out of her rapidly thinning ranks at midnight last night, less than a week after the death of her brother, the late lamented John Plowright, who died last Sunday. Mrs. Doubleday had been in very poor health for a long time, but had been confined to her bed only five days previous to her demise. Pneumonia with other complications was the cause of her death.

Miss Elizabeth Plowright, the maiden name of the deceased, was born in Lincolnshire, England, August 12, 1837. She was married there to Charles Doubleday, May 19, 1858, and on June 10, of the same year, emigrated with her husband to this country. They came directly to Janesville and have made their home in Rock county ever since, with the exception of six years spent in Colman, South Dakota.

Surviving the deceased are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. E. P. Spear of Colman, S. D.; a son, Charles Doubleday of Bradford; and seven grandchildren. Two sisters, Mary and Sarah, died in England, and a daughter, Mrs. M. B. Bennett, of Hayden, Ia., died nineteen years ago.

Funeral services for Mrs. Doubleday will be held at the home, 258 South Franklin street, Monday afternoon, at one o'clock. The Rev. T. D. Williams, pastor of the Methodist church, will officiate. The remains will be buried in the Emerald Grove cemetery.

WILLIAM GRAY DIED LATE THIS MORNING

Passes Away at Home South of Janesville After an Illness Extending Over Eight Months.

William Henry Gray, father of George V. Gray of this city, died at ten o'clock this morning at his home two miles south of Janesville, after an illness extending over the last eight months.

Mr. Gray was born in White Haven, Pennsylvania, March 8, 1840. He came to Janesville when twelve years old and was married January 6, 1870 to Martha L. Inman, who with his son, George, survives him.

Funeral services for the deceased will be held Tuesday afternoon; prayers being said at the house at 1:30 o'clock and at the chapel in Oak Hill cemetery at 2:30. The Rev. Denton will be the officiating clergyman.

William Welch

Last services for William Welch were conducted at nine o'clock this morning at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church. Friends and kin of the deceased were present in large numbers and showed their regard by numerous and beautiful floral emblems. The pall bearers were James Doe, John Casey, John McCue, John Connors and James Dempsey. Burial of the remains was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Charles Noel.
The remains of Charles Noel were sent to Menominee this morning over the North-Western railway. The remains were accompanied by his wife and child and several employees of the sugar factory. Interment will be made at Menominee.

MRS. JULIA MYERS IS EIGHTY-SEVEN

Celebrated Her Birthday Anniversary With a Dinner Party Last Night At Her Home on East Street.

Mrs. Julia Myers, one of Janesville's oldest and most respected citizens, celebrated her eighty-seventh birthday anniversary last evening with a formal dinner party at her residence on East street. Mrs. Myers, while not entirely recovered from a recent ailment she suffered two years ago, is in good health and thoroughly enjoyed her celebration party, which was arranged for her by her daughter, Miss Katherine Myers. Those present were Mrs. Abigail Doty; Mrs. Julia Stodard; Dr. and Mrs. Fred Sutherland; Mrs. Laura Myers; Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Myers and Miss Katherine Myers. Mrs. Myers was the recipient of a handsome wheeled chair of the latest pattern from her daughter, Miss Myers, and her son, P. L. Myers. The dinner was a most elaborate one. Both the house and the dining room were specially decorated for the occasion.

ENTER COMPLAINTS BUT REFUSE TO BEAR WITNESS

Three Men Arrested Last Night on Charge of Begging but Accusers Do Not Appear in Court.

Three men, giving the names of Jack Dorsey, Frank Smith and Otto Leutz, were arrested last evening on complaints made to the police but this morning when their accusers were called upon to testify they refused with the excuse that since the identification was made in the dark they might possibly be mistaken. The men were kept at the police station all morning and will probably be released some time today.

HOWARD D. HOOVER DIES SUDDENLY

Passed Away This Morning at Seven at a Sanitarium at Ottawa, Illinois.

Word was received this morning of the death of Howard D. Hoover of this city at a sanitarium at Ottawa, Illinois, where he has been for weeks past. While it was known he was not as well for the past few days his illness was not thought serious and the news of his death came as a great shock to his wife and many friends in this city.

Mr. Hoover has been a resident of Janesville since 1881. He was born in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, forty-two years ago, came to this city as a young boy. For many years he has been on the road, traveling for the firm of Miller & Conners of Chicago. Mr. Miller, of that firm, went to Ottawa this morning upon notification of the death and will accompany the remains to this city.

Mr. Hoover was a member of Christ Episcopal church, a devout Christian and has many friends in the city who will be shocked to learn of his demise. He has been in poor health for months past and went to the sanitarium some weeks ago for special treatment. He was married eighteen years ago to Miss Isabelle Winslow of this city, who survives him. Notice of the funeral will be given later.

LINK AND PIN.

Chicago & North-Western.
Water Tank Repairs Delay: The work of repairing the water tank at the station this morning was the cause of much delay in the movement of trains as the engines that needed water were forced to go to South train came about the same time this morning and they all had the traffic blocked while they went to South Janesville.

Draw Bars Pull Out: Two large freight trains which came into Janesville this morning had the misfortune to pull a drawbar from one of the many cars that composed the tonnage and were considerably delayed. One of the trains which came by way of Afton pulled the drawbar out of the second car for the engine while making the grade near the Milwaukee roundhouse, and as a result traffic was blocked over that line for a little time. The damaged cars were put on a siding and the trains moved forward as soon as possible. Freight traffic is heavy and the loads that are being handled sometimes prove too much for some of the "links" which give out when taxed too heavily.

Christian Science Church.
First Church of Christ, Scientist, holds services in Phoenix Block, West Milwaukee street, Sunday morning at 10:30 and Wednesday evening at 7:45. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday morning will be "Mortals and Immortals." Sunday school meets at 12 o'clock. Reading room open daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 2 to 4 p. m.

Shocked By Live Wire: A telephone wire on North Jackson street was loosened by the wind this morning and fell down into the street. It evidently short circuited an electric light wire for two or three persons who came into contact with it were brisley shocked. One man is said to have received a burn on his face. Patrolman Brown notified the telephone and electric companies of the disordered wires as soon as he was informed of the fact.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Mrs. John Horn of 551 North Chatham street was called to Harrington this morning on account of the serious illness of her grandson, Irving.

Miss Elizabeth Walsh of Linn street will spend Sunday in Chicago.

Bradley Conrad, Louis Dango, and Homer Cooper will spend Sunday in academy at Beaver Dam.

ADHERED TO HER BARGAIN

Bride Had Own Opinion of Marriage as Business Transaction, but Parson Got His Fee.

The Rev. L. B. Bates, long associated with the East Boston Bethel, talks in his "Wonder Book" of an amusing marriage ceremony performed by his father. This is his account of it:

About nine o'clock one night the old paragon on Cape Cod was approached by a man and a woman in a "one horse shay." Hearing the wheels, Father Bates went to the door, to see coming up the walk a buxom lass of two hundred pounds or so, followed by a very little man.

With a giggle she announced, "We've come to be married, parson, haven't we, Bill?" An energetic nodden succeeded in eliciting the desired affirmation from "Bill."

The parson exclaimed the license, and proceeded to business.

"Please join your right hands," he said. "Dearly beloved, you are gathered here for the purpose of holy matrimony. Do you—?" but he was here interrupted by the bride:

"Say, parson, before you go any further would you mind taking your pay in dried apples?"

Being assured that dried apples were current coin with parsons, she allowed him to proceed:

"Madam, do you—?" but again he was interrupted.

"Say, parson, the apples are not ripe yet, but you shall have them without fail."

He assured her that her honesty was appreciated, and proceeded with the ceremony without further interruption.

Two months later a bushel of the best dried apples was hauled by the bride herself to the parsonage door.

"I don't know as he was worth it," she said, with a twinkle in her eye, "but a bargain is a bargain for all that."—Youth's Companion.

SUFFERED FOR YEARS OWE HEALTH TO PE-RU-NA.

Many a malron has lengthened the days of her comely appearance by taking Peruna. To be beautiful, the body must be kept clean internally as well as externally. Peruna produces clean mucous membranes, the basis of facial symmetry, and a clear, healthy complexion.

MISS NETTIE E. BOGARDUS

Internal Catarrh.
Mrs. George C. Worstell, 11 River Road, Clarkburg, W. Va., writes:

"I can truly say I have been much benefited by the use of Peruna. I feel better than I have for two years. It is the best medicine that I know for internal catarrh. When I began taking Peruna I could see that before I had finished taking the first bottle it was doing me good."

Sick Headache.

Miss Nettie E. Bogardus, R. F. D. 21, Westfield, N. Y., writes:

"I have been a great sufferer from sick headaches, but am now entirely free from that trouble. I have not felt so well in ten years as I do now."

Gained Appetite and Strength.

Miss Julia Butler, Appleton, Wis., writes: "My doctor advised me to try Peruna. I took your treatment and my appetite returned speedily. I gained strength and flesh and am in perfect health."

Mrs. O. D. Robinson, 36 St. Felix Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I have taken Peruna and it did me more good than all my two years' treatment by special physicians. I can really say that I feel like another person. No more swollen feet and limbs. No more bloating of the abdomen. No more shortness of breath. No more stiff and sore joints. You have no idea what your treatment has done for me. It certainly has prolonged my life and made a new woman of me."

Circuit Court Adjourned: Judge Grimm has returned to his home in Jefferson, leaving two divorce cases against the C. M. and St. P. railway to be decided the week of November 25. The parties for these cases have been impaneled and the work will be disposed of as quickly as possible that week.

Comedy of Corn.

"Yes."

"Well, he gets wild whenever the Matland girl, who's his fiancee, eats corn off the cob. She found out how he felt about it, and the other evening at dinner at the club she tried to cut the corn from the cob. Briggs noticed this and smiled approvingly, but just then her knife slipped, the cob popped nimbly onto Briggs' shirt-bosom, the plate skidded, the gravy bowl went over and all the cut off kernels showered themselves dangerously near the gorgeous corsage of that very stout Mrs. Singleton Mink."

"And what did Briggs do?"

"Say, Briggs was game. He called the waiter, handed him the cob, and said, 'Francis, this corn popped from the plate just now. I didn't order popcorn. Bring the other sort, Francis, and make it cobless, please.'"

Curious Annamese Customs.

Mme. Gabrielle M. Vassat, the wife of a French doctor, who was attached to the Pastour Institute of the Nha-Trang, a little village on the coast of Annam, relates some of her experiences. When she and her husband arrived at Nha-Trang they were received by the native servants, who saluted and squatted on the floor for a long period, this being their method of greeting Europeans. Servants had the curious habit of washing all dishes under the table; never on its top. Men and women dressed alike, wearing trousers and tunics, and women on the way to market with their baskets always walked in single file.

Obligation of Love.

Love is a debt, an obligation that never can be fully met, and so must rest upon us always. We cannot refuse obligation at will, cannot refuse payment and hold ourselves free. Aid and kindness, sympathy and love, we owe on every hand, to our brother man everywhere, while life lasts.—J. R. Miller.

HIGH SCHOOL PLAYED IN JEFFERSON TODAY

Hardest Game of Season Played This Afternoon—Team Has Made Good Showing This Year.

Janesville high school plays Jefferson this afternoon what was thought would be the hardest game of the season. Last week Jefferson held Fort Atkinson to a small score in a game for the championship of the state. From the reports which come from there Jefferson has a very strong team and if the local boys are able to hold them or to score on them it will be a very creditable record.

Out of five games played the local eleven has won three and has a total of 92 points against the twenty points of their opponents for the season. The team has been practicing hard this week and is in very good condition for today's game. Coach McMurray was optimistic about the result and planned on having the boys from Janesville win.

SETH T. FARNSWORTH
SOLVES HIGH COST OF LIVING
Mr. Seth T. Farnsworth Who Proposes a Plan Which Will Bring The Year's Cost to $86.28

No one vital question is before 100,000,000 people in the United States than the high cost of living. When Congress convenes in December this topic will be one of the chief issues.

Senator Chapp, the militant insurgent of Minnesota, as chairman of the Senate Committee of Interstate Commerce, has undertaken the task of finding a satisfactory answer to the question. He has not as yet announced his plan, but it is possible that the commission will be asked for to fix the price of butter and eggs and mutton each morning.

Mr. Seth T. Farnsworth has advanced a plan which through co-operation would theoretically bring the average cost of necessities for sustaining life to $86.28 a year.

This sounds impossible and yet were it possible in a utopia to carry out his theories, the scheme would be practical. Mr. Farnsworth has been active in this movement for many years and has made a life study of the subject. He is recognized authority on this work. During the recent campaign in behalf of the consumer inaugurated by Mayor Shook of Indianapolis, Mr. Farnsworth was called into consultation and there presented some original and novel ideas.

In the first place he would establish a farmer's clearing house to work in the interests of the farmers in practically the same relation that the clearing house does to the bank. Mr. Farnsworth would receive a fixed, fair staple all the year price of $1.00 per bushel for wheat, fifty cents per bushel for corn and so on through the list of farmer's products.

This central clearing house for the farmers would be in co-operation with the clearing house for the consumer. His plan would not eliminate the middleman in any case but would through systematic co-operation yield the middleman a fair profit.

For example, the corn purchased at a definite price of fifty cents per bushel will be turned over to the Co-operative Canning Company, earned at cost plus a small margin, transferred to the grocery store and delivered by the groceryman on a definite route, the same as Uncle Sam's postmen now handle mail at the rate of one-fourth of a cent per pound and reach the consumer at the remarkably low price of three cents per can instead of fifteen cents. The middleman would be working under a guarantee of not less than $1,200 per year and would be as sure of his money as the postman is now. The same process would hold throughout the entire system and no one would suffer real loss. There would of course be no unusual riches gathered by the middleman and there would be no immense 40 or 50 per cent selling expense attached to the various different stages between the farm and the consumer.

It is certainly sure that could the farmer, the middleman, and the consumer be brought into one harmonious co-operative scheme, reasonable profit could be made by each and every one and the cost to the individual would be reduced 50, 60 and 80 per cent.

Mr. Farnsworth has estimated the yearly expense as follows:

Food, 1,000 pounds at 15c.....	$15.00
4 suits of clothes at $3.50.....	14.00
4 hats at 50c.....	2.00
4 pairs of shoes at $1.00.....	4.00
4 suits of underwear at 70c.....	2.80
1000 lbs of coal.....	20.00
12 pairs of socks at 8c.....	.96
18 collars at 8c.....	1.44
18 cuffs at 8c.....	1.44
18 handkerchiefs at 8c.....	1.44
Washing a week 25c.....	13.00
Total.....	$82.93

A Hair's Breadth.
A "hair's breadth" is 17-10,000 of an inch. For the purpose of such fine and delicate measurement tool makers use what is called a micrometer caliper. The hair's breadth is something that has to be taken into consideration in the manufacture of a thousand and one things in the machine maker's art. Close calculation of this sort must be done on the doors of bank vaults, for example, where every part must fit to the nicest degree.—Harper's Weekly.

An Incurable.
Lieutenant Commander Symington at a luncheon once toasted a noted admiral. "He is a good man," he said; "too good a man, I sometimes think, for this rough, wicked world of ours. He is an idealist and an optimist. Indeed, he is such an incurable idealist and optimist that if you should send him on a wild goose chase he'd speak of himself forever afterward as a big game hunter."

Keep Hope Alive.
Never abandon hope. Remember that no earnest effort is ever lost. Get away from the habit of looking on the dark side. Nothing will so completely paralyze the creative power of the mind as a dark, gloomy, discouraged mental attitude. It keeps multitudes of people from obtaining the very things they most desire.

NOTED ELEVEN'S BATTLE ON 11-11-11.

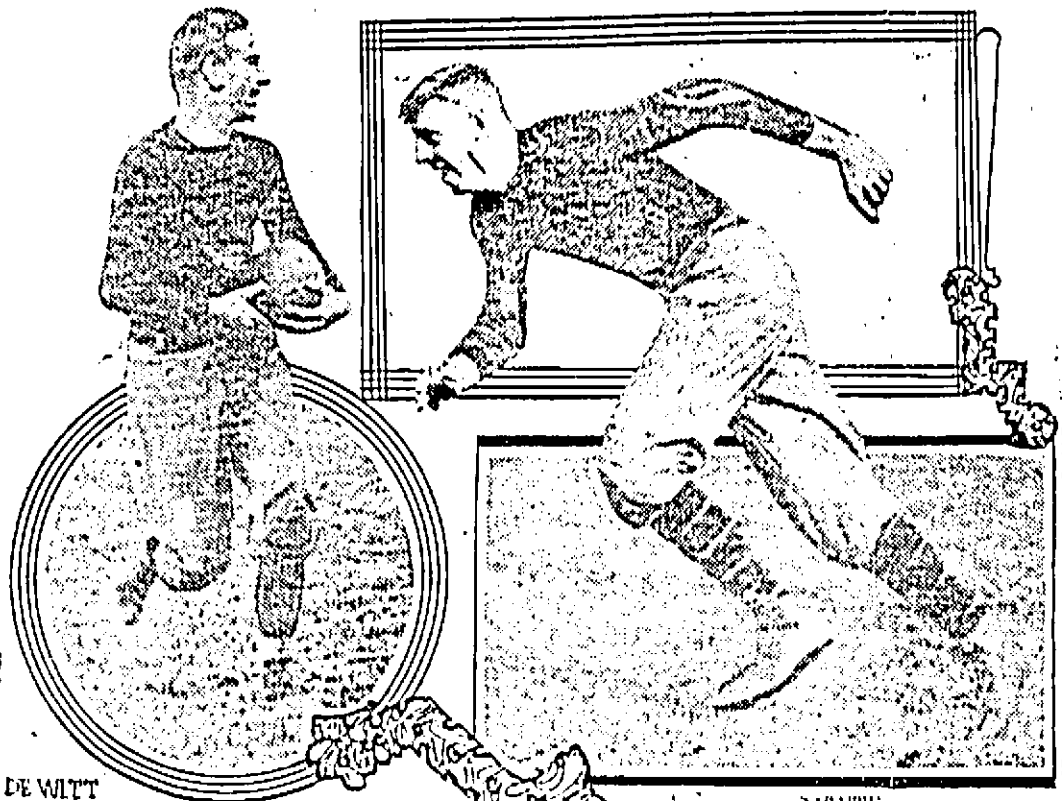

On this, the 11th day, the 11th month of the year 1911, there takes place many of the most bitterly fought combats between football eleven's of the year.

At New Haven the Stars of 11 meet Brown in a contest which will be a fight throughout.

At Ithaca Michigan meets Cornell.

At Princeton Dartmouth beats the tiger in his den. These are only a few of the games which take place east and west, but are among the most important.

Not again in a century will a football eleven play on the date written 11-11-11, and not until December 12th, 1912, will a like repetition of numerals appear when the date is written out in figures. It will then read 12-12-12.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

He wasn't very great or very clever. He wasn't very rich or very poor. But we liked him all the more because he never drew attention to himself by being found.

In the background he was happiest, remaining. In society he never made a stir. He wasn't very bright or entertaining. But he never interrupted those who were.

He couldn't sing or dance or tell a story. He never was a cut-up with the boys. He never tried to bluff his way to glory.

And he never made us weary with his noise.

—Detroit Free Press.

The author of this homely sentiment must have had in mind that simple statement of Lincoln's which helped to make his name immortal: "God must have loved the common people because he made so many of them."

"The average man or woman is neither very great or very clever, and the world is made up of average people who enter the arena unnoticed and pass down the line of life without attracting much attention."

"The average fan goes to the opera and breaks through the mist over the old familiar bell every morning, and calls the day's work done when it fades from sight in the golden glow which tints the trees in the valley sacred to boyhood associations."

The average village and hamlet and many of the inland towns acquired their growth fifty years ago, and the average inhabitant is the old resident who has been in watching the arrival of the mail train, and a daily visit to the postoffice.

Many of the boys and girls have come out from those staid environments to help redeem a new territory and then settled down to the same quiet life of the early years.

The average business man goes on year after year, through his generation in the same old store, not expecting to amass a fortune but content to most familiar faces, and serve the old time constituency.

The average physician grows gray in serving the community where he first hung out his shingle and in time enjoys the honored distinction of being known as the family doctor in many homes.

The average clergyman may be profound and philosophical and a loyal exponent of theology, but he is seldom known beyond his own parish or the field where his lot is cast.

The average wife and mother is a home keeper, and the narrow confines of the little realm over which she presides, satisfies her ambition, and gives to the world, however humble, an air of content and happiness.

The average American home is provided with all the comforts and many of the luxuries of life, and coming from these pleasant environments the boys and girls discover early in the race that the work of the brain is necessary to lighten the work of the hand, and so it happens that the men who work in the ditch, and build our railroads, and the girls who serve in the home, are representatives of our adopted citizenship.

It is estimated that New York City has as a part of its population half a million people who have never left the island of Manhattan. They landed at Castle Garden and were swallowed up by the great city, living in crowded tenements and performing the most menial work; yet they are not unhappy because their condition is better than in the lands from which they came.

There is no country beneath the stars where the average conditions of life are so desirable as in this fair land which we call our home—a fact not always appreciated.

There are two or three things which contribute to these pleasant surroundings that are worth considering. The average people who enter into the warp and woof of our national fabric are contented people, and, in spite of the seeds of socialism and anarchy, that come to us from across the seas, they maintain independence of thought and action, and hold their state steadily in her course.

It is a mistaken notion that this nation should copy the traditions of the old world in any form of government, and some of our educators are responsible for advocating this dangerous doctrine. The principle on which this nation was founded, was liberty without license, and because this principle has been preserved, the nation has prospered.

Some uneasiness has been manifested because socialism made some gains in the recent elections, and Congressman Berger predicts that his party will cast two million votes in 1912—but there is no occasion for alarm. The American muck-raker and fanatical agitator has had his day and the country will survive as it did after the green-back and free silver epidemic.

The national election next year will settle many questions which are now more or less perplexing. Should the people be wise enough to continue President Taft in office, the nation will settle down to an era of continued prosperity. Should they be foolish enough to transfer the reins of government to the democratic party they will enjoy the benefits of four years' experience that will be like a tonic, but be fruitful of good results in the end. In either event socialism will be lost in the shuffle.

Next to the solidarity inspired by a contented and prosperous people, the nation is indebted to the limited class of men and women who rank above the average and who stand out like sentinels in the rear guard of the procession. These people are found at the head of the procession. They are past masters in the arts and sciences and they not only blaze the trail, but they also build the highways across the continent, redeeming the waste places and making it possible for the average mortal to live a home and fortune.

Thomas Edison gives to us the telephone, the dynamo and the electric light, and we appropriate the products of his brain faster than he can perfect them and then kick about the service because that is our privilege. Enterprising and ability invests one hundred million dollars in tunneling mountains and overcoming obstacles to aid transportation from coast to coast. We absorb the benefits like a sponge and then attempt to tax them out of existence for their dare devil folly.

The schools of the land are indebted to Ella Flagg Young, principal of the Chicago Schools and president of the National Teachers' Association—for some innovation in the way of practical education which she has introduced for the benefit of the average boy and girl who graduates from the grades, and who has heretofore but little to show for the time invested.

Over in Germany a man is working on a wireless telephone. He is already able to send his voice through a stone wall and across the city and says that when his invention is perfected that a mountain will be no obstacle.

When this German is ready to do business he will find a ready market for the machine on this side. The average wife will then be able to scold her husband down town without the aid of a central office and people can stay at home Sunday and listen to the sermon or sleep without embarrassment. This German is a long way above the average and everybody will wish him God speed.

There are two or three things which the average mortals cause and discuss with fearless freedom because they never talk back and most any sort of a brain can carry on this kind of a discussion.

The weather is perhaps the most fruitful topic and if the powers in control could be influenced the variety of weather would keep the most of us guessing.

The railroads also come in for a free for all discussion and it is surprising how these corporations manage to get along in spite of the aid of an adoring board, which every community is ready to furnish.

The Standard Oil Company is perhaps the most closely hated of any of the large corporations, and it is surprising that we average people are willing to use any of its products. A man who was having his car filled at a wagon the other day was asked what was his grievance and he said the grinding monopoly ought to be compelled to run a pipe line through his back yard so that he would not be bothered with a can.

Here is a paragraph from an address delivered not long ago by Lester M. Shaw of Iowa fame. It shows up the situation from a new angle.

"If you go to a hotel at Portland, Maine, and there order a gallon of Poland Spring Water bottled as a nature produces it a few miles in the country, that gallon will cost sixty cents. If you go to Dedwood, S. D., and there order four gallons of horse manure all a thousand miles from the wells that produce it, the four gallons will cost sixty cents. Everybody complains of the profits made on refined petroleum and no one complains of the profits made on Poland Spring Water and no one will unless the owner of the spring endows a university."

In the good time coming we will be more charitable as a people and with our modesty will recognize the fact that the average mortal is enriched by the men who go to the front and blaze the trail for the march of progress.

The subject announced by Dr. Beaton for his Sunday night sermon tomorrow, indicates that the pulpit is interested in practical themes which touch humanity in the struggle for existence. What the people want is something to help them over the rough places here.

SCRIPTURE.

DANIEL 1:8-16

But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank, therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself.

Now God had brought Daniel into favor and tender love with the prince of the eunuchs.

And the prince of the eunuchs said unto Daniel, I fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your meat and your drink: for why should he see your faces worse looking than the children, which are of your sort? then shall you make me endanger my head to the king.

Then said Daniel to Melzar, whom the prince of the eunuchs had set over Daniel, Hananiah, Michael, and Azariah, Prove thy servants, I beseech thee, ten days; and let them give us pulse to eat, and water to drink.

Then let our countenances be looked upon before thee, and the countenance of the children that eat of the portion of the king's meat: and as thou seest, deal with thy servants.

So he consented to them in this matter, and proved them ten days. And at the end of ten days their countenances appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than all the children which did eat of the portion of the king's meat.

Thus Melzar took away the portion of their meat, and the wine that they should drink; and gave them pulse.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

BEGIN RIGHT.

It was Mr. Andrew Carnegie who discovered that the way to arise in the morning with soul attuned to the harmonies of the universe is to be called to breakfast by a pipe organ.

However, there are few of us who can afford to be awakened to our toilet and coffee by having a pipe organ in the house. Nor could we afford, if we had the organ, to have some one play it for us.

Mayor Seldel of Milwaukee has a more reasonable suggestion. He says: "I believe it would be a good plan if the phonograph were to take the place of the alarm clock. We could start the day in better spirit if we were awakened by some inspiring march or song. We ought to have music before breakfast."

No doubt about that. Because your day's success or failure largely depends upon the mood with which you begin your day.

Heleno Renard, whose "laughter cure" is the fad in Paris, says: "You must begin each day with laughter. Begin as soon as you open your eyes in the morning. There's magic in it."

Renard is right. A good laugh in the morning not only massages the liver, but drives the cobwebs from the brain and lubricates the grumpy feelings.

Perhaps you cannot force yourself to the laughter cure, but you can begin your day in a cheerful mood. You can force your mood.

Do you know that there are more quarrels, more disturbances, more divorces, more bickerings and brawls at the breakfast table than at both the other meals combined?

The grumpy microbes are an early worm.

Begin your day properly. Force yourself into good spirits. Cultivate pleasant speech at the breakfast table. Smile and smile and your troubles, like the Arab, will fold their tents and silently steal away.

That which is well begun is already half done.

Be kind to a danger point. Your stomach is empty, perhaps your nerves are jangled, and in your fancy there is some fearsome thing ahead. How, shall this be done or that? Will that happen or this? Trifles annoy you.

Nevertheless—

Face the day smilingly. Whatever looms ahead, meet it good humoredly. However difficult the task, you are the more certain of its accomplishment if you go at it in a cheerful manner.

Begin right.

The English People.

English people are thin and not fat. In London the men average very small. The rubicund Britisher we read about is not in evidence. The English are not a "marble" people. They are and, quiet, orderly, low voiced, well trained.—St. Louis Hardware Reporter.

Good Water Pan for Pets.

A good water pan for pets or poultry is a round, tin cake-pan, with a cone in the center, commonly known as a "Turk's head." A stick driven through the cone into the ground makes it impossible for an animal to overturn the pan.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Souvenir Thieves.

Hotels of Philadelphia have been forced to post notices that hereafter "souvenir hunters" would be prosecuted for either petty or grand larceny according to the value of the hotel belongings they manage to carry from the dining and bedrooms. The posting of the notices comes as an aftermath of complaints of the waiters, who heretofore have been forced to pay for cutlery, dishes, napkins, etc., which were charged to them when they left the kitchen, and which were not returned.—National Herd.

Two Educations.

We all have two educations, one from others, and another, and the most valuable, which we give ourselves. It is the last which fixes our grade in society and eventually our actual conditions in this life, and the color of our fate hereafter. All the professors and teachers in the world cannot make you a wise or good man without your own co-operation; and if such you are determined to be, the want of them will not prevail.—John Randolph.

DENTISTRY THAT MAKES GOOD

I was just down in Illinois to a town where I began practice twenty years ago.

I met a lot of old friends and one said to me:

"Dr. Richards? Why, sure! I know you. You made my wife's teeth and she loves them yet, as good as ever."

SPECIAL ARTICLES ARE WRITTEN FOR GAZETTE

HOW APPLETON SECURED COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT AND ITS RESULTS.

WILL BE INTERESTING

In View of the Fact There is Serious Talk of Starting Such a Movement Here at This Time.

In view of the fact that many business, professional and common everyday citizens of Janesville are talking of adopting the commission form of government, the following article, the first of a series, by Paul F. Hentrich, will prove most interesting reading. Appleton is under the commission form of government and these articles deal with the subject from the inception of the idea through its successful outcome. "The first of the series deals with the subject, 'How Appleton Secured the Commission Government.'"

Appleton, a city of 18,000, known for years as an educational, musical, dairy and manufacturing center, had an early municipal government in any city in Wisconsin. There had never been any charge of graft and wisdom of incompetency, but the people were not satisfied, the politicians ran the city as they do nearly everywhere else, and it was admitted the "system" was wrong.

The city was normally republican but frequently elected a democratic mayor and council on some local issue. The citizens of Appleton are noted for being conservative. They are slow to take hold of anything but once they make up their minds nothing will stop them until they accomplish their purpose.

It was that Appleton realized a change was needed from the old aldermanic system of municipal government and was ready to listen to the possibilities offered under the commission form.

In January, 1910, John Conway, hotel owner and progressive citizen, visited several cities in Texas that were governed by commission and on his return advocated the system for Appleton. He interviewed the local press and discussed the matter with many citizens, but it was thought that was not ripe to submit the matter to a vote of the people and it was dropped for the time.

That spring the debating team of Lawrence college, after a thorough investigation of the subject in Des Moines, and other cities, supported the affirmative side of the commission government question in debates with Hamilton and Carleton colleges in Minnesota and won the unanimous decision of the judges, and that fact set Appleton to thinking. That fall the Lawrence team again won a debate on the subject with St. Olaf college.

January 6, 1911, a few men met with Mr. Conway and it was decided to call a mass meeting to discuss the proposition of adopting the commission form of government. The mass meeting was held in the city hall on January 8, and attended by about 300 men, representing all classes. A committee of five was appointed to arrange for a campaign of education, circulate petitions for the special election, etc., and $202 in cash was raised before adjournment towards a fund of $500 to conduct the campaign.

Under the law it was necessary to secure petitions with the signatures of 25 per cent of the voters cast mayor at the last election before a special election could be ordered. These petitions, presented to the mayor, he could wait sixty days before ordering the election, and in order to have the election held early enough, that if it was carried, the candidates could be voted upon at the regular primary, it was decided to circulate the petitions at once.

It was necessary to have 605 signatures to the petitions and on Jan. 9 five petitions were placed in circulation. On Jan. 7 a committee of twenty-five citizens called at the home of the mayor and presented the petitions containing 774 signatures and requested that a special election be ordered for Feb. 7.

The mayor, who had served but nine months of a two years' term, felt that he had been elected for two years and was entitled to serve out his term, but informed the committee that he had been elected by the people and if they wished a special election to consider the commission government, he would order it as soon as he could consult with the city attorney.

One week later the election was ordered for Feb. 7 and the committee in charge arranged for a campaign of education. The committee was supported by the press, the Wisconsin law on commission government was published, a list of books and magazines in the public library, referring to commission government, was published, and they were in great demand.

The Lawrence debating team debated the question with Appleton college of Michigan, before the largest audience that ever attended a debate at Lawrence. The committee arranged for meetings in the ward schools and furnished speakers to explain the new system. Attorney Roy P. Wilcox, of Eau Claire, who assisted in drafting the Wisconsin law, was procured for three days to explain the law and how it had benefited Eau Claire.

The opposition, the leaders of which were for the most part politicians, had few arguments to make but pleaded for delay, suggesting that as yet commission government was but an experiment, especially under the Wisconsin law, and that it would be better to wait until other cities had given it a trial. Then they argued the new system should not be adopted without the initiative, referendum and the recall.

They claimed that it would be impossible to secure men for candidates who are capable of earning the salary fixed by law, from $3,000 to $3,500 in cities of Appleton's size, that it would not eliminate politics, etc.

Everyone became interested in the campaign; nearly everyone appeared to be in favor of the change. On the Sunday preceding the election several ministers preached on the moral side of municipal government and most of them favored the commission plan.

The manufacturers argued that the city was a $15,000,000 corporation and that any other corporation with even $50,000 capital, would have for its managers men who would draw handsome salaries and devote their entire time to the business, instead of being run by a bunch of men who worked hard all day at different vocations and then met one or two nights a month to run the business of the corporation.

The night before the election the largest mass meeting ever held in Appleton was held in the armory when brief talks were made by a dozen or more men and then Mr. Wilcox spoke for over an hour and devoted another hour to answering questions.

It was generally believed that night that the proposition would carry with a big majority, and the people were greatly surprised the next night to learn that less than a two-thirds vote had been cast and that the commission government had been carried by a vote of 1133 to 854, a majority of only 199.

Highway Engineer Asks Whether He Can Give Talk to Board Wednesday Evening Which Is Inconvenient.

It is now thought possible that the Rock County Board of Supervisors may not be favored with an address from the state highway engineer, as was at first planned. According to letter which has been received by the county clerk the only possible time that Mr. Hirst can speak to the board will be on Wednesday evening as he will arrive in the city too late to talk in the afternoon or early Thursday morning.

As both of these proposed hours are most inconvenient for a number of supervisors, it is thought possible that the Rock County board must forego the pleasure of hearing the tireless of the new state road law explained.

DAVID COPPERFIELD IN MOTION PICTURES

Dickens' Famous Novel To Be Shown in Motion Pictures at Majestic.

Beyond the hopes of the most optimistic are the limits to which the moving picture people have gone. People in Janesville who have read, studied and loved the works of the immortal Dickens, are going to have the chance of seeing his "David Copperfield" in motion pictures. Monday night, at the Majestic Theatre, there will be shown a three thousand-foot film, played by the famous Thanhouser company, of the story, David Copperfield.

In three different parts, the pictures with a realism that only the Thumpe business people can give, follow the story of the life of Copperfield, just as it came from the pen of Dickens. The road opens at the time that Aunt Betsey laces her nose on the window pane of the Copperfield home, over which the story is hovering. The early life of David, the marriage of his mother, his first job and his consequent truancy, all are in the first reel.

The well known tragedy of the scene, and part of the story is strikingly done. Little Emily and the tragic ending of her love affair with Steerforth stand out in a way that is a credit to the motion picture art.

Orphan Heep, Mr. Micawber, Mr. Wickfield—characters dear to the lover of Dickens—all are portrayed excellently by some of the most talented actors. Everyone knows the story. Many have wept and laughed over it. See it at the Majestic, Monday night.

MONEY IS DEPOSITED TO COVER SIDE BET FOR FIVE HUNDRED

Overland Hackers Leave Check at The Gazette Office For Race With Dulck Car Next Spring.

Owing to the fact the season is so far advanced, the track at the Park Association grounds in such poor shape that it would be impossible to hold a ten mile race this fall, the much talked of speed contest between the backers of the Overland and Dulck cars will be put over until next spring.

This morning a check for five hundred dollars was deposited with The Gazette by the backers of the Overland car to insure a race at the first available opportunity in the spring of 1912. The money is in the hands of The Gazette and awaits a similar check from the Dulck backers, should they desire a race.

The terms and conditions of the contest will be decided upon later, but it is probable that some persons thoroughly acquainted with the racing game, as John De Long of Chicago, will be asked to judge the contest, which will be for ten miles.

The only condition thus far imposed by the backers of the Overland is that the Dulck car be driven either by Herman or William Prippell. They expect to have Gleason, a well known former local auto enthusiast, at the wheel for their machine. The original race was for cars selling under a thousand dollars and this will probably also be one of the stipulations.

One of the officials of the Janesville Park Association said today that it would be impossible to hold this race this fall owing to the condition of the track and he did not think the directors would allow a race to be held there until next spring, even if the autoists agreed to race.

Herman Prippell recently stated that the backers of the Dulck were ready to cover the five hundred dollar side bet, winner take all, offered by the Overland enthusiasts, so that a race between the two cars seems assured early in the spring. In fact, the Dulck people stated they were ready to race this fall, but as the season is so far advanced it is understood they have agreed to postpone the race until next spring.

DAVID COPPERFIELD IN MOTION PICTURES

Dickens' Famous Novel To Be Shown in Motion Pictures at Majestic.

Beyond the hopes of the most optimistic are the limits to which the moving picture people have gone. People in Janesville who have read, studied and loved the works of the immortal Dickens, are going to have the chance of seeing his "David Copperfield" in motion pictures. Monday night, at the Majestic Theatre, there will be shown a three thousand-foot film, played by the famous Thanhouser company, of the story, David Copperfield.

In three different parts, the pictures with a realism that only the Thumpe business people can give, follow the story of the life of Copperfield, just as it came from the pen of Dickens. The road opens at the time that Aunt Betsey laces her nose on the window pane of the Copperfield home, over which the story is hovering. The early life of David, the marriage of his mother, his first job and his consequent truancy, all are in the first reel.

The lives and works of Wisconsin artists are being studied by the Art League this winter. At the regular meeting held at Library Hall yesterday afternoon Mrs. J. L. Day and Mrs. J. A. Deaton spoke of Minnie Ream Hoxie and Helen F. Meers. The current events discussion was conducted by Miss Ella De Hahn, the topics pertaining to contemporary art and criticism. The proposition to hold an exhibition of pictures this winter was discussed and will probably be acted upon favorably.

REASONS WHY

You should invest your surplus money in MORTGAGE LOANS and not in bond issues.

Millions of dollars in bonds have been repudiated.

Interest rates are too low for you to investigate bond issues.

Too much time is required to investigate the legality of bond issues.

In case of default on municipal bonds yours are required to recover judgment.

If you are a citizen of the community you help to pay your own security.

If you buy a mortgage loan you own the property on one only condition—that the debt is paid when due.

In case of default you get your security in a short space of time, without further expense to you.

In case of mortgage loan the investment is direct and simple and is subject to your control.

MEMBERS RECEIVED BY PYTHIAN LODGE

Large Class Received Into Evansville Chapter at Last Meeting—Evansville Local News.

Evansville, Nov. 11.—The K. of P. had a large team in initiatory work at the last meeting. It was also voted to serve light refreshments at each and every meeting in the future.

The Pythian Sisters are planning to have a mask party and speak supper at the lodge rooms next Tuesday evening. Every member is urged to be present and has the privilege of bringing one friend. There will be no regular meeting of the lodge, only a very enjoyable, sociable meeting. Also a short program will be given.

Gave Dinner Party.
Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Spencer entertained at a picnic supper at their home Thursday evening. The families of George Pullen, Chas. Spencer and Martin Paulson were present. A delicious supper was served and a pleasant social evening enjoyed by all present.

Personal Mention.
Miss Josephine Mann who has been visiting Miss Cora Morgan, returned to her home in Evansville, Friday morning.

John Van Vleet is home for a few days.
S. E. Barnard and wife spent Friday in Janesville.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Clark leaves tomorrow for a few days visit in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Lam Courtier and daughter spent yesterday in Janesville.

Miss Mary and Thilo Schwartz of Oregon are visiting at the home of Mrs. E. Williams.

Miss June Shogren and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hall leave today for Mt. Clemens, Mich.

H. A. Longnecker is spending a few days in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Noyes went to Brooklyn last night for a short visit.

Miss Lavonia Gillies, Daisy Spencer and Miss Walch of Madison, are spending the week in Chicago. They will be joined by Mrs. Gertrude Enger, today, who has been in Racine for a visit with her son.

Mrs. Lucius Hilow of Brooklyn was in the city Friday afternoon.

C. J. Calkins spent yesterday in Janesville.

Miss Lewis, is home from Portville for an over Sunday, visit with her mother here.

R. M. Johnson left for a visit to relatives in San Francisco last night.

It. M. Richmond and O. S. Rhenburt were Janesville visitors yesterday.

The subject of the sermon at the Congregational church Sunday, evening will be "The Ministry of Healing."

This will be an illustrated lecture having seventy-five or more slides shown. Everyone is invited.

State Inspector of W. R. C. Here.

Mrs. Lizzie Williams, the department inspector of the Woman's Relief Corps, will be present at the regular meeting of the T. L. Stephen W. R. C. No. 28, on Thursday evening, Nov. 16, at 7:30 sharp for the purpose of inspection. All officers and members are requested to be present promptly at 7:30. Cora E. Harris, President.

Game to Evansville.
The Evansville Y. M. C. A. team won the basketball contest from the Brooklyn Association team last night by the score of 46 to 14. The game was played in the local gymnasium before an enthusiastic audience. The Brooklyn team played a very clean contest but the superior basketballing of the local aggregation won the game. The lineup was:

For Brooklyn: Hanson and O'Brien, forwards; Dreyer, center; and Hanson and O'Brien, guards.

For Evansville: Sperry and Hobart, forwards; Antea, center; and Hines and Whiter, guards.

The Cubs and Pirates engaged in a preliminary contest which the former won by the score of 12 to 7.

Entertained at Dinner.
Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hanson entertained the E. Z. Club at a dinner party last evening. There were about fifteen members of the club present and following an elaborate three course repast, the remainder of the evening was spent in a social manner.

W. C. T. U. Notice.
Announcement has been made of a change in dates for the meeting of the local chapter of the W. C. T. U. The meeting will be held Nov. 24th instead of the 17th. A complete report on the national convention in Milwaukee will go part of the program and it is expected that the president of the county organization will be present.

Men's Meeting.
Rev. R. A. Meyers will address the Y. M. C. A. Men's meeting at the association building at three o'clock to-morrow afternoon. Special music will

When a Man Runs.
There are men in this world who will run miles in any weather to avoid talking to a woman who knows more than they do, and knows it, and shows that she knows that she knows it.—Henry Sydney Harrison.

Natural Food of Man.

he furnished by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra.
Miss Walter Higelow and daughter, Miss Beth left for Whitewater this morning where they will visit the former's brother, Lloyd West.

EVANSVILLE WANT ADS.

For the benefit of the Evansville subscribers this space will in the future be reserved for the insertion of Evansville Want Ads. The advertisements will be placed immediately following the Evansville news.

Advertisements not of a local nature may, however, be placed in the Evansville classified columns if desired.

On account of the wide circulation of The Gazette in and near Evansville these advertisements should and will be of great value to the advertiser.

The rate will be one-half cent a word each insertion; no advertisement to cost less than twenty-five cents.

FOR SALE—Two new Domestic sewing machines, used less than six months. Cheap. P. W. Hanson. 297-31.

African "Sundowner."
There are many etymological excuses for drinking, as an "appetizer," or a "stirrupcup," or a "nightcap."

The "sundowner" is peculiar to the west coast of Africa. It has nothing to do with the Australian "sundowner," who is a sort of tramp. All down the west coast of Africa is a quarter of an hour between the day's heat and night's languor, which comes with a chill. It is a sort of religious ceremonial to share a "sundowner" at this time and ward off the chill.

Modern Business Manners.
In Jewish houses of worship persons who are in mourning arise at a certain time during the service and repeat the Kaddish. According to the Hebrew Standard, there are tradespeople for whom the mourners' prayer is no bar to business. In a recent issue that paper says: "The trustees of Temple Israel of Harlem, should suppress the individual who on Sabbath mornings distributes pamphlets to those saying Kaddish, advertising the wares of a monument dealer."

Power of Human Nature.
After all, whatever is an element of power, if it is properly extracted and applied, is at his command, without question, who can successfully use it. But in trying to influence people, put human nature under what you do. Remembering what we, ourselves, like and want is to foresee fairly well what the great public will respond to. And there can be little guesswork in getting at this.

When a King is Ill.

And there is this curious psychological fact to be remembered: A serious illness or a death advertises the doctor exactly as a hanging advertises the barrister who defended the person hanged. Suppose, for example, a royal personage gets something wrong with his throat, or has a pain in his inside. If a doctor effects some trumpety cure with a wet compress or a peppermint lozenge nobody takes the least notice of him. But if he operates on the throat and kills the patient, or extirpates an internal organ and keeps the whole nation palpitating for days while the patient hovers in pain and fever between life and death, his fortune is made. Every rich man who omits to call him in when the same symptoms appear in his household is held not to have done his utmost duty to the patient. The wonder is that there is a king or queen left alive in Europe.—G. H. Shaw, "The Doctor's Dilemma."

Wanted to Sell Her Leg.

Willing, she asserts, to sacrifice a finger, foot, arm or leg in an effort to relieve her poverty, a woman, whose name was not divulged, living in Geneva, has written to the physicians of Franklin Square hospital with an unusual and pathetic appeal for financial assistance.

The letter conveys, any the physicians, a sad story of much suffering as the result of poverty by a woman who was once in good circumstances, but who has recently been reduced to abject destitution. She named no specific price for her sacrifice, according to the doctors, but asked for an early reply if her offer was to be considered. The only restriction that she made was that her name be kept a secret.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

"Old Heads" the Best.

Some of the world's greatest statesmen have proven that it takes the experience and hand of old age to run the machinery of nations. Gladstone was four times prime minister of Great Britain. Long after his fiftieth birthday he extended the island empire until the sun never sets on its dominions. He was guiding the ship of state when he was four score and it was after that age he attempted the greatest task of his life, that of granting home rule to Ireland.

Cling to Inherited Tongue.

After years of effort to spread the English language, the home tongue of the full-blooded Hawaiian is his aboriginal jargon. Exclusive of the half-breeds in these islands there is but one family that talks the English language in its home. All the rest are as true to their inherited tongue as they are to their racial hue.

A Sign.

When a man boasts much about his high instep it is a sign that he doesn't worry much about the height of his forehead.

Teach Obedience.
Let children understand that disobedience is sure to be followed by punishment. A child seldom obeys a nature more than once in touching a hot lamp-glass. It will soon learn to obey you as well. Never allow it to ask why. You know; that is enough.

A Large Attendance.
"What is the cause of all this crowding? It looks as if a convention of some kind was being held here." "There is. This is the first annual meeting of statesmen who have been whitewashed by investigating committees."

EASY DISHWASHER

Dishes Remain Stationary and Are in No Danger of Nicking.

An effective dishwasher for family use has been put on the market by a New York man. It is so easily manipulated that a child can run it and there is no danger of the china becoming nicked in the process. A circular metal receptacle has a perforated cylinder running up the center in which is a close-fitting piston, operated by a hand. A large handle, fitting as close as to be watertight, covers the receptacle. At the bottom of the tub, if it may be so called, are circular rattles to hold plates and saucers, arranged on their edges, and above this is a rack to hold cups, etc. The silver stands up inside a smaller rattling that encircles the cylinder. A tea kettle of boiling water is poured into the cylinder and the lid closed. The piston is pressed down and the water is sprayed out over the dishes. The piston is raised and the water is sucked into the cylinder again for a repetition of the operation. The whole machine runs on a metal stand, with casters.

GIRL IS ATTACKED BY A VICIOUS DOG

Miss Marion Hull of Milton Junction Severely Bitten by Bull Dog Owned by John W. Owen.

Milton Junction, Nov. 11.—What might have been a very serious accident occurred when Miss Marion Hull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Hull, was attacked and very badly bitten by a ferocious bull dog owned by John W. Owen. After the first attack whereby she was bitten in the arm, the dog was pulled off by Rev. Nott, pastor of the M. E. Church who saw the trouble from across the street. He choked the dog until he thought there would be no further trouble, but when he let go he was so thirsty for blood that he attacked her again and tore her leg.

Mr. Nott again pulled him off and batted his head against a tree till he could not bite her again. It is thought if Mr. Nott had not come to the rescue that the animal might have killed the girl as the dog is of a very savage disposition having attacked two or three before.

Miss Hull was hurried to her home and a physician called who dressed her wounds and she was taken to her home. What will be done with the dog is not known but it is hoped by all that it will be killed before it does more serious damage.

Club Entertained.
The G. B. Club were pleasantly entertained by Miss Edna McLean of Janeville at the former's home last night. The evening was spent in discussing current events. During the latter part of the evening a dainty two course luncheon was served after which the guests departed having spent a profitable evening.

Will Apple Production Ever Meet the Demand?

The apple is tending year by year to assume the characteristics of a luxury. Anything delightfully edible becomes a luxury when it becomes scarce, and statistics show that the apple production of the country has been following a steady decline in volume.

If population constituted the reason for the shortage, it would admit of argument that the condition might be remedied by the planting of more orchards; but when the reason lies as it does in the present instance, in the limited areas of land suited to successful apple growing, we are forced to the conviction that we are in for an apple famine that must be permanent. It will be expensive for the apple eater, but for the apple grower it will mean more money and an easy independence. Apples can only be grown successfully in a few favored valleys of the Pacific Northwest and then only upon the narrow benches, a few miles in width, which can be irrigated.

The Bitter Root Valley

is one of these favored spots, as it has the soil, the climate and the necessary water for the irrigation of the orchards. If you want an income of from $2,000 to $5,000 per year and live in a delightful climate, investigate my proposition. Our terms are very liberal, and are as follows:

A ten-acre Orchard Tract planted to trees, and brought to maturity will cost you only $5,000 if you buy now. If you prefer, we will accept $2,000 now and the balance with 6 per cent interest in four annual installments. If you are not in a position to pay as much as $2,000, now write for our accumulation plan permitting an initial payment as low as $500.

Ask for our literature anyway; it will cost you nothing and it tells all about the BITTER ROOT VALLEY and its PRODUCTS.

Finds Profit in Toys.

A woman, who, after five years of married life found herself with an invalid husband and no source of income, made toys, such as she had seen in Germany, and a good market was found for them in the department stores. She showed the toys first to children and profited by their comments upon them. She says dolls are especially profitable.

No Serious Consequences.

"Yes," said Mrs. Lapsing, "Johnny's all right now. When he was bitten by that strange dog I took him to a doctor's and had the wound ostracized right away."

Baby as Luggage.

The latest style of baby carriages was seen in the Union depot recently. It is a simple affair—the baby, a board and several straps. At first glance the baby might be mistaken for a bunch of clothing bound together in an old fashioned shawl strap, but on looking closer you see that on the child's back a board was placed, and three stout straps bound the youngster to it. A leather added to its convenience.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Your Health and Happiness Depend On the Condition of Your Spinal Column

Chiropractic (pronounced ki-ro-prak-tik) is the only science, philosophy and art that has thoroughly tested and proved that disease is caused by the interruption of mental impulses, as they pass through the nerves at the intervertebral foramina where the vertebrae (spinal bones) are not in perfect alignment with each other. Such conditions are called subluxations (partial dislocations), which impinge the nerves that pass out through these openings, as in second opening, thereby interfering with the mental impulses and consequently causing disease (not caused in the organ or tissue in which the nerve ends). Chiropractic further proves that scientific adjustments will be followed by return of health.

Chiropractors do not use medicine, drugs, knife or anything that is usually used to treat effects. We do not rub, massage, or use electricity. Chiropractic is not magnetic healing, osteopathy, faith cure, Christian Science or anything else but chiropractic. All diseases, no matter of how long standing and of what nature, must cease when Chiropractic steps in. Let it be understood once and for ever that Chiropractors do not treat, bend or cure diseases, but by scientific adjustment remove the cause of disease and thereby open the way to enable innate intelligence, "nature," to restore normal conditions. Health. We adjust (remove) the cause of disease instead of treating the effect. There can be no effect without a cause.

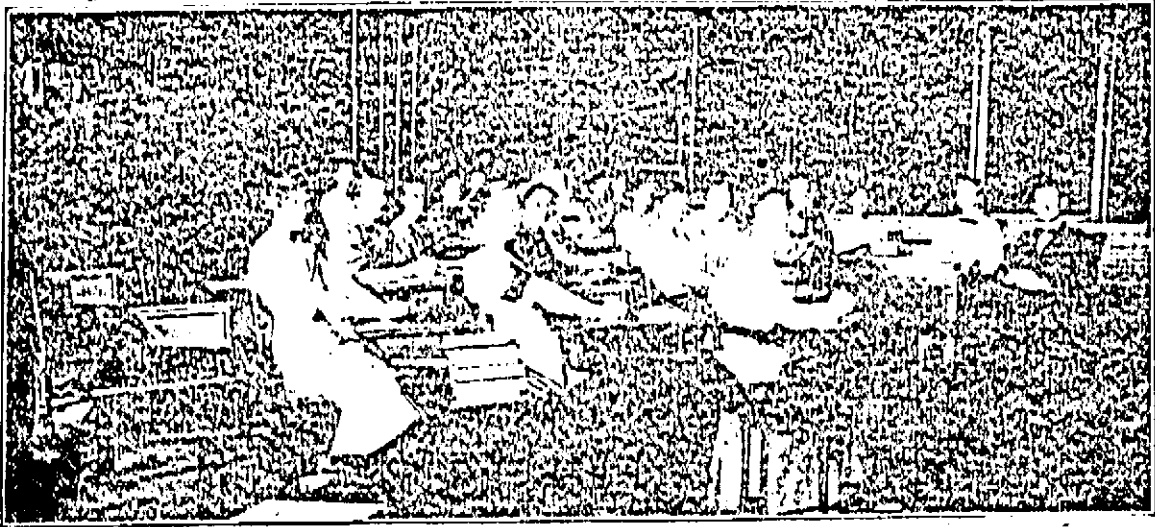

To enjoy life in its fullness expression it is necessary to have every nerve, as they branch from the spinal cord, pass through foramina like the one marked first opening. With a spine as perfect throughout, disease would be an impossibility. Reverse the condition (see second opening) perhaps through a fall, heavy lifting, etc., the once normal foramina is closed to half the normal size, the soft nerve passing through the opening is pinched to the same degree; Would you expect this nerve to carry the same amount of current per the same space of time? No. Neither would you expect water to flow freely through a garden hose when an obstacle was lying on it. Chiropractors remove the obstacle, the cause other practitioners would doctor the effect the "hose nozzle."

View of Rock County Training School

In the Jefferson school building this summer the Rock County Teachers' Training School was started and is now in its first regular session. Since the opening of this institution the membership has greatly increased and it is becoming very popular in the county. This is a new idea in the county and is taking hold faster than was even thought possible at first. The picture is a view taken in the school shows the students in their places for the opening exercises. The school is located in the Jefferson school, on the third floor, and the equipment is very well chosen and installed. All the studies taught in the schools are studied over and the methods of teaching them are studied.

WHAT PUZZLED THE NEWSBOY

He Didn't Understand Primary Cause of Trouble, but Motorman Could Have Told Him.

It was a very busy hour on Forty-second street, and the traffic "cups" were having their hands extremely full, relates the New York Sun. Just as things were starting along, after a complicated blockade, a little newsboy dropped a quarter, and darted out into the street after it, under the nose of a motorman who had just started his car.

The indignant motorman threw on the brakes with a jerk. As the car came to a sudden stop an automobile directly behind it turned sharply to one side to avoid a collision. It skidded, the hood coming under the startled noses of a pair of dray horses. One of the front tires blew up with a loud report.

This was too much for the horses, and they jumped forward together. In another minute the heavily loaded dray was careening down the sidewalk, the people scattering in terror. A lamp post was knocked over, and the dray, thrown violently in the other direction, upset, flinging a couple of heavy boxes through a brilliantly lighted display window.

The broken electric lights sizzled for a minute, then the flimsy trimmings of the window caught fire, and in a few minutes the clanging of the fire department was added to the uproar, and the crowd extended for a full block in either direction.

When the fire was out, and the wreckage was being cleared away, the newsboy, with his quarter safe in his pocket, turned away and started down the street, murmuring to himself: "Gee, I wonder what begun all dat fuss!"

Sample of Animal Instinct.

"When I was a barfoot lad," said Mr. Dustin Stax, "I had to spend a good deal of time minding the stock on father's farm. I'll never forget the day when father told me to take a rope and hold a couple of bull calves."

"What did they do?"

"They scorchered my hands with the rope and turned around and stepped on me."

"Unruly disposition?"

"No. Wonderful instinct. They recognized me at a glance as a small stockholder."—Washington Star.

Changes in the Palisades.

The Palisades on the Hudson are slowly changing. To the traveler of a hundred years ago they were a sheer cliff of clean rock rising in a perpendicular line from the water's edge nearly a thousand feet. Now they are buttressed at the foot by immense deposits of broken rock which frosts have pried from the cliff. Gradually this buttress is growing higher. The upward growth of this supporting pile is due to the trees—overgrown of various kinds—which have grown seemingly right out of the rocks.

Joke on Composer.

Signor Leoncavallo once had a rather amusing experience. Being in a strange town where "I Pagliacci" was being given, he attended the performance to see how it was rendered, and falling into conversation with his neighbor, proceeded, by way of a joke, to criticize the work unmercifully. Next morning he found in the local newspaper a long article reproducing at his statements and headed, "Leoncavallo's opinion of 'Pagliacci'!"

Little Bed-Time Tales By EDITH HAVENS

Ruth's Birthday

TOMORROW is your birthday, Ruth. Would you like to invite some of your little friends to tea?" said Mrs. Canton.

"Her birthday! Ruth had forgotten all about it."

"Oh, yes," she said, clapping her hands. "What fun it will be, and then she danced all about the room in her joy."

Coax as she would, Ruth couldn't get her mother to tell her just what the party would be like, and she was a very excited little girl when she went to bed that night.

That afternoon, unknown to Ruth, Mrs. Canton had sent out twelve tiny letters to twelve of Ruth's playmates, and they had all been asked to be present at a birthday party at Ruth's house on the following afternoon.

The next day was a beautiful day and Ruth could hardly wait for the afternoon to come.

Her mother would not let her look into the front parlor, and Ruth, almost too happy to speak, wondered and wondered what was going on beyond that closed door.

At two o'clock the little guests began to arrive, and Ruth met each one at the door. They were shown into the sitting room. The parlor door was still closed. Mrs. Canton came into the room, and in a moment the room resounded with laughter and song, for dreamed it all over again.

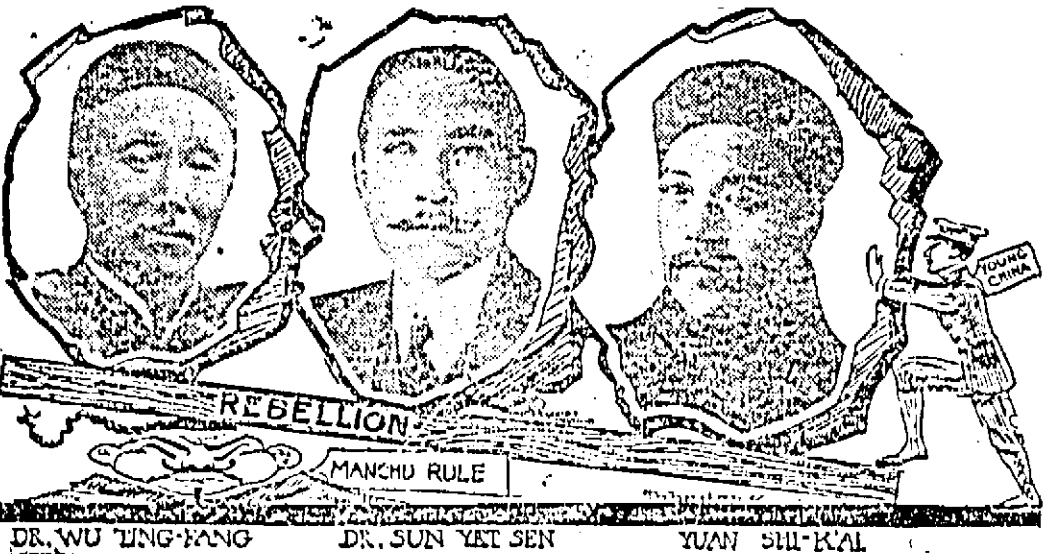

the children began to play games—all kinds of fine games. There was pin the tail on the donkey, which was great fun; "out the green carpet," clap in and clap out, and a lot of others. For over an hour they played, and then Mrs. Canton announced that the children would all go into the parlor.

During the good time Ruth had almost forgotten the parlor, and how she shouted with joy with all the children as the great folding doors were opened. What do you think?

The parlor had been decorated most beautifully with all kinds of flowers, while in the center of the room there stood the most wonderful white table of good things you ever saw. There was ice cream in pretty shaped molds, candy, nuts, sandwiches and fruits, while in the center of it all lay a wonderful birthday cake ablaze with candles. There were ten little lights, one for each year of Ruth's life.

What a feast it was!

"I never was so happy in all my life," whispered Ruth to her mother as closed. Mrs. Canton came into the room, and in a moment the room resounded with laughter and song, for dreamed it all over again.

By throwing their weight on the side of the revolution, Wu Ting Fang, former Chinese minister of Washington and Yuan Shi-Kai have accomplished more for the Republican form of government and the entire elimination of the Manchus in China than any single move since the revolution was started.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen will undoubtedly be proclaimed the new President of a new China with Yuan Shi-Kai as premier and Wu Ting Fang as Secretary of State. Through this move, Wu Ting Fang will have the opportunity for long sought of Americanizing his native land and it means that in the future both government and public life will be patterned after the great American model.

END OF AN OLD SUPERSTITION

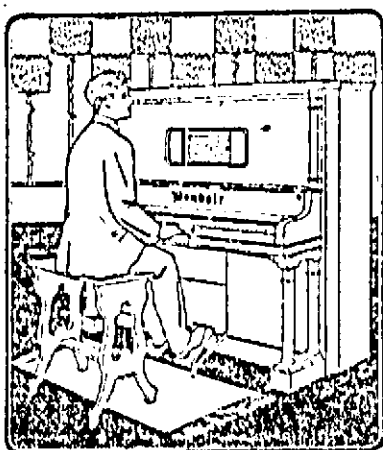

Height of Present New York Buildings Discourages Youngsters There to Seek Fortune.

Said a New York octogenarian: "The height of buildings in New York has dealt a death blow to an old superstition that animated many a country youth who came here to make his fortune 60 years ago. Heaven knows how they came by the belief, but most of those upstart boys came to the city thinking that if they could toss a coin over a house they took a fancy to at the first try, the house would be theirs some day."

"It was one of my surest convictions, and I put it to a test immediately after paying for my first meal in New York. The only money I had left was an old-fashioned three-cent piece. With that in my hand I walked around looking for a desirable piece of property. Pretty soon a corner lot on which stood a two-story-and-a-half brick house took my eye."

"I had practiced coin throwing in the country, so I let my three-cent piece go for all it was worth over the front of the house and ran around to the back to see where it landed. It went clean over. I knew then that that house and lot would be mine in due time, and sure enough they were. People don't toss fortune by flipping coins these days. The fellow whose success depends upon tossing a three-cent piece over the Singer building would be in a pretty bad fix."

If Your Light Costs Too Much it is Because You Don't Use "Mazda Tungsten Lamps"

They cut a five-dollar lighting bill down to two dollars, because they use only two-fifths as much current as the ordinary incandescent lamp. Then they give the nicest light you ever saw for working, matching colors, reading, any purpose.

These are the Tungsten lamps that are used in factories because they are strong and will stand hard usage. Take home enough to try try them out; give them a thorough test; then you'll never use any other lamp in your home, office or factory.
